FLAILING FISTS ANSWER HOUSE 'LIAR' CHARGE

Hook Slurs Rankin and Battle's On!

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Two enraged congressmen tussled with each other in the well of the house today in an explosive climax to debate over the army's commissioning of Communists.

The antagonists were Rep. Rankin [D., Miss.], 62, a frail and gray haired veteran of 26 years' service, and Rep. Hook [D., Mich.], 52, stocky ex-lumberman and coal miner, who was returned to congress last month with CIO political action committee support after being defeated in 1942.

Their brief and furious battle, in which a number of blows were exchanged and hair was pulled, came after Hook had shouted that Rankin was "a —— —— liar." The Mississippian had referred cuttingly to Hook being "mixed up with the Communist party.

Rankin Begins Swinging.

When he heard the fighting phrase, Rankin rushed at Hook and began swinging. The 195 pound Hook [who said afterward he used to be a middleweight champion] endeavored to ward off Rankin, who weighs 140, then threw a few jabs of his own. Rankin closed in a clinch with the Michigan member, grabbed him by the hair, and yanked vigorously. The two wrestled back and forth, tugging and grunting as the house burst into an uproar.

Rep. Cox [D., Ga.] and Rep. Bulwinkle [D., N. C.] were the first to reach the battlers and pried them apart.

"You let me alone or I'll kill you!" Rankin told Hook, his face ashen white with rage. Hook backed away, breathing heavily.

Members Rush to Well.

The presiding officer, Rep. Ramspeck [D., Ga.], pounded for order, but more than 50 members rushed into the well and surrounded Rankin and Hook. Order was not restored for several minutes.

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.] who was addressing the house when the fight started, and Rankin both demanded that Hook's words "be taken down," a procedure preparatory to a motion for striking them from the record. The official reporter then read the offending words as follows:

"Mr. Hook: You are a —— —— liar when you say Communist party."

"Mr. Speaker!" shouted Hook. "There was no blasphemous word used. I said, 'You are a dirty liar.'"

Members of the press gallery and representatives were inclined to agreed with Hook that the name of the Deity had not been used. The official reporter, however, was in the best position to hear what actually was said.

Ramspeck ruled that the words were out of order and ordered them stricken from the record.

Rep. Smith [D., Va.] then de-

U. S. 3d Army Drives 18 Miles Into Germany

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP). Lt. Gen. Patton's United States 3d army—once more on the loose—forced two crossings of the Saar river 65 miles from Coblenz on the Rhine today after a whirlwind conquest of Germany's 80 square mile Moselle-Saar triangle and its fortress town of Saarburg.

A field dispatch said officers and men were in high spirits as the 3d army ripped across the western ramparts of Germany with a speed reminiscent of their dash across France last summer, seizing 29 more German towns in the path of their scythe-like sweep along a 55 mile front.

This powerful thrust 18 miles deep into western Germany collapsed all enemy resistance in the triangle, forced the Germans back across the Saar into positions in the hills, and rammed a steel spearhead within five miles of Trier, big fortress on the route to the Rhine.

The thrust came as the allied high command went all out in the air with a massive air onslaught.

Three Days to Seize Triangle.

It took Patton's veterans just three days to seize the Moselle-Saar triangle after breaking thru formidable Siegfried line fortifications at the southern base.

Without giving the Germans time to rest, Patton's troops manned assault boats and crossed the Saar river south of Saarburg. The 3d army now holds a 25 mile stretch of the west bank of the Saar southward from its junction with the Moselle.

One force from the 94th infantry division went across near Serrig, two and a half miles south of Saarburg, and the others crossed the stream a mile and a half farther south near Thaben-Rodt.

Reach Junction of Rivers.

Six miles north of Saarburg, tanks in a three mile push reached the Saar where it joins the Moselle river, five miles southwest of Trier. Trier's fortifications now were within range of Patton's guns. Trier is a city of 88,000 population and a key to the forefield of the Rhineland defenses.

Other forces on the right were within a mile and a half of Konz, a German town on the east bank of the Saar near the river's confluence with the Moselle.

North of the Moselle river, the 3d army was within eight miles of closing a pincers on a stretch of the west wall lying between Pruem and a secondary road center and base at Bitburg, 15 miles to the south.

This threat of envelopment, which saw 24 hour gains of three miles thru two breaches in the west wall in both the Pruem and Bitburg area, forced the Germans to give up two stubbornly held strong points.

Win Most of Forbach.

One was the Luxemburg border town of Vianden, 14 miles west of Bitburg, and the other was the German border town of Dasburg.

In the last 24 hours the 3d army captured 1,925 prisoners. The 11th armored, the 6th armored, and the 26th infantry divisions were disclosed to be on the 3d's firing line.

Forty miles southeast of the 3d army, Lt. Gen. Patch's United States 7th captured two-thirds of the French city of Forbach, a town of 11,000 population two miles southwest of Saarbruecken.

[The Swiss radio reported today that American troops fought their way into Saarbruecken this morning. The report was not confirmed immediately by allied sources.]

Spicheren, two and a half miles south of Saarbruecken, was captured and fighting raged in the forest of St. Arnaul.

Canadians Near Caicar.

On the north end of the western front, the Canadian 1st army captured the strongpoint of Moyland without opposition and fought nearly to the edge of Caicar, a bitterly defended highway center two miles to the southeast.

British and Canadians battering southward from fallen Goch, near the center of the 25 mile Maas-Rhine front, cut across the Goch-Uedem railway and were subjected to heavy artillery and mortar fire north of Hoest, two miles southeast of Goch.

CONVICT SOUGHT IN HOTEL DEATH

Identified as Two Gun Gambler Fugitive.

Five witnesses yesterday identified a picture of Joseph Medley, 43, a convict who escaped from the southern Michigan prison at Jackson on Nov. 27, as the mysterious two gun gambler sought in the Atlantic hotel bath tub death of Mrs. Blanche Zimmerman, 38, Chicago telephone operator.

Joseph Medley.

Capt. Thomas Duffy and Lt. Philip Brietzke of the police homicide bureau asserted Medley's picture also corresponded with descriptions of a man hunted by the New Orleans police for questioning about the death of Laura Fischer, 28, of New York, who was found dead under almost identical circumstances in a bath tub in the De Soto hotel there Dec. 24.

Serving 30 to 60 Years.

Chief of Detectives Walter Storms said Medley, serving 30 to 60 years for the kidnaping and armed robbery of Louis E. Brooks, wealthy Marshall, Mich., manufacturer, escaped while on a "trusty's" trip to downtown Jackson with $700 other convicts and guards had given to him to invest in war bonds.

Medley was convicted at Marshall on March 31, 1934. He and three armed companions were charged with stealing $48,000 in currency, jewelry, and bonds from the manufacturer. His description was broadcast across the country and a search for him centered in Washington, D. C., where he reportedly headed after leaving Chicago last Saturday.

Convict Seen with Woman.

Medley, known to use the alias of J. H. Gardner, registered at the Atlantic Feb. 8 as John H. Hanan of Dallas, Tex. He frequently was seen with Mrs. Zimmerman in taverns, wearing a broad rimmed hat and carrying a revolver in a holster.

He slipped out of the hotel about an hour before a maid, who ignored a "Do Not Disturb" sign hung on the door, found Mrs. Zimmerman's body partly submersed in water in the bath tub. The cause of death, which was not due to drowning, has not been determined.

Miss Fischer, an Austrian alien, had registered in the New Orleans hotel as Mrs. D. J. Stafford of 4611 Hazel st., Chicago, after the man, believed to be Medley, introduced her as his wife.

Flyers from Chicagoland Star in Allies' Greatest Air Show

BY JAMES SLOAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AT A 389TH BOMBARDMENT GROUP BASE, England, Feb. 22.—Chicagoland flyers had a field day as the allied air forces struck their greatest blow of the war today at the German transport system.

Almost a score of air crewmen from this base who dived their Liberators [B-24s] down to "tree top" bombing level are from the Chicago area. Their commander is a neighbor of Chicago, Lt. Col. John B. Herborth Jr. of Glen Ellyn, Ill.

"We Hit Everything."

"Our greatest mission ever," "right on the nose," "a milk run that paid off in the cream of the crop," "we hit everything that moved." These were some of the terms by which the Chicagolanders summed up their assault on German freight yards. And when the bomb runs were ended the Chicagoland boys had let their gunners blow off—and up—steam by strafing trains. This was an almost unheard of use of Liberators.

As the begrimed airmen elbowed each other about while pouring into the combat crew room to grab up sandwiches and coffee provided by pretty Red Cross girls, one of the happiest of the Chicagoans was Lt. William T. Newport, 7059 Paxton av., a bombardier-navigator.

Today's record all-out assault not only was the greatest on which Newport had flown but it was his 35th mission. That entitles him to make preparations to return home on leave to his family.

Glad It Was Easy.

"The Germans could have thrown everything at us but the kitchen sink but they didn't," said Lt. Jack Gould, 5354 N. Christiana av., Chicago, co-pilot on the Skylark.

Lt. Charles Leamy, 7843 Drexel av., Chicago, the Skylark's pilot, sighed his relief at not being shot up on this mission. He said the Skylark usually draws more than its share of flak and enemy fighter planes. Little of the former and none of the latter challenged today's armada.

Another of the 389th Liberators boasts a Chicago team—Staff Sgt. Matthew Labro, 2942 N. Kolmar av., and Tech. Sgt. Harold L. Lindberg, 2424 Catalpa av., gunners. After their plane's bombs wrecked a German freight yard, they strafed a train.

Another Chicagolander who strafed a train was Staff Sgt. Renn S. Pinkston, Harvey, Ill., nose gunner on the Liberator King Bee. The plane on which Sgt. Einar Anderson, 4933 Deming pl., Chicago, flew as waist gunner, did not get low enough to do any strafing altho it saw its bombs blast the center of a freight yard.

A bomber named You Cawn't Miss It—which is what the British say when they give you the most confusing directions possible—lived up to its name 100 per cent, reported Staff Sgt. Eugene Pietz, Aurora, Ill.

"We really laid it on them this time," said that top turret gunner. "We got in some strafing and I had more fun than I'd had previously in 20 months here."

Shoot Up Factory.

Flight Officer Chalon Maulding of Paxton, Ill., was co-pilot on a plane whose gunners shot up a factory and set it afire. Another co-pilot whose ship "came thru unscathed as usual" was Lt. Charles Roberts, 7019 N. Wolcott av., Chicago. He reported seeing a German town wreathed in flames. Top turret gunner on the ship which led this group of Liberators into one target was Staff Sgt. Jack Moss, 917 E. 87th st., Chicago.

Other Chicagolanders taking part in the tremendous air onslaught were Corp. Joseph Kruk, 2021 W. Rice st., Chicago, whose younger brother, Matt, worked on a CHICAGO TRIBUNE circulation truck before joining the army, and Lt. Robert E. Klagstad, 68 Woodley rd., Winnetka, a co-pilot.

7,000 PLANES STRIKE.

Allied air chiefs hurled 7,000 planes at Nazi communications centers yesterday—the greatest aerial attack in history. Details on page 4.

His Wallet on Dead Jap, but Hoosier Still Lives

CORREGIDOR, P. I., Feb. 22 (AP).—Pockets of a dead Japanese yielded the army paybook and wallet of Pvt. Ned Moore, Linton, Ind. It looked bad for Moore. But he walked into battalion headquarters today, claimed his property and explained he had dropped the items.

MARINES BATTLE COUNTER-ATTACKS; ARMY SEIZES KEY TO LUZON STRAIT

Capture Manila City Hall; Gain South of Capital.

MANILA, Feb. 23 [Friday]—(AP).—Yanks of the Americal division of the new 8th army invaded tiny Capul Island in the San Bernardino straits just off Luzon's southern tip on Wednesday in a move to clear the Japanese from the main shipping route from the United States to Manila. Opposition was light.

The small oval island, five miles long and two wide at the middle, commands the strait thru which the Japanese sent a war fleet to harass the American invasion of Leyte last October.

It lies directly between the southeastern tip of Luzon and the northern end of Samar Island, which is practically in American hands. It is 260 air line miles southeast of Manila and about 325 by sea.

Manila Mopped Up.

MacArthur announced also that steady reduction of the remaining Japanese pocket in south Manila was continuing, and said 11th air borne division Yanks advancing along the west coast of Laguna de Bay, southeast of Manila, reached the town of Muntinulpa.

Associated Press Correspondent Fred Hampson said Yank forces in Manila made important strides by capturing the Manila hotel, the city hall, and all of the general post-office building except the basement.

"The hotel," he wrote, "was won after a room to room and corridor to staircase fight thru the succeeding floors.

"The postoffice was no less difficult."

Clean Up Corregidor.

On Corregidor, 24th infantry and 503d paratroop division Yanks continued the grim task of exterminating the remaining Japanese with liquid fire and explosives.

MacArthur announced that in the 14th corps sector of Luzon—in the northern and central part of the great central Luzon plain—the Americans had captured vast quantities of enemy material and supplies.

He said 712 artillery pieces of all calibers and 705 machine guns had been seized or destroyed there.

Gain in North Luzon.

In the southern Caraballo mountains north of Manila Yanks of the 1st corps secured high ground east of Sison in the steady campaign to push the Japanese into the mountains of northeast Luzon.

Heavy bombers swept enemy defense positions on eastern and western Luzon. Fighters and light bombers destroyed 15 gun positions in the Antipolo-Montalban area west of Manila, where the enemy has been reported girding for a stand.

Fighters and bombers swept the central Philippines in support of the new invasion and heavy Liberators ranged across the China sea for their daily attack on Formosa and shipping off the China coast.

TRIBUNE MAN'S COMPLETE STORY OF TOKYO RAID

BY HAROLD SMITH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCE, Moving on Tokyo, Feb. 14 [Delayed].—"Destination Tokyo" has just become official aboard this Essex class aircraft carrier, part of the mightiest flat top armada ever assembled.

Our skipper, whose sparse words pack a .50 caliber wallop, told us this morning: "We are going north. We are going to hit Tokyo day after tomorrow. I am very proud to say I think this ship is ready."

It was merely confirmation of the "scuttlebutt" [ship gossip], however. It's hard to fool these bright American lads. One deck hand told me the day we set out from our advance base: "When we took winter clothing aboard, that was the tip-off. We knew we weren't going south and we knew we weren't going to the Aleutians, so there was only one other answer. And, O boy, what an answer." He ran his finger across his windpipe suggestively.

Crew Has New Snap.

But now that the lid's off the talk is never far away from our objective. Off and on watch the crew explores all the possibilities of this, the greatest carrier strike in history. Crack young pilots of a new air group yet untried, launch and land on routine practice flights with new snap and precision.

They knew their long training was about at an end and that Friday was the pay-off. Every ear was cocked for the ominous clang of the giant ship's bell which will mean enemy contact—routing to general quarters is signaled by a bugle call.

Everybody is keyed up, but not from fear. It is like the last few deep breaths you take before making a high dive. Carrier life is exciting even between battles. There

NEW IWO PICTURES.

Turn to the back page for new and dramatic pictures of the Iwo invasion. These original photographs arrived in San Francisco yesterday and were sent to Chicago by wirephoto. Another picture and map are on page 2.

PACIFIC FLEET ODQ., Guam, Feb. 23 [Friday]—(AP).—United States marines, who have paid the Pacific's highest price for 58 hours of battle with 5,372 casualties at Iwo, wrested 546 foot Mount Suribachi on the south tip of the island from the Japanese today.

The United States flag was raised on the crater's rim at 10:35 a. m. by the 28th regiment, signaling the end of one phase of the five day old struggle.

Fight for Air Field.

From Suribachi, whose slopes had been blasted by battleships and dive-bombed by carrier planes, the Japanese had raked marine positions thruout the southern sector with mortar and artillery fire.

Adm. Nimitz announced the victory in a brief bulletin soon after one which had reported only minor advances thru Thursday against fierce opposition during an assault on the enemy held fighter plane base in the center of Iwo.

The Japanese launched two strong counter-attacks from the airport area late Thursday.

Adm. Nimitz said artillery and the supporting guns of United States warships "appeared to have repulsed the assault on the left." He added, however:

"No reports were available on the action on the right."

Heavy rains hampered the fighting. Japanese planes, earlier acknowledged to have inflicted some damage on units of the 5th fleet, continued their attacks Thursday but were unsuccessful, the navy said. Fighters and anti-aircraft guns shot down six enemy planes.

644 Marines Slain.

The cost of the battle mounted to 5,372 marines killed, wounded, and missing by 6 p. m. Wednesday, the navy announced. Of these, 644 marines were killed, 4,168 wounded, and 560 missing at the end of the first 58 hours of the operation. In the same period 1,222 dead Japanese were counted.

No invasion of the Pacific war for a comparative period has cost so many American casualties. At Tarawa, previously considered the bloodiest fight of the war, marine casualties for its entire 72 hours slightly exceeded 3,000.

Nimitz in his last previous bulletin covering the count to 5:45 p. m. Wednesday reported 385 killed and 4,168 wounded. The later count left the wounded at the same figure, increased the dead by 276, and added the 560 missing.

Only 3 Jap Tanks Seen.

IWO ISLAND, Feb. 22 (AP). — The absence of enemy tanks is a puzzle to United States marines fighting the Japanese on Iwo. So far as 4th marine division headquarters knows, only three Nipponese tanks have been observed in action. The enemy was believed to have a heavy force of armored vehicles on the island.

Maj. Gen. Clinton B. Cates, division commander, hopes that the heavy naval shelling has knocked out the tanks, but suspects the Japanese may be holding them back.

Cates described enemy counter-attacks against his lines as mostly light. He said he believed they were supposed to be concerted counter-assaults, but they have been disrupted by marine artillery and naval gun fire.

Only a few Japanese managed to infiltrate into the American sector. Enemy counter-attacks on the whole have left marine lines intact.

One of the chief difficulties of

Iwo Nearly Lost on First Day

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., GUAM, Feb. 22 [Via Navy Radio]—(AP).—Japanese artillery fire from Iwo Island's northern plateau almost doomed the marines' first beachhead there, Vice Adm. John H. Hoover acknowledged today.

The commander of the forward areas, who watched the invasion from a warship, told Arthur Primm, Mutual correspondent, that D-day "was touch and go for a while" and casualties were heavy.

Japs Thought It Feint.

"It was a serious moment and for a while our position on the beach appeared doomed," he said. But later we discovered an area far to the south where we could penetrate to the southern air field out of range of their heaviest fire. It saved the day."

At first the Japanese expected the Americans to make only a feint at this landing point and actually make a major landing at another part of the island, he said.

Japs Well Dug In.

Hoover said Japanese artillery and mortar shells began to fall "thick and fast" among the marines as they scrambled up a 200 foot sloping beach. The Japanese appeared to be well holed in in spite of 20,000 tons of explosives unleashed against the tiny island prior to D-Day.

The progress on northern Iwo will be slower than on the south end of the little island, Hoover said.

the operation has been the locating and silencing of gun emplacements. The defenders have been working for months strengthening gun positions to meet the American invasion. The enemy positions are well concealed and are dug in deeply. Even when located they are hard to put out of action.

The nature of the terrain is such that the Japanese originally were able to cover any position on the island with artillery fire. They disposed their guns to take full advantage of it.

Jap Fire Lessens.

Japanese fire appeared somewhat lessened yesterday as the marines launched an attack to the north. This indicated the terrific pounding given Japanese emplacements by naval units, mobile marine artillery, and war planes was taking effect.

Two hours after the first assault troops had landed and advanced somewhere beyond 400 yards, the situation was bad. One battalion reported an estimated 25 per cent casualties and another 20 per cent.

Col. John R. Lanigan of Washington, D. C., said, "This is the hottest one yet."

He ordered smoke shells fired to conceal the tanks waiting for the mines to be located and cleared.

TWO CARRIERS SUNK: TOKYO.

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A Japanese bulletin yesterday claimed that Japanese suicide flyers sank two American aircraft carriers off Iwo. Unofficial Tokyo reports asserted more than 12,000 United States marines have been killed or wounded on the island.

The enemy also asserted an unidentified United States warship was sunk and two others damaged off Iwo, while a Nipponese submarine sank an American cruiser in the Philippines.

Radio Tokyo said the 3d United States marine division began landing on Iwo from 30 transports after 50 per cent of the 4th and 5th marine divisions were killed or wounded.

Tokyo radio reported the night was constantly illuminated by more than 2,000 flare bombs fired by the Americans. The flares hamper Japanese counter-attacks and infiltration movements at night.

The newspaper Yomiuri Hochi said:

"Since Saipan our people have become rather nervous, especially since air raids have had some effect in irritating their nerves. With the enemy landings on Iwo, Japan is exposed to danger, too. If we waver now, it means defeat."

PACIFIC SAPPING DRIVE IN WEST, LABORITES SAY

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP).—The British laborite weekly, Tribune, said today that a shunting of allied power to the Pacific was "wholly responsible for the malnutrition and starvation" in Europe. It demanded to know who was behind the strategy—whether Prime Minister Churchill was "overborne by Mr. Roosevelt or did he share equally in the decision?"

"The allied offensive in the west lacks punch because allied armies lack reserves and materials," said the Tribune. "With a fraction of the enormous reserves now diverted to the Pacific, the war in Europe might have ended months ago.

"We have been incapable of backing up the extraordinary achievements of the soviet armies because as so often before we had dispersed our strength over too many targets."

NAZI FALSEHOOD FAILS TO DISMAY CHANNEL ISLES

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 22 [Reuters].—Copies of newspapers published in the Channel Islands, brought back by the Red Cross ship "Vega," which returned here after taking relief parcels to Guernsey, reveal that in spite of Nazi propaganda that the allies are in full retreat militarily and politically, the islanders remain cheerful.

There is not a hint of despair in the papers — tho their cattle will have to be slaughtered soon because there is no fodder and the fuel shortage is greater than ever before. Yet, under the very noses of the Nazis, the big controversy of the hour is the future system of democracy of the islands to be adopted "after the war."

SUPER FORTS FLY OVER 5 JAP CITIES, SAYS TOKYO RADIO

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

American Super Fortresses reconnoitered five major cities of Japan and more than half the western coast of Korea yesterday, Tokyo radio reported. Tokyo said no bombs were dropped by the planes, scouting industrial areas in daylight.

Marianas based B-29s flew over Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagoya, Osaka, and Kobe, on the main Japanese island of Honshu.

China based Super Forts were reported over Korea, flying from Shingishu on the northern border of Keijo, the capital. Domei news agency said an American fleet unit shelled Paramushiro Island in the Kuriles Monday night.

CHINESE FIGHT 2 JAP COLUMNS NEAR PAOCHING

CHUNGKING, China, Feb. 22 (AP).—Two Japanese columns have struck out west and northwest from Paoching, 63 miles west of Hengyang, and are being engaged by Chinese forces, the Chinese high command announced today.

One enemy force had reached a point seven miles northwest of Paoching, one of the main points protecting the west flank of the Japanese corridor across China to Indo-China.

United States 14th air force planes attacked enemy supply lines and communications all the way from the Taiyuan rail yards in North China to Liuchow and the Lung valley in the south yesterday, meeting no enemy opposition in the air.

KILL MORE JAPS REMNANTS ON NIMITZ'S ISLAND

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam [Friday], Feb. 23 (AP).—Adm. Nimitz reported in his bulletin today Japanese soldiers still are being killed on the island where he has his headquarters. He said:

"Operations against remnants of the Japanese garrison on Saipan, Tinian and Guam in the Marianas and on Peleliu in the Palaus were continued during the week ending Feb. 17. Routine patrols mopped up 94 enemy killed and 15 captured.

"In addition, elements of the 24th regiment of army infantry on Saipan attacked a concentration of about 250 of the enemy in a mountainous portion of the island, killing or capturing 131 Japanese on Feb. 15, 16 and 17. Our casualties in these operations in the Marianas were seven killed and three wounded."

Nimitz's bulletin last year reported organized Japanese resistance ended on Saipan July 8, Tinian on Aug. 1, and Guam on Aug. 9.

TELLS U.S. PLAN FOR 'ATLANTIC CHARTER' PEACE

Stettinius Asks Support of Big 3 Decisions.

CHAPULTEPEC CASTLE, Mexico, Feb. 22 (AP).—Secretary of State Stettinius told the inter-American conference today that an essential aim in a five point American foreign policy program is an Atlantic Charter peace of "freedom from fear and want for all men."

Stettinius, in the first review of American foreign policy since the Yalta conference, asked the other 18 countries represented here to support the ideas of the Crimean declaration and alerted them against any Nazi efforts to use the western hemisphere as a base "for an ultimate comeback."

Pledges Full Support.

Outlining the five cardinal points of the United States policy, Stettinius said that the United States would give active and full support to the principles of the Atlantic Charter, which, he said, were upheld by the Big Three at Yalta.

Other points in the American foreign policy program as disclosed by Stettinius included the "earliest possible" final defeat of the axis; measures to prevent Japan and Germany from aggression again; guarantees to the liberated peoples of Europe of their own government and sovereign rights, and creation of an international security organization to preserve the peace of the world.

Mexican Foreign Minister Ezequiel Padilla joined Stettinius in calling on the American nations to unite for a securely peaceful and prosperous world.

Padilla pleaded for a comprehensive economic program for this continent, saying "there is no excuse for the poverty of America."

"Greatest Social Revolution."

"The war is the greatest social revolution of history," he added. "We must realize the dream of the humble man of the world."

Padilla expressed his support of the Dumbarton Oaks world security proposals, asserting that: "Peace is not all. Peace without justice does not merit its name."

He said the world must face a battle between two ideologies—violence and democracy—and charged the Americas to fight against militarism.

"A regression to totalitarianism or Nazi-Fascism anywhere is a menace to America," he said.

Stettinius and Padilla spoke in the elegant chamber of deputies crowded to the roof while Mexicans milled about outside listening to the proceedings from loudspeakers.

Considerable support for the program of organized peace outlined by Stettinius and Padilla was taking form among conference delegates. Several have introduced resolutions against aggression and for guarantees of national integrity.

Strikes at "Conspirators."

Paraguay indicated that the Argentine discussion was going to pop up again quickly. Paraguay fired the first shot on Argentina yesterday but it was a dud because Buenos Aires' case was officially put off to the end of the meeting.

Uruguay has prepared a resolution for introduction tomorrow which would make conspiracy against the security of any American state by a non-American person or country a criminal offense. It is directed primarily against "Nazi-Fascist conspirators," and is expected to be a basis for approving military sanctions as laid down in the Dumbarton Oaks plan.

The Uruguayans have already put in a proposal condemning the use of unilateral force in international relations and guaranteeing, by armed might if necessary, territorial integrity and political independence of all American countries.

COL. GERHART OF CHICAGO WINS GENERAL'S STAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 22.—John K. Gerhart, 37 year old Chicago commander of an 8th air force combat bomb wing, holder of the silver star, two oak leaf clusters, the distinguished flying cross, and the air medal with two oak leaf clusters, has been promoted from colonel to brigadier general, it was announced today.

Gerhart, after winning his Ph. B. degree from the University of Chicago, entered the army air force in 1928 as a flying cadet, became a first lieutenant in 1935, and colonel in 1942. His wife, Mrs. Helen O. Gerhart, lives at 2222 E. 70th pl., Chicago. His mother, Mrs. Alice K. Gerhart, lives at 710 Emerson st., Evanston, Ill.

Gerhart flew one of the first P-38 Lightnings to cross the Atlantic to England as executive officer of the 8th fighter command in July, 1942. He began flying bombers early in the 1930s and was one of the first test pilots to fly a Liberator.

Planes Attack E-Boats Periling Allied Convoy

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP).—R. A. F. coastal command planes made 16 attacks on German "E" boats attempting to attack allied shipping in a calm sea and bright moonlight last night. The Berlin radio claimed the Nazi speedboats had torpedoed 11 ships, totaling 32,000 tons, in the attacks off the English east coast. The British made no report of losses in the convoy.

PARIS CHILDREN GIVEN TEN TONS OF U. S. CLOTHING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—At a Franco-American Washington's birthday celebration on the slopes of Montmartre, more than 20,000 articles of wearing apparel today were distributed to the poor children of Paris' most picturesque quarter.

The ceremony was presided over by Mme. Rene Pleven, wife of the French finance minister, and was attended by Gen. Pleas B. Rogers, commanding general of the Seine base section; Lt. Col. L. John Donovan Jr., of civil affairs; Marcel Flouret, prefect of the Seine, and Gabriel Arhigi, mayor of Montmartre.

The clothing, which totaled about 10 tons, was part of a shipment of 65 tons of new wearing apparel made in the United States by Red Cross workers and given by American business firms and private individuals to Paris and its suburbs for distribution among French war victims.

BRITISH ERRORS TELL STORY OF GREEK REVOLT

Underestimating Leftists Biggest Mistake.

[This is the first of a series of three articles on the history of the Greek revolution by Clay Gowran, Chicago Tribune correspondent, who witnessed the fighting in Athens and vividly described the street battles for Chicagoland readers.]

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Italy, Feb. 22.—The story of the Greek revolution, a tragic 40 day civil war which bathed ancient Athens in the blood of thousands of casualties and brought down upon Prime Minister Churchill's government the severest criticism, is a story of a series of mistakes.

For many months before the revolution flared up last Dec. 3, British and Greek government leaders had sadly underestimated the power, spirit, and aims of the leftist movement—both politically and militarily. This, despite the fact British liaison and intelligence officers were with the leftist guerrillas, trained them, and advised their leaders in offensive operations against the Germans.

On one side of this vicious struggle were the forces supporting the Greek government, plus British units under Lt. Gen. Ronald M. Scobie. On the other side was the leftist EAM [Greek national liberation front].

70,000 in Leftist Army.

The ELAS, the well organized guerrilla army of the EAM, numbered upwards of 70,000 men and officers, well armed with equipment captured from the Germans and Italians and British and American weapons parachuted to the guerrillas during the German occupation. These guerrilla divisions were strategically spotted thruout Greece.

It will be up to the historians to decide finally which side was right. The Greek government and the British charged the EAM staged the revolt in the hope of establishing a communist controled government of terror over the nation. EAM counter-charged that the government and the British consistently refused to recognize it as a popular front made up of several political parties and representing a majority of the Greek people.

EAM declared the other side sought the disbandment of its army in order to crush it and to reëstablish a rightist government with the eventual return of King George of the Hellenes.

Teheran Pact Denounced.

The more important EAM members brought up this embarrassing question: What right had Britain to meddle in Greek politics by supporting one side against another? It denounced the Teheran agreement by which eastern Europe was divided into two spheres of influence, one dominated by Russia and the other, including Greece, by Britain.

It is not the purpose of this article to discuss whether Britain had a right to intervene in Greek affairs. That will be taken up later. The cardinal point here is that having decided on an intervention course the British made the mistake of completely underestimating EAM. And this error led to the other mistakes.

After the fall of the ill-fated Tsouderos cabinet and the brief Venizelos government last spring, Greek leaders in the middle east set about forming a new government in exile under the watchful eye of Britain. George Papandreou was picked to head it and conferences among leaders of all parties began in Lebanon on May 14. Immediately Greek rightists began a move to keep EAM representation in the cabinet as low as possible and confined to relatively unimportant posts.

Weak Cabinet Formed.

In early September Papandreou announced the formation of an all-party government. But it was a weak and unsatisfactory cabinet already filled with distrust and would have fallen much sooner than it did except for British support.

The seeds of hate were well sown in the middle east. EAM already was hedging on the question of eventual disarming of its forces. It demanded the two national Greek units, the mountain brigade and the sacred battalion, which had been formed in the middle east and carefully purged of all leftist members, also be disarmed at the same time. This was refused. Finally at Caserta, Italy, on Sept. 24, it accepted an agreement placing its army under the command of Scobie, but it was a tongue-in-cheek acceptance.

In mid-October liberation of Greece came.

Leave High Ground Unoccupied.

Scobie, as his chief officers told us later, had not come to Greece expecting to fight the Greeks. When he found the Germans had gone he established corps headquarters in the heart of the city while his supply points and harbor installations were 12 miles away in the port city of Piraeus. High ground within and around the city was not occupied by the British.

Tactically, Scobie's forces could not have been in a worse situation. While placement of British units in this unmilitary manner proves the British contention that they did not want to fight EAM, it also proves they underestimated the leftists.

Scobie, like the military man he is, went about the disarmament of the guerrillas in a military fashion. He issued the now famous order stating unequivocally that the guerrillas must disarm and disband between Dec. 10 and Dec. 20. EAM balked. Charges flew and distrust deepened. Tension mounted until Athens was a tinder box awaiting a spark.

As feeling strengthened Scobie repeated his intention to carry out his order that the guerrillas be disarmed. He met with leaders of the ELAS and EDES [anti-leftist Greek guerrilla force] to bring about disarmament, but the talks broke down. Still the British did not take up tactical positions.

On Dec. 3 came the crisis. EAM sympathizers poured into Athens' Constitution square for a demonstration against the Papandreou government despite the fact the demonstration had been banned.

The inevitable happened. When the police fire died away, 21 EAM followers lay dead an 145 were wounded. Greece was aflame.

It Could Have Been Different.

Looking back, it is interesting to speculate what would have happened if there had been no underestimation of EAM. First, if EAM had been given more representation in the formation of the Papandreou government it probably would have been satisfied then and there. Second, if Scobie's forces had assumed strong tactical positions EAM would have thought twice before revolting and perhaps its second thought would have been a decision to settle problems amicably. Certainly if the British had been organized as a fighting force they could have put down the revolt much quicker with the resultant decrease in casualties.

DUTCH SAY U. S. PLEDGED TO BUY NATIVE RUBBER

BY HENRY WALES.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MAASTRICHT, Netherlands, Feb. 22.—The United States will demand no conquered territory except certain ex-Japanese league of nations mandated islands in the Pacific for naval and aviation bases in the far east, according to Dutch officialdom.

Various Dutch officials here today said this was the present American viewpoint. Their information came from the Netherlands government in exile in London and from sources in Brussels.

"Queen Wilhelmina received assurances from Washington that the sovereignty of the Netherlands East Indies will remain unchanged," stated a high placed informant in close contact with Juliana's husband, Prince Bernhard of Lippe.

One Policy for All.

"How could it be otherwise?" the informant continued. "The United States would never attempt to retain Singapore, Malaya, or Hong Kong, or other British possessions in the orient, so how could America pursue one policy towards a strong nation—the British empire—and a different policy towards a small country like Holland?"

Thus, Java, Sumatra, Malaya, and other rubber producing areas which will be reconquered by American blood from Japan, will be handed back to their former possessors without reservations altho the United States consumed 90 per cent of the world's latex. When I pointed out that America had developed a gigantic synthetic rubber industry and was reviving Brazilian resources, my informant said:

"The Netherlands government, and I believe the British also, obtained unequivocal pledges from Washington that American produced artificial rubber will not compete in the world markets with our plantation rubber."

When I asked if that meant that the American synthetic rubber industry would be scrapped my informant shrugged: "You can draw your own conclusions.

Would Unbalance Economy.

"Even if artificial rubber can be produced eventually at the approximate cost of natural latex, maintenance of the American synthetic industry and her exclusion from natural world markets would seriously unbalance the economic situation of latex producing countries and interfere with the restoration of normal international commercial situation whose restoration is the goal of the Washington administration and Prime Minister Churchill."

The same situation faces tin resources and altho the United States with its colossal canning industry consumed nine-tenths of the world's tin, the international consortium of the British, Dutch, and French controling tin production, received promises that their cartels would be respected.

Guarantee for Planters.

I asked my informant about the Anglo-Dutch protective agreement of 1926 to restrict production to keep prices high, which would have materially strangled development of the United States automotive industry if a popular outcry in America and threats by the Akron producers to develop their own rubber plantations in Brazil and Africa had not caused a relaxation of the cartel restrictions and brought cheaper prices with greater production.

"Such problems will be worked out amicably, henceforth," he assured me, "but the planters must always be guaranteed a remunerative price for latex."

PACT TO SLASH LAKE POLLUTION WON BY CHICAGO

Whiting, Ind., Agrees to Divert Sewage.

BY ROY GIBBONS.

Albert J. Meserow, assistant attorney general, yesterday disclosed that as the result of an agreement reached last Tuesday with Whiting [Ind.] officials, Chicago within the next 90 days is to be freed from at least 25 per cent of the pollution that sanitary district engineers say now is endangering this city's drinking water passing thru the cribs off 68th st.

The agreement was embodied in a stipulation signed at a hearing in St. Louis, Mo., before Luther Smith, special master of the United States Supreme court. Meserow said it requires the city of Whiting within the next three months to stop dumping its raw sewage into Lake Michigan, routing it instead to the Hammond [Ind.] treatment plant.

Work to Start at Once.

Work on the connections necessary to put the agreement into effect is to start at once, Meserow said, predicting Chicago would be given marked relief when installation is completed.

Whiting now discharges its combined industrial waste and sanitary sewage at a point only nine miles from the 68th st. crib intakes, Meserow pointed out.

The agreement with Whiting, Meserow explained, is the result of an injunction suit filed a year ago by Atty. Gen. Barrett in the United States Supreme court to compel Indiana cities to stop using Lake Michigan as a sewage disposal plant.

Further stipulations, he disclosed, also have been put on record before the special master calling for Gary and East Chicago to start work on sewage disposal plants as soon as critical building materials are made available.

In this connection, he said, the American Maize Products company at Hammond has agreed to go ahead at once on a $500,000 private installation to treat the hot industrial waste liberated from products used in its manufacturing process.

Water Diversion Increased.

Meanwhile, to take care of stagnant shore waters liberated by the recent ice breakup, sanitary district engineers were continuing to divert more water from Lake Michigan down the Calumet-Sag channel.

Pollution has developed to such an extent that greatly increased quantities of chlorine have had to be added to water received thru the cribs at the 68th st. pumping station, John R. Baylis, city water purification engineer, reported.

PLANES TO HAVE BIG PEACE ROLE, CHURCHILL HINTS

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP).—A hint that powerful air forces would play a major role in a broad allied plan to keep the peace came today from Prime Minister Churchill, along with assurances that Nazi V-bombs would be borne in mind when armistice terms are laid down for Germany.

Brushing aside a suggestion in the house of commons that "the whole question of the limitation of aerial warfare" be taken up after the defeat of Germany, the prime minister bluntly replied: "I certainly do not think that the victorious allies should deprive themselves of defenses which are possible thru the air."

Without elaborating, Churchill implied that any sweeping world-wide disarmament such as that after the last war was not included in the Big Three peace plan.

Churchill was on the floor only a few minutes during today's sessions amid sparring for next week's debate on foreign policy. The government served notice that it would demand a blanket indorsement of the entire Yalta conference declaration.

7,000 BOMBERS, FIGHTERS BLAST NAZI RAILWAYS

Wolf Packs Roam Skies in 'Buckshot Blitz.'

LONDON, Feb. 23 [Friday] (AP).—Allied air chiefs hurled an estimated 7,000 bombers and fighters at approximately 100 Nazi communications hubs yesterday in the greatest simultaneous air assault in history—a supreme coördinated blow to knock out Germany's railway system. The attack continued in the night. Mosquito bombers, carrying two ton block busters, raided Berlin.

The Berlin radio said 2,000 Russian planes also had battered targets along the eastern front, principally in East Prussia.

Nearly 10,000 sorties were flown from the west and south before dark. The peak was reached at around noon time when explosives cascaded down at an estimated average of 100 tons a minute.

On D-day 13,000 sorties were flown but these were spread over a period of 24 hours. In this historic new assault almost the maximum power of all allied air forces in Europe was concentrated against the enemy within a few hours.

Split Up Into Packs.

The "buckshot blitz"—an entirely new idea which allied air chiefs had mapped and held in readiness for a break in the weather—was spearheaded by more than 1,400 Fortresses and Liberators and 800 fighters of the United States 8th air force.

Two divisions of this gigantic fleet poured into Germany from the north and a third attacked from the south. Over the reich they broke up into wolf packs of up to 100 bombers each and hammered at least 24 freight yards and other rail targets in the heart of Germany during the noon hour. Eight bombers and 19 fighters were missing from this phase of the operation.

In addition the R. A. F. and United States 15th air forces sent out heavy bombers and the attack was swelled by four tactical air forces based on the continent, including the United States 12th in Italy.

Hit 38,000 Square Mile Area.

The 8th air force armada was assigned to a 38,000 square mile zone roughly the size and shape of the state of Indiana, bordered on the west by Hamburg, Hannover and Kassel and on the east by Berlin and Leipzig.

Simultaneously with these great blows from Britain, more than 750 United States 15th air force heavy bombers from Italy smashed rail targets in Germany, Austria and northern Italy, concentrating on a network of lines radiating from Munich.

Fighters escorting bombers from Britain fanned out to strafe moving transportation targets and machine gunned at least 100 locomotives, 300 rail cars, and 30 motor vehicles. The 8th air force fighters, taking on what opposition developed, shot down six enemy planes—four jet propelled.

Tactical air force fighters sped back and forth across the battle lines, making repeated flights, and running into more action than the planes of the 8th air force. A late count last night showed 21 enemy planes destroyed in the air and 29 allied planes missing.

FEW CIVILIANS STAY AS YANKS TAKE SAARBURG

27 Soldiers Captured in Raid Shelter.

BY ROBERT CROMIE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAARBURG, Germany, Feb. 22.—The first thing observed today in this newly captured town was four German civilians burying a dead horse under the direction of American military government officers. The four represented approximately one-tenth of the town's present population altho peace time Saarburg had about 7,800. Officers said the final couple of hundred civilians fled in boats last night.

Saarburg was in fair shape with not too great damage from shelling or the big bombing raid which knocked out the bridge connecting the western with the eastern half of the town.

The Germans did not put up a fight for Saarburg, according to Capt. Keith J. Anderson, Moweaqua, Ill., whose cavalry reconnaissance troops sent patrols in yesterday and occupied it this morning. Aside from a couple of unmanned road blocks, a few snipers, and a little artillery, there was no opposition.

Nazi Party Records Gone.

Capt. W. S. Chadwick, Bayamon, Puerto Rico, who will serve as military governor of Saarburg, with one enlisted man was exploring a tunnel to a warehouse and air raid shelter when he came across 27 German soldiers, who promptly surrendered to Chadwick's fluent German and more persuasive carbine.

Chadwick said the Saarburg bank was empty and all records of the Nazi party and the Hitler Youth school were gone. He said the civilians still left had been hiding in the cellars and woods, slaughtering cattle for food by night, so that German soldiers wouldn't find them and force them to go into an unknown future across the Saar.

Chadwick said many were old persons who, remembering the American occupaton of 1918, said they knew they would at least get just treatment if they remained.

"Gott Mit Uns" Buckles.

Chadwick took us to the tunnel where he got the prisoners. Looking thru 15 or 20 pitch black rooms with the aid of matches we found a number of brand new uniforms—probably Nazi party regalia—as well as ceremonial daggers, boxes of ammunition, and boxes of ersatz metal belt buckles bearing the old German slogan: "Gott mit uns."

We also found a huge German shepherd dog lying half starved on one of the bunks, apparently waiting the return of its long gone master. We finally coaxed it into the corridor where it permitted itself to be petted and even shook hands pleadingly but curled its lip menacingly at every attempt to get it to leave the shelter.

Finally we gave it the contents of two K rations which it wolfed down. Then it came timidly into the sunlight, only to slink back into the shelter when guns near-by opened up.

IT'S TRUE LOVE, SAYS FATHER OF 11 AND BRIDE, 13

Sheldon, Mo., Feb. 22 (AP).—Hugging and kissing, Ralph Houdeshell, father of 11 children, and his bride, 13, asserted today their marriage was a case of true love.

The bride, the former Mary Lou Brown, who quit her school to keep house, said she was "very happy." The two were married Saturday in Girard, Kas., with the consent of the bride's mother. They gave their ages as 30 and 17, respectively. Houdeshell, a farmer, did not give his age today, but one of his sons said his father was "about 50."

Houdeshell's first wife died last June. Two of his 11 children are in service.

STIMSON DENIES RUMOR OF MASS NAZI SURRENDER

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22 (AP).—Secretary of War Stimson took occasion in his press conference today to discount reports of mass surrenders by Nazi troops on the western front. Stimson said that in view of rumors he had cabled Gen. Eisenhower about the reports and had received this answer:

In the allied advance prisoners are being taken but "there is no indication of mass surrenders. Resistance remains stiff along the entire front."

A grand total of 1,134,992 Germans have been captured by the western allies since November, 1942, when the landings in North Africa occurred, he said. Of these, over 900,000 have been taken since the invasion of western Europe last June. The secretary made no attempt to set a number on the thousands captured by Russian forces in the east.

Counting previous bags, however, the western powers probably have taken a million and a half or more axis prisoners.

MAN CHARGED WITH SEX CRIME IS FOUND DEAD

Dennis Hayes, 63, of 630 S. Artesian av., who was to be arraigned in Criminal court today on a charge of crime against children, was found shot to death yesterday in his room. Police Sgt. Edward Galbraithe said the death appeared to be a suicide. A pistol was beside the body, and a note tacked to the outside of the door read: "Unlocked. Come in." Hayes, a widower, employed as a guard by the Rapid Transit company, was indicted Jan. 19 for luring a 9 year old girl to his room.

JAP PRISON SHIP SUNK; 800 YANKS LOST OFF BATAAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—An estimated 800 Americans died on a Japanese "voyage of death"—an ocean counterpart of the infamous "death march of Bataan"—Navy Lt. George K. Petritz, 27, of Ottawa, Ill., disclosed today at a press conference.

Lt. George K. Petritz.

Petritz was one of only two known to have escaped recapture when the ship was bombed and sunk by American planes last December off Bataan. He found a haven with Filipino guerrillas and when liberating American naval forces found him he was taken aboard a warship and then flown to Washington, D. C.

Life in prison camps on Luzon after he was taken prisoner on Corregidor on May 6, 1942, was not too severe, Petritz said, and he was in comparatively good physical condition last October when the Japanese moved the 1,600 Americans from Cabatuan camp No. 3 to Bilibid prison in Manila.

Marched Thru Manila.

"The word went around that we were being shipped to Japan," he said. "On Dec. 13 the 1,600 of us were marched thru Manila to the pier and put aboard a Japanese transport."

Petritz said 800 men were jammed into two small holds forward and 800 into a third hold.

"I was placed in the third hold, the larger one," he continued. "It wasn't any bigger than a large room. The ceiling was just high enough for me to stand erect and I'm 6 foot 4. When we were all jammed in there we just simply couldn't breathe. The only way to get enough air was to climb the ladder to the deck. But that was an invitation to quick death.

Many Weak Men Die.

Lack of oxygen quickly began to take its toll. The weak died and the strong were near collapse before the end of the first day. There were no toilet facilities, and the heat and the stench were terrific.

"The dead began to pile up in the jammed hold," Petritz continued, "but there was nothing we could do about it.

"The bombing by the American planes started the next morning, Dec. 14. It kept up intermittently all day. I don't know how many bombs hit the ship. About 30 fellows in our hold were injured.

"The bombing began again the next day—our third day out of Manila—and while the bombs killed some of us they really saved many of us. I don't think more than 10 per cent of us would have survived."

When it was evident the ship was going to sink the Japs headed for the beach and the Americans were allowed to scramble out of the holds, over the side.

Yanks Scramble Out.

"The Jap guards began firing at us, but they apparently were not trying to hit us," Petritz continued. "Instead they apparently were trying to keep us rounded up and headed into one area of the beach where a Japanese garrison was waiting to seize us again. The ship sank in deep water about 100 yards out. So far as I know, only an army sergeant and myself escaped recapture."

Petritz, who was an ensign when Corregidor fell, came back to Washington after his rescue to find himself promoted to lieutenant and the possessor of the navy cross.

Petritz, whose father, Frank J. Petritz, lives at 106 E. State st., Rockford, Ill., is a brother of Joe Petritz, former athletic publicity director at the University of Notre Dame. At Ottawa, where he was employed by the J. E. Porter corporation, he organized and was first president of the junior chamber of commerce. He has been recuperating at the navy medical center at Bethesda, Md., and expects to go home on leave next week.

LEAVES BOMBER IN CHUTE; LANDS IN BARRAGE ZONE

Sgt. John C. Kanberg, 19, of 1228 Simpson st., Evanston, a Flying Fortress ball turret gunner, recently parachuted safely to earth after his plane had been shot out from under him only to find that he had come down into the middle of an artillery barrage in the western front battle zone, it was learned yesterday from his father, Alfred A. Kanberg of the Simpson st. address.

Sgt. John C. Kanberg.

Sgt. Kanberg, who had gone overseas only last fall, was participating for the first time in an air force attack on the Frankfurt rail yards when German anti-aircraft fire began to tear the Fortress to pieces. The order was given to jump and all 10 crew members reached the ground safely. Finding that they had left the frying pan for the fire, they sought shelter in front line fox holes. Soon an American patrol found them.

Back at base, Sgt. Kanberg shook the hand of the man who had packed the parachute that had saved his life—Corp. Harold D. Loudy of Johnson, Tex.

ENEMY POCKETS IN FRANCE TOTAL 2,112 SQ. MILES

Just Give Us More Tanks, Planes, Says Frenchman.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

COGNAC, France, Feb. 22.—The Germans are masters of three other pockets on the Atlantic coast of France in addition to those at Lorient and St. Nazaire. They hold La Rochelle and a surrounding area of 550 square kilometers [about 344 square miles] together with the islands of Re and Oleron, also Royan and a pocket of 470 square kilometers [about 294 square miles], and finally, the tip of Pointe de Grave on the west side of the Gironde river and 180 square kilometers [about 112 square miles].

All these pockets make up 3,380 square kilometers [2,112 square miles] of French territory held by the Germans along the Atlantic

Mark of War Everywhere.

After some 1,000 miles of travel over Normandy and Brittany roads, we set out from Nantes at 9 o'clock to see the remaining Atlantic fronts. The weather and roads were so bad we did not reach Cognac until 5 that afternoon.

We drove roundabout up to Angers to cross the Loire river, thence down over 250 kilometers [156 miles] of roads thru towns and villages with deserted streets, thru Niort and St. Jean d'Angely to this region of the department of Charente and the basin of the Gironde river.

Everywhere there is a terrifying image of war—destroyed sections of towns, charred trucks, here and there a destroyed airdrome, wrecked tanks, and occasional damaged cannon.

Floods Add to Woe.

We drove along the Loire river from Nantes to Angers. The entire region is flooded, the next disaster which France has to face after a bad winter. Angers did not appear to be much damaged. There was ample food.

Toward nightfall we reached Cognac, which gives its name to the French brandy, and the next day set out to see the other end of the Atlantic front—that of La Rochelle and the mouth of the Gironde.

With Capt. Le Troter and other French officers, we drove north again to Rochefort, on the edge of the La Rochelle front, and thence to the front at Yves, a small village on the coast.

Foe Well Dug In.

Yves is in German hands. Leaving the car, we walked up the road with the lieutenant in command of this sector. Down in this region they seem to be better dug in. The country is flat and marshy. Bridges were blown up, and 1,000 yards ahead, visible with glasses, were the advance posts of the Germans.

Today the sector was quiet, because a truce had been arranged to exchange civilians and prisoners. The lines all about the La Rochelle salient are continuous and developed with trenches and fortified posts.

"Just give us some more tanks and a few bomber planes, and we will drive the Germans out of here," the lieutenant said.

Life as Usual.

We had lunch at Rochefort, on the edge of the front. German shells drop into it occasionally, but life goes on as if nothing were abnormal.

We took a roundabout road to Cozes, a dead town, on the edge of the front. All its population has been evacuated. Thru swamps and mud puddles, we drove to front line positions before Arcs, a village on the coast. We could see a German patrol going out as we arrived.

Stirring Up the Enemy.

"The Boches have been pretty quiet down here for several days. We are going down and give them a few shots to see what the reaction may be," the lieutenant said. He had a mortar on the top of his car.

The French are particularly annoyed because the Germans hold positions on the Gironde which prevent the port of Bordeaux from operating. Bordeaux has hardly been touched and is the only French port which could resume operations immediately.

PARIS RED SEEKS TO PUNISH BANKS FOR AIDING FOE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 22.—Legal action against four of the biggest banks in France was demanded in a resolution introduced in the consultative assembly today by Jacques Duclos, secretary of the Communist party.

The banks cited were the Credit Lyonnais, Comptoir d'Escompte, the Societe Generale, and the Banque Nationale pour le Commerce et l'Industrie. All four are charged with intelligence with the enemy.

The resolution calls on the government to take immediate measures to bring all banks guilty of collaboration to trial. Backing its charges, the Communist party quotes an item in the Journal de la Bourse of Oct. 24, 1942, announcing that these banks had constituted a new financial organization for "the realization of Franco-German industrial projects to be at the disposal of all large French and German enterprises in order to launch important projects."

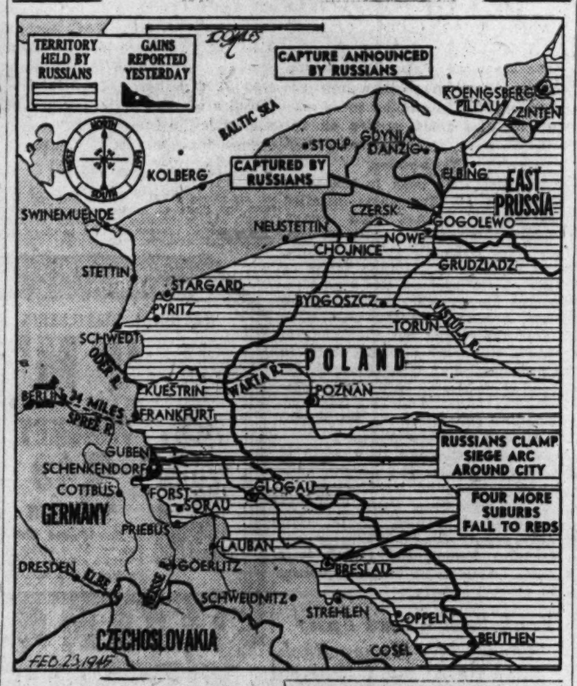
Reds Lay Siege to Guben



RUSSIANS CLAMP SIEGE ARC ABOUT FORTRESS TOWN

Reach Neisse River on Wide Front.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP).—Russian troops clamped a siege arc today around Guben, key fortress town 51 miles southeast of Berlin, as Premier Stalin announced in an order of the day that the Red army had killed or captured 1,150,000 Germans in the great winter offensive.

"Complete victory over the Germans now is near," said Stalin.

In his order of the day commemorating the 27th anniversary of the Red army, the soviet leader said the Germans had lost 800,000 killed and 350,000 captured between Jan. 12, when the soviet offensive opened, and Feb. 20.

A total of 3,000 German planes, 4,500 tanks and self-propelled guns, and 12,000 guns were destroyed or captured in this same period, he said.

As Stalin issued his order soviet troops in a six mile advance had fought their way to a point 34 miles south of Danzig and also had toppled Zinten, one of the last big Nazi strongholds in East Prussia.

Peril Berlin Flank.

Threatening to turn Berlin's eastern defenses, Marshal Konev's 1st Ukraine army captured 60 localities south of Guben and reached the Neisse river at various new points on a 40 mile front. Schenkendorf, two miles south of Guben, was among the points taken in an advance of 11 miles. Berlin said the Russians already were assaulting Guben.

Two thousand German troops were slain in the forests south of Guben, the soviet bulletin said, as the Russians hacked their way thru snowy, difficult terrain. An unconfirmed report from Moscow said the Russians already had crossed the Neisse.

Other soviet forces yesterday reached the mouth of the Neisse at a point eight miles north of Guben and only 49 miles from Berlin.

Capturing Strega, farther up the Neisse, soviet troops rolled to within five miles north of Forst and 12 miles northeast of Cottbus, big rail junction town astride the Spree river, last natural defense line before Berlin. The Russians also took Teuplitz, eight miles southeast of Forst. South of Teuplitz they captured another section of the big military autobahn, or super-highway, leading into Berlin.

Red Bombers Attack.

Four more Breslau suburbs were taken by Russian troops fighting to annihilate the garrison of the lower Silesian capital.

Russian shock troops, using ladders and assault bridges, captured an earthen wall surrounding the "citadel" in Poznan, besieged western Polish city, Moscow reported. Artillery smashed a hole in the wall and the troops seized one building and 360 Germans.

Soviet heavy bombers made mass attacks Wednesday night on enemy military and industrial objectives in Brastislava, Slovak capital, and in besieged Koenigsberg, East Prussian capital.

The Russians acknowledged that German counter-attacks on Samland peninsula west of Koenigsberg had pressed back soviet troops from the northern shore of Koenigsberg gulf. This is in the area where Berlin said German troops had opened up a corridor between Koenigsberg and Pillau, the capital's port.

Below Koenigsberg the Russians captured five localities in addition to Zinten.

Captured Zinten is 10 miles inland from the Frisches Haff, Baltic lagoon coast against which the remnants of perhaps 20 Nazi divisions are pinned. The German pocket is less than 450 square miles in area.

GERMANY PLANTING AGENTS IN ROMANIA, RED PAPER WARNS

MOSCOW, Feb. 22 (AP).—The internal situation in Romania was viewed with solemn seriousness today by the official Communist party organ Pravda, which charged that Germany on the eve of her defeat is looking for places to mobilize secret agents and intimating that Bucharest was not being overlooked.

"Soviet public opinion cannot fail to watch impartially the inner struggle of democratic elements with the Fascists in Romania," Pravda said. The paper called for "a complete elimination of the last remnants" of Romania's "Fascist regime."

"The war is not over yet," it continued. "Hitlerite Germany is not finally crushed. On the eve of her final collapse she seeks to mobilize agents and partisans. We should not forget that Romania is in the Red army's rear and that in this rear the rule of pro-Fascists should be liquidated."

GIRL KILLING DOG WINS A REPRIEVE BY COURT ORDER

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22 [Special].—Woof, scheduled to be executed tomorrow, won an eleventh hour reprieve tonight.

The terrier that on Feb. 13 killed 21 months old Marguerite Theresa Derdenger of this city and was ordered destroyed by his owners, Staff Sgt. and Mrs. Charles P. Derdenger, the child's parents, will live at least until March 30 under an order issued by Superior Judge William R. McKay.

Judge McKay issued the order tonight in response to a request by Grady Terry, cafe owner. It was issued in accordance with a section of the state penal code requiring a hearing on a complaint sought by any one who has knowledge of a "crime about to be committed against any dumb animal," Morris Lavine, Terry's attorney said.

2 YANKS FREED IN NAZI EBBTIDE FLY HOMEWARD

MOSCOW, Feb. 22 (AP).—Two doughboy officers captured in Normandy boarded a transport plane here today and agreed happily their homecoming would more than pay off seven months as prisoners of the Nazis.

Their captivity started at "Starvation Manor," a Norman abbey, where the wehrmacht herded and starved its first prisoners taken in the American invasion of France. It ended a month ago when Marshal Gregory Zhukov's 1st White Russian army swept across western Poland into Brandenburg.

"Like We're Dreaming."

"It seems as if we're still dreaming," said Lieutenants Alvin G. McCormick, 24, of Livona, N. Y., and Libly Everett, 23, Sweetwater, Tex.

"We met in 'Starvation Manor,' an old stone building where several hundred American officers and men were held for weeks on rations so short we fainted if we tried to walk," McCormick said. "We got two plates of weak soup and one slice of bread a day. Some of us got hold of a little flour and ate it raw.

McCormick explained that he had been brought to camp by a German guard detail so terrified of allied air raiders the men stayed half drunk from Normandy cider.

Third Degree Next.

The two lieutenants said conditions improved somewhat when they were transferred to another camp, Salon sur Marne, deep in France, but that there they encountered the German third degree.

"They kept us four or five days in solitary confinement," Everett said, "and artillery officers were held even longer while they tried to sweat out military information from us. Then they tried slipping us innocent looking, alleged Red Cross questionnaires with leading military questions buried in the middle of a page. Finally they brought a phony civilian political expert to camp to talk with any Americans 'interested in political affairs.' He wanted to spy out American opinions about the Jewish and Negro problems and our feelings toward Britain and Russia."

They were shipped eventually to oflag 64 at Szubin, Poland.

Thirty-six Hours in Berlin.

Another American liberated at the Szubin officer's camp is Capt. Eugene M. Witt, 29, of Richland, Mich. He told today of spending 36 hours in the bombed rail yards of Berlin last November en route to a prison camp in Poland where he eventually was freed.

"We were in Berlin just at the time of an R. A. F. night raid when we could hear bombs whistling down," Witt said. "There were 46 American officers in two boxcars. The moment the sirens screamed our guards locked the doors and went off to an underground shelter. We sweated it out with rather mixed feelings.

"From our box car doors we could see that everything bordering the rail yards was in ruins. We didn't see a building in the neighborhood that hadn't been hit."

On to Berlin!

A veteran gunner from the United States army's 1st armored division said that Marshal Zhukov's western Poland blitzkrieg "went by me so fast I almost got dizzy."

"The big fact as I saw it was the way the Red army kept driving, driving with every man in it grimly determined to get to Berlin," said Lt. James F. Schildt, 22, of Long Island City, N. Y.

The officer who has been in the army since he was 17 was commanding a battery of 105 mm. guns in the 1st armored division's push 100 miles north of Rome when a German counter-attack overran his position last June 5.

Last month, while escaping from a column of American officer prisoners being marched from Oflag 64, Schildt saw a fight to wipe out an enemy pocket which went on more than a day until 6,000 Germans were killed.

"The Russian soldiers who did this job actually seemed aggrieved because it delayed them a little while in the march on Berlin," Schildt said.

Strip German Dead.

Polish civilians in ragged clothing, the American said, stripped the enemy dead of their uniforms, leaving only the steel helmets.

A dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star indicated today that many American and other allied prisoners had been liberated by Marshal Rokossovsky's army in East Prussia.

The writer, Ilya Ehrenburg, reported: "The whole world knew nothing could ever halt the Red army. This is shown in East Prussia by hundreds of thousands of prisoners from different countries—Russians, French, British, Americans, Poles." He gave no further details.

SEES YANKS MARCH OFF

Szubin, Poland, Feb. 20 [Delayed].—In this little Polish corridor town was a camp where most of the American ground force officers captured in Africa, Sicily, Italy, and western Europe were imprisoned.

On Saturday, Jan. 20, the German garrison warned the American prisoners to prepare for evacuation. On Sunday morning the American prisoners were marched away, escorted by German guards. Transportation being unavailable for hospital patients and others unable to walk, they remained behind. This group numbered 91.

An incomplete list of Americans in the camp include Charles Gibson of Lawton, Mich.; Stanley L. Fragge of Mankato, Minn.; Clifford J. Hacks of Wauwatosa, Wis.; Manley E. Dotson of Milbank, S. D.; Paul C. Miller of Lincoln, Neb.; Mervin G. Danielson of Lehigh, Ia.; Charles L. Victor, 7230 S. Peoria st., Chicago, Ill.; J. T. Alden, Webster Grove, Mo.; B. U. Bolton of Council Bluffs, Ia.; G. Cherry Queen

Patricia Waldron, named cherry queen, holds the pies she didn't have to bake to win her title.

A blue eyed brunette, Miss Patricia Waldron, 5959 Kenmore av., was chosen national cherry queen victory girl yesterday at the 14th annual Washington's birthday celebration of the National Hatchet club in the Morrison hotel. She is 19 and weighs 125 pounds. She attended Northwestern university, and she hopes to be a model.

Nobody knows whether she can bake a cherry pie, because for the last two years, since cherries aren't available for civilian use, the ability to turn out a good pie is no longer a rule of the contest.

Patricia won over a field of 150 photographs, according to Willard M. Rutzen, president of the Hatchet club. Approximately 40 cherry packers, growers, and canners attended the cherry luncheon yesterday.

GERMANS TAKE BOYS AND GIRLS FOR WAR DUTIES

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP).—The Germans conscripted some of their school children today—boys to dig trenches and fight and girls for auxiliary services as their military commentators on the German radio warned that a Russian frontal assault on Berlin was imminent.

The German official news agency DNB announced that the German equivalent of Boy and Girl Scouts had been taken out of school for war service. The Bund Deutscher Maedel [Hitler's girls' organization] has been "split up in small units which will be employed wherever necessary—in signal units or supply depots or nursing services—wherever gauleiters [provincial governors] order," the agency said.

"While boys have been called up for digging defenses and are being trained for volkssturm [people's army] in order to be ready for any eventuality, these girl units will be responsible for preparing food, nursing sick boys and other duties," said DNB. "For the time of service girls need not attend schools."

The military commentator for the Transocean news agency said Russian preparations for a frontal assault on Berlin from the Oder river, less than 40 miles away, "are completed."

YANKS IN ITALY MAKE NEW GAIN OF 1,000 YARDS

ROME, Italy, Feb. 22 (AP).—American 5th army troops, exploiting a surprise assault that recaptured Monte Belvedere 30 miles southwest of Bologna, gained up to 1,000 yards in a new local attack today against stiffening German resistance. The Americans pushed forward just east of the 3,500 foot peak, which they first won and then lost last November to the Germans.

CHICAGO NAVAL VETERAN DIES IN PACIFIC GALE

PETTY OFFICER JOHN F. SEGO, 20, was killed last Dec. 18 in a typhoon in the South Pacific, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luke Sego, 10948 S. Troy st., were notified yesterday. Petty Officer Sego had been in naval service for 28 months. He attended Morgan Park High school. Besides his parents, he is survived by two sisters. Memorial services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow at St. Christina's church.

SGT. EDWARD JALOVEC, 27, has been missing in action in France since Jan. 17, his wife, Gertrude, 4218 Winnemac av., a war plant worker, was notified yesterday. Sgt. Jalovec has been in service since 1940. He has four brothers, three in service. His wife undertook war work to hasten American victory in the world conflict and speed her husband's return.

LT. RAYMOND E. SMITH, 21, a Thunderbolt pilot reported missing since Jan. 2, is a prisoner of war in Germany, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Smith, 1513 Monroe st., Waukegan, learned yesterday. Lt. Smith is a graduate of Waukegan Township High school. A veteran of more than 42 missions, he has been awarded the air medal.

LT. ARNOLD McGRATH, 44, formerly a clerk in the circulation department of THE TRIBUNE, was killed in action in the Southwest Pacific last month, his aunt, Mrs. W. B. Henderson, 1057 Columbia av., has been notified. His mother, widow of John T. McGrath, former assistant postmaster in Chicago, resides with a daughter, Mrs. Fred Hall, in Glendale, Cal. Lt. McGrath, who joined the army immediately after the attack on Pearl Harbor, was a graduate of the University of Notre Dame.

Tokyo Names New Chiefs for Military Districts

[BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

A shakeup in the Japanese war ministry was reported yesterday by the Tokyo radio. The war ministry, Tokyo said, named new chiefs for the military affairs departments of the Tohoku, Tokai, and northern military districts, Nagoya arsenal, and Osaka military school. Maj. Gen. Nobusta Yamunaa was appointed head of the Nagoya arsenal. Maj. Gen. Noguasa Ono was made director of the Osaka school.

U. S. CASUALTIES REACH 801,162; UP 100,000 IN MONTH

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22 (AP).—Army and navy casualties since Pearl Harbor have reached 801,162, the two services reported today.

Secretary of War Stimson set army casualties at 711,497 on the basis of reports thru Feb. 14. The navy reported its losses as 89,665.

The new total represented an increase of 18,982 over the previous week's report and a rise of about 100,000 in the last month.

A breakdown on army casualties as reported this week and corresponding figures for last week: Killed, 138,723 and 135,510; wounded, 420,465 and 408,553; prisoners, 60,086 and 58,556; missing, 92,223 and 90,723. Stimson said 207,328 of the wounded had returned to duty.

'IKE' INSPECTS BUSY WAR PORT OF CHERBOURG

WITH THE ALLIED COMMAND IN NORMANDY, Feb. 22 (AP).—The once shattered port of Cherbourg, where American soldiers now are handling tons of supplies every minute for the allied armies on the western front, was inspected yesterday by Gen. Eisenhower.

The port has been in operation since July 10. Specialists installed warehouses, cranes, and quays, poured thousands of yards of concrete for open air storage dumps, and repaired oil storage tanks so that now Cherbourg has a port capacity far greater than in peace time. Antwerp and other ports have eased the strain, but thousands of G. I.'s still work all-night shifts in Cherbourg. Maj. Gen. Henry S. Aurand is Normandy base section commander. [Aurand in 1944 was commanding general of the 6th service command at Fort Sheridan.]

Eisenhower spoke to a score of wounded soldiers on a hospital ship. They were bound for England for further treatment. Some would go home. Accompanied by Lt. Gen. Lear, deputy European theater commander, Eisenhower talked with many convalescing battle casualties in general hospitals.

Yank Sees Mount Fuji; Wants His Money Back

NEAR TOKYO, Feb. 17 [Delayed] (AP).—Lt. Ray Larsen, Minneapolis, Minn., was one of the carrier pilots who flew over Tokyo today. "Those beautiful tourist pictures of Mount Fuji are misleading," he said. "I saw Mount Fuji today, perhaps from the back side, and it wasn't nearly so enticing as the photos. I want my money back."

45 Leave Here to Start WAC Hospital Training

Forty-five women, all from Illinois and the majority from Chicago, made up the first WAC hospital units recruited here in the current campaign to leave for basic training at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga. They received a send-off yesterday in ceremonies at the Illinois WAC recruiting headquarters, 166 W. Van Buren.

RELATES ATTACK ON UNGUARDED MERCHANT SHIPS

Yank on Gripsholm Tells of Atlantic Losses.

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—A merchant seaman repatriated on the Gripsholm said today that British escort ships abandoned a Murmansk-bound convoy in the North Atlantic in July, 1942, and that the Germans "had their pickings" of the 38 merchant vessels.

The seaman, Walter Stankiewicz, 28, of Baltimore, Md., said he had been on the freighter Carlton, which Berlin and Vichy identified at the time as the last of 38 ships Berlin said were sunk in the convoy.

Stankiewicz put the number sunk at 34, including the 5,127 ton Carlton.

Publication Allowed.

United States and British navy public relations officers in New York and Washington offered no objection to publication of his story but said they could not vouch for its authenticity.

Stankiewicz said the convoy was attacked a few days before July 4 by submarines, on July 4 by 24 torpedo bombers, and again on July 5 by submarines.

Just before the first attack, he said, the British admiral in charge of some 14 destroyers, six Corvettes, four heavy cruisers, and several small boats ordered the escort to leave the convoy, telling the merchant ships they would have to make their own way to port.

Picked Up by Nazis.

Stankiewicz said he understood the British ships left to engage in battle with German warships and that the battleships Scharnhorst and the Gneisenau lured them away.

He said he was picked up by a German torpedo plane whose navigation officer showed him charts indicating the exact position of each ship in the convoy and told him "how they worked it to determine just where the convoy was."

Another seaman, George Allen Riggins of Norfolk, Va., who said he scrambled aboard the plane with Stankiewicz, said the torpedo planes went over the convoy in groups of six and that "you could hear them attacking ships on the horizon."

No information about the convoy's losses has been announced by allied sources.

Passengers Stay Aboard.

None of the Gripsholm's civilian passengers was permitted to leave the ship this morning. By tonight 145 had disembarked hours after the motorship docked at Jersey City, N. J., across the Hudson river from New York.

"Screening" of the passengers by customs and immigration officials and the federal bureau of investigation was unusually protracted because most of the repatriates, predominantly from Poland and Greece, had been out of the United States for as long as 25 years and were unknown in the communities where they planned to settle.

Nonsense, Says Britons.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP).—An American merchant seaman's story that British escort ships abandoned a Murmansk bound convoy in July, 1943, was ignored officially by the admiralty tonight but unofficially naval officers described it as "arrant nonsense."

The rigid admiralty policy is never to confirm nor deny unofficial reports of convoy operations.

However, officers noted informally that the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, which Seaman Walter Stankiewicz of Baltimore said "lured" the escort vessels away, actually were out of action at the time.

In a case like that, the practice when attacked has been to disperse the convoy while escort vessels try to break up the attack, officers said. This occurred on that occasion, it was said, and it was unlikely one merchant ship would know what was happening elsewhere in efforts to evade and break up the attack.

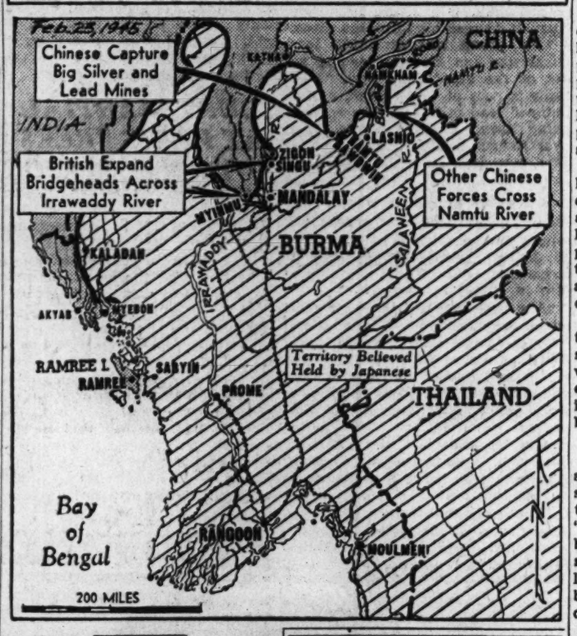
Chinese Capture Rich Lead Mines



Rich War Source

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 22 (AP).—Chinese troops under Lt. Gen. Sultan have captured the Bawdwin silver and lead mines 22 miles northwest of Lashio in Burma, depriving the Japanese of lead production sufficient to supply their whole war machine.

The mines, among the richest in the east, were captured intact yesterday after the Japanese had put up only brief resistance a few miles to the north. The Chinese units drove on and captured Namtu, which is on a branch railroad to Lashio. Other Chinese forces, which have been pushing down the old Burma road toward Lashio with the aid of American tank units, were reported across the Namtu river and within less than 25 miles of Lashio.

British troops in central Burma, only 120 miles from the Chinese-American forces driving down from the northeast, enlarged their bridgeheads over the Irrawaddy river both north and southwest of Mandalay.

ASKS AUSTRALIA TO PUT TROOPS IN MALAYA FIGHT

CANBERRA, Australia, Feb. 22 (AP). — Robert Menzies, opposition leader, said in the house of representatives today that Australian troops should be fighting with other forces for the relief of Malaya and Singapore, particularly since many Australians were prisoners there.

"I see no reason why our armies should not be engaged in the major task of completing the far eastern war," he said, adding that he believed the question of how Australian forces should be based was not only strategic but political.

Prime Minister Curtin agreed that the allocation of such forces in the first instance was political, and that with concurrence of other allied governments, command of the Southwest Pacific had been given to Gen. MacArthur.

"I am not prepared to consider any change in the use of Australian forces," he said, "unless with the same concurrence of these governments."

HEART ATTACK HELD CAUSE OF WOMAN'S DEATH

A coroner's physician reported yesterday that a heart attack caused the death of Mrs. Edna Mandel, 51, who was found in a room in her apartment at 3400 Lake Shore dr. She was the wife of Eli Mandel, a chemical engineer. He told the police his wife locked herself in her bedroom Wednesday night and refused to answer him when he tried to enter the room. After midnight he heard a thump, summoned help, and found his wife's body after the door was removed from the hinges. A brother-in-law, Dr. Robert Mandel, said she had been treated for a cardiac disease.

DRILLERS DENY ILLINOIS MIGHT BE A DUST BOWL

Recent contentions that Illinois might become a dust bowl thru depletion of its ground water supply were condemned as false and "detrimental to the future welfare and progress of Illinois" by unanimous vote at the annual meeting yesterday of the Illinois Water Well Drillers association in the Morrison hotel.

In a resolution offered by William A. McEllhiney, newly elected president, the association charged reports of a depleted ground water supply were "contrary to recognized geological and hydrological facts" and condemned such reports for driving away industry from Illinois and hampering the post-war plans of industries already located in the state.

McEllhiney directly attacked the contention of Livingston E. Osborne, director of the state department of conservation, that the water table of Illinois has been steadily lowered by heavy drains for commercial uses.

J. T. Anderson, Morris, was elected vice president; Henry Woollen, Wapella, secretary; C. F. Stiegman, Paxton, treasurer; and L. F. Swanson, retiring president, was named a director.

G. O. P. SUBURBS DEMAND A PLACE ON COURT TICKET

Reports that a seventh $15,000 a year judicial vacancy might be created coincided yesterday with a drive by the heavily Republican suburban areas for one of the G. O. P. places on the coalition ticket to be presented to voters in Cook county June 4.

Circuit Judge David F. Matchett, 78 years old and 30 years on the bench, was asked whether he intends to run for another six-year term.

"I don't really know," he said. "If the time comes when the convention wants me to run, I'll make my decision."

Gov. Green this week received a delegation representing the "country towns" of Cook county and heard requests for greater recognition, including one of the bench vacancies. He is said to have agreed that the territory is entitled to a place, but to have deferred a final decision.

Leading suburban candidates are Edwin A. Robson of Wilmette, Lew A. Wescott of Oak Park, and Charles O. Rundall of Evanston.

A group of the party officials will decide today whether to call a caucus of the township committeemen or to await further developments.

140 RETURNED, WOUNDED YANKS ARE DECORATED

BY CHARLES GOTTHART.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 22.—Home from Nazi prison camps in the first repatriation of Americans since the battle of the Belgian bulge, 140 wounded and disabled soldiers today received awards ranging from Purple Hearts to silver stars.

They included a Flying Fortress ball turret gunner from Milwaukee, Wis., Tech. Sgt. Mike Szenyck, who received the silver and air medal with three oak leaf clusters for heroism before being shot down over Germany in July, 1943, and a fellow midwesterner, Pvt. Clifford W. Olerich, infantryman from Flint, Mich., who received a silver star.

Eleven Chicago soldiers, among the 1,209 military and civilian repatriates brought here yesterday on the exchange liner Gripsholm, were in the audience at Halloran General hospital when the awards were made.

Has Honeymoon Prospects.

One of them, Lt. Louis Green, 24, of 3242 Division st., had consulted his bride Jeanette, over the prospects of a real honeymoon, and reported after telephoning Chicago that the prospects seemed good. Likewise good, he said, were his prospects of continuing his law studies at Northwestern university.

A bombardier with 30 missions to his credit, Lt. Green was brought down over the Alps 14 months ago after three of his crew members had been killed in the air. The explosion of an enemy shell cost him the sight of his left eye and he has asked for surgical treatment at Gardiner General hospital, Chicago.

Another Chicagoan is Pvt. Anthony Scafidi, 19, of 1228 Larrabee st., who was captured after being wounded in the invasion of southern France on Sept. 16, 1944, ironically his brother Phillip's 10th birthday.

Nurnberg Plastered.

Scafidi, liberated last month from a Nazi prison camp near Nurnberg, said his most vivid recollection of the war was the evidence of the "terrific plastering" of Nurnberg by American bombers which he observed while en route to Switzerland. He had heard and cheered the bombers on their daily raiding trips over his prison camps.

Confirming reports by others, he said the German prison fare was inadequate and that proper nourishment would have been impossible without the steady arrival of American Red Cross food packages. By telephone his mother promised him all the ravioli he could eat when he arrives home.

Pvt. Theodore Czapala, 25, another Chicagoan, of 1347 N. Rockwell st., said the "Jerries" had taken great pains to dig trenches for protection against American bombers flying over his "Stalag" in upper Silesia. He was wounded in the Italian campaign and spent seven months in enemy hospitals before being exchanged for an enemy prisoner also determined to be unfit for further combat.

Many on Crutches.

During the presentation ceremony, the soldiers, many on crutches awaiting artificial legs and many with empty sleeves or patches over their eyes, demonstrated that they were still soldiers in the American tradition, emitting whistles and wolf calls at the appearance of each pretty girl walking into the hospital auditorium.

The awards, presented by Brig. Gen. R. G. De Voe, commanding the hospital, included: silver star, to Sgt. Bill E. Radican, Mount Vernon, Tex., and Pvt. Guy R. Exon, Bay Field, Colo.; distinguished flying cross with clusters, to 1st Lt. Joseph W. Wright, Spokane, Wash.; 2d Lt. Ross B. Lehman, Pottsville, Pa.; Staff Sergeants Roland D. Gangweer, Bethlehem, Pa., William C. Rasnake, Duty, Va., and August Ullrich, Brooklyn, and bronze star medal to Pvt. 1st Class Joseph Kolesar Jr., War, W. Va.

The repatriated soldiers were given all of their back pay and those medically cleared were given 24 hour passes.

JURY ACQUITS TEXAS WOMAN IN BABY KIDNAPING

Child's Parents Drop Divorce Plans.

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 22 [Special]. — All was sweetness and harmony today among the principals in the Milly McGill kidnaping case.

Mrs. Melba Branson, 19, accused of kidnaping the two months old child, was found not guilty by a Criminal District court jury and the estranged parents of the child, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McGill, said they had become reconciled and would keep Milly instead of giving her away in adoption.

Completing the harmony picture, Mrs. Branson and her mother, Mrs. O. H. Fincher, invited the McGills to stay at the Fincher home until they find a place to live. Mrs. McGill had been staying there during the trial.

After her acquittal, women in the courtroom crowded about Mrs. Branson. An elderly woman with tears in her eyes said, "We were praying for you."

Leaves Carrying Baby.

A few minutes later Mrs. Branson left the courthouse with her husband, Lt. C. E. Branson, an army air force instructor, and Mrs. McGill. Mrs. Branson was carrying Milly.

Soon afterwards the McGills met in an attorney's office and posed for photographers.

"We'll dismiss my divorce petition and try it again," Mrs. McGill said. McGill nodded affirmatively, his arm around his wife and baby.

Dependency Suit on File.

District Atty. Al Clyde, who prosecuted the kidnaping charge and filed a suit to have Milly declared a dependent, cast the only shadow over the scene. "We're still going to prosecute that dependency suit," he said. A hearing has been set for March 1.

Mrs. Branson took the baby from Mrs. McGill's hotel room last Jan. 9 on the pretext of showing her to a friend. The baby was found abandoned the next day in a bus station in San Antonio, 200 miles away, with a note pinned on a blanket giving the mother's address. Mrs. Branson was arrested the following week.

Mrs. McGill testified against Mrs. Branson before a grand jury, but later said she was going to give the baby to Mrs. Branson for adoption. McGill opposed that step, tho he said he would not contest his wife's divorce action.

Des Plaines Flyer Killed in Texas Bomber Crash

Dallas, Tex., Feb. 22 (AP).—Names of three crewmen whose bodies were recovered from a bomber which crashed in the flooded bottom lands of the Trinity river were released today by the 5th ferrying command at Love field here. Included was Lt. Frederick Donald Gaulke, Des Plaines, Ill.

VIOLENCE REPORTED AS UAW OPENS DRIVE TO TAKE 'RED' UNION

Under police surveillance after an attempted shooting, the United Automobile, Aircraft, and Agricultural Implement Workers' union formally began a drive last night to take over the membership of the United Farm Equipment and Metal Workers' union in two plants of the International Harvester company.

Both unions are affiliates of the Congress of Industrial Organizations. The UAW charges that the UFE is communist controled, and has failed properly to represent its members. Already, it is reported, the UAW has won over more than 6,000 UFE men in the two Chicago Harverster plants. The UFE is resisting what it calls the raiding tactics of the more powerful UAW.

About 100 key UFE men attended a meeting at 2244 W. 23d pl. earlier in the day and heard Pat Greathouse, a UAW field agent, outline plans to take over their membership. Another meeting was held last night, altho four carloads of men sought to stop it. One worker told police he was fired upon, another said he was thrown out of a near-by saloon by anti-UAW men. Two squads of police went to the scene and the meeting continued uninterrupted, altho only 50 attended.

Some Jamaican Patients Released from Hospital

The number of Jamaican patients in County hospital dropped to 40 yesterday when several were released and no new cases were admitted. The men, brought to this county to do war work in two food plants, are temporarily housed in the Carver hotel, 2969 Vernon av., where an epidemic of mumps, chicken pox, and pneumonia developed early this week. Sanitary conditions there were corrected by board of health inspectors.

TRIBUNE'S TWO MEDALS GIVEN N.U. NAVY GRADS

Roger W. Friskey, 2410 Harrison st., Evanston, received THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's gold medal for military efficiency and scholastic achievement at ceremonies in Scott hall, Northwestern university, yesterday preceding the commissioning of 120 navy V-12 and R. O. T. C. students. Charles C. Griffin, Salina, Kas., received THE TRIBUNE's silver medal.

Rear Adm. Arthur S. Carpender, commandant of the 9th naval district, was the speaker and President Franklyn Bliss Snyder delivered the charge to the graduating class at the convocation. Capt. Robert A. Hall, commanding officer of the naval units at Northwestern, administered the oath to 117 ensigns and three second lieutenants in the marine corps.

Friskey Wins Three Top Awards.

Friskey received the bulk of special awards at the morning ceremonies. In addition to the Tribune medal he was presented with the navy R. O. T. C. faculty sword for officer aptitude, discipline, and scholastic achievement. He also was given the fleet reserve association cup for outstanding leadership.

Austin Smith, past commander of the Evanston American Legion post, presented the Legion medal for scholastic achievement in the first three years of the term to Joseph C. White of Iron Mountain, Mich.

Chicagoan Gets Rifle Trophy.

Rear Adm. Carpender presented the rifle trophy to Donald V. Hannibal, 1464 Hollywood av., Chicago, and the pistol trophy to William F. Beckman, Sioux City, Ia., for individual excellence in the year. Carpender also presented to Sidney A. Shane, Evansville, Ind., the navy department cup for rating first in scholastic achievement. He was the only student of the class to gain straight "As."

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up nights. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

TRIBUNE MAN'S DAILY STORY OF RAID ON TOKYO

Flyers Amazed by Lack of Opposition.

"Don't Jump Overboard."

Everywhere you hear speculation on the best spot to be in if a bomb or a torpedo hits. Veterans of sunken carriers add their bit by describing battle damage they have seen. Division heads call meetings to issue do's and don'ts.

"If we are hit don't jump over board—no big flat-top has ever been sunk except by our own gunfire."

Flash gear [protective clothing] is passed around elbow length gloves a sort of monk's hood, an eye flap to cover the face below the goggles, and tubes of flash cream, all to guard against the blowtorch flames of bomb blasts which, the crew tells you, even follow the ventilation ducts into remote corners. Don't sneer at flash gear, you are told needlessly.

In the afternoon the somberness deepens suddenly to the unexpected strains of the church call which comes over the loudspeakers. You connect this with the coming battle until you remember it is Ash Wednesday.

On the flight deck a knot of sailors commiserates with the crew and flyers of a carrier to port which is making its maiden combat appearance.

"I'll bet they are feeling anxious over there," a young sailor says. "Hell, ain't we all?" nother explodes, and the laughs pop like safety valves.

We sailed out of perpetual tropical warmth and now it is getting colder hourly.

Just before dark we are alerted to take aboard a new carrier's planes. Every one is mystified until the captain explains over the squawk-box [intercommunication system] that she's had a fire that fouled up her flight deck and it was feared she could not get her planes in before dark. But she's cleared away now.

"That's a real skipper," you hear from a passing sailor. You know what he means. You've been with too many transports whose skippers fail to realize that nimble young minds chafe under unsatisfied curiosity. Our captain is largely responsible for the ship's soaring morale.

SECOND DAY

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCE, nearing Tokyo, Feb. 15 [Delayed].—This is the eve of the Pacific war's most audacious stroke—a monstrous, fast carrier raid on Tokyo.

Some one observes that we have tired of raising hell on the Nips' front porch and now we're going into the vestibule.

Waiting, on the sea as well as on land, is the hardest part of the war. "Just before the battle, mother, I am thinking most of you." The guy who wrote the song knew his combat psychology, you reflect, as you see serious faced lads humped over their air mail kits in the crew's quarters, in ward rooms, on the hangar deck, and in the ready rooms. The censors are in for some solemn reading, you think.

Outwardly the flat top's life goes on as usual, but you detect the general suspense by many little signs. The casual conversation has a strained quality, and it seems always to turn to Tokyo.

Thoughts Are Trivial.

Your own thoughts stray to trivial things, but then tomorrow's portent plops heavily in their midst and back comes the old feeling you used to have while waiting for dad to come home after you'd been caught mischief-making. Tomorrow resides in your stomach like an undigested meal.

A round of the ready rooms helps to liquidate your sense of doom. Here are the boys who will find out first what we've taken on. It's the first combat for most of them.

A squadron leader points to a thick cluster of red dots on an aerial map of Tokyo.

"There are so and so many anti-aircraft positions here," he says. There are low descending whistles thruout the ready room. "That's right at our target," the flyer next to you breathes, and you give silent thanks for the rule prohibiting war correspondents from making combat flights.

You can't interpret the odd geometrics of the photograph, but you recall the words of the high naval official speaking of the Tokyo strike: "There are so many juicy targets it just makes your mouth water. It's like sitting down to a table filled with more good things than you could possibly eat."

A swing topside brings you close under the leaden clouds that spit cold rain. A raw gale whips tiny windrows of water over the sleek flight deck. The crews of a flight deck anti-aircraft gun sponson, somewhat reminiscent of an orchestra pit, look individually like men from Mars in their rain parkas and arctic masks.

"Milestone of History."

Coveys of our planes flick in and out of cloud festoons. From the wide landing circle that vanishes in cold mists come planes that hover like hawks just before they plop aboard our heaving stern. Flat top flyers have to be perfect—they love this weather. That's what the skipper said, and he ought to know, he's a flat top pilot himself.

Scuttlebutt has it that planes of our group during the day sank one Jap picket boat and shot down one Betty. It that's true the Japs probably know we're coming. It isn't a nice thought.

The captain's voice fills the ship with a message from our task force commander: "Tomorrow will be remembered as a milestone of history. Our friends and loved ones back home have toiled long and faithfully to give us this opportunity to smite the enemy in his homeland. Make every bullet, bomb, and rocket speed straight to its mark. Good luck to all hands and may God be with us."

The skipper adds his postscript: "If you get the breaks you'll be lucky. Let's work hard and make our own breaks. Good luck and good hunting."

THIRD DAY

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCE, off Tokyo, Feb. 16 [Delayed].—It couldn't happen—but it did. We slipped almost to within 300 miles of the Jap homeland undetected this morning, sent wave on wave of carrier based fighters and bombers over Tokyo, smashed planes and air fields and aircraft factories the live long day, amid feeble resistance and with astoundingly few casualties, and are virtually intact for a continuation of the raid tomorrow.

It is quite evident our visit caught the Nips flat-footed. Our first strike took off soon after dawn, and within a short time the interplane radios told us they were over their targets. Yet many minutes passed before radio Tokyo, which had been broadcasting a routine program in Japanese, gave off verbal signs of panic, then lapsed into prolonged silence.

All Planes Return.

All our planes in the initial wave returned intact after circling Tokyo and its environs for some three hours, encountering moderate anti-aircraft fire and almost no air interception. They reported the city was under a low cloudy blanket that greatly hampered target recognition.

This carrier was only a fractional part of one task force. Its targets were obscure in the early stages of the strike because of the low overcast. Most of our pilots, in the opening sweep, were compelled by circumstances to seek targets of opportunity. Most of this unit upon finding poor visibility over their assigned objectives roved at will over Tokyo bay, attacking shipping.

"It was unbelievable," said Lt. John Davis of Lackawanna, N. Y. "There we were cutting figure eights in one of Japan's main harbors, and we never saw an enemy plane. Later, in an escort sortie over Hamamatsu air field, we saw at least 200 Jap planes on the ground but we couldn't stop to spoil them."

Profitable Hunting.

By a stroke of ill fortune two members of our flat-top's first sweep got in some profitable hunting. They were Lt. [j. g.] Eldridge Courrege, 23, of New Ibera, La., and Lt. Ned W. Langdon of Sherwood, O.

"Right after the take-off, we couldn't find our own formation in the thick weather," Courrege said. "We joined up with another carrier's formation which went to a target far north of Tokyo, away off our assigned beat. On the way out we spotted a Nip picket boat but didn't have time to give to it. We gave its location to some destroyers, which hustled over and shelled it.

"Beyond Tokyo we saw at least 50 enemy Zekes and Vals [dive bombers] but most of them gave us wide berth. I saw one Nip fighter and started after him. He turned inside of me and maneuvered onto my tail, but Ned got him before he could do me dirt. Later I dove on a fighter only 50 feet off the ground and watched him crash."

Sees 75 Jap Planes.

Lt. Langdon estimated he saw at least 75 Jap fighters on this swing and said most of them were shot down by our pilots.

"They were falling like stars," was the way he put it.

Anti-aircraft fire was light, he said. Langdon said he watched members of his group set fire to five or six grounded enemy planes and that en route back to the carrier one member of the flight shot down a twin engined Jap bomber.

Most of the returning pilots aired their cockiness with perfect landings, but a few, their heads still in the clouds after the unpremeditated safe returns, cut involuntary didoes that kept crews hopping and spectators aghast.

Comes Down Harmlessly.

One fighter gunned his engine after the arresting gear engaged, but gave up to end a losing tu of war and sat down harmlessly amid cheers from the edge of the flight deck. The mischances of a few others were canceled out by the nimble wits and actions of the carrier crew.

"That number three barrier man is a genius," blurted an air officer. "He's yanked many a pilot back from Kingdom Come. This deck crew would make any air group look good."

Japs Never Show Up.

As we steamed up and down a few score miles off the Honshu coast only one or two enemy aircraft leaked thru the heavy cloud cover and tight defense, only to be shot down without inflicting damage. Seasoned veterans of previous carrier strikes attributed the paucity of enemy visits principally to the poor visibility. They explained that shore targets can be located even in foul weather by the aid of land marks, whereas ships represent uncoördinated pin points on the vas' ocean surface.

Stay at Battle Stations.

Tenseness on board built up to an early evening climax, but relaxed when darkness virtually obviated any chance of an enemy visit. All hands and ships' cooks remained at battle stations thruout most of the day and meals devolved into catch as catch can affairs. But there was no grumbling. All attention was focused on getting the planes off, back aboard, refueled, and rearmed and off again.

"Well done," said both skippers. The ship chaplain's regular 9 o'clock recitation of the Lord's prayer seemed to have a new fervence tonight. Every pilot this carrier sent off today is still alive and well. There were some operational accidents, but all pilots and crewmen were picked up by the ubiquitous "tin cans," [destroyers] which are not only greyhounds but the St. Bernards of the sea.

"I'll take your word for it! You don't have to prove to me how much water a dripping faucet wastes!"

FOURTH DAY

WITH ADM. MITSCHER'S CARRIER FORCE, off Tokyo, Feb. 17 [Delayed].—History's greatest aircraft carrier raid against Japan's capital ended today behind a mammoth question mark despite its spectacular success. The big question in everybody's mind, is where are the Japs?

Yesterday morning we steamed boldly up to within a few hundred miles or so of the enemy's seat of government, caught him completely by surprise, and with carrier based planes established absolute air superiority over his land aircraft. Then we withdrew as per plan with our entire huge striking force intact.

Most of the Japs' much vaunted reserve air force squatted supinely on their numerous big air fields to be dispoiled by our marauding naval flyers. Of the Jap naval units that survived the debacle of the battle of Leyte gulf there was scarcely a sign.

Many Questions Asked.

Tonight as our unscathed big flat tops and support craft plow thru the dark, cold waters we are all trying vainly to assess the dizzying implications of the one-sided battle. So completely unilateral were the results that most of us up to the last moment suspected an enemy trick that would turn the tide, at least slightly, and thus solve some of the enigmas that now confront us.

Why did the Japs not send their planes up to meet ours in force?

Why were our flyers able to destroy hundreds of Nip aircraft on the ground with only token interference?

Is the enemy air arm crippled by a lack of fuel, loss of its trained pilots, engine or other vital shortages?

Deal Staggering Blow.

Did he suppose our blows against the homeland were so far in the future that home defense was not yet imperative?

Has internal dissension scattered leadership and teamwork?

Perhaps our top leaders know the answers. If so, they haven't told us, and so in their early hours of the Tokyo raids' aftermath speculation goes happily unconfirmed.

All that seems certain is that the Pacific enemy has been dealt a staggering psychological blow, more humiliating and portentous than our own defeat at Pearl Harbor. With their own eyes Tokyo's millions have seen devastation visited on their sanctums by a navy their leaders had sunk several times over.

Opposition More Feeble.

This ship's air men resumed their raiding this morning with the expectation of stiffening defenses. They returned with the bewildering news that opposition was even more feeble today than yesterday.

"As I circled Tokyo for more than three hours I kept asking myself if the Jap flyers had turned in their suits," one division leader said.

"It was like cruising up and down the coast of California," another reported. "The only thing lacking was a radio beam."

"I'm going to ask for a navy cross for the 25 Jap planes I'd have got if they'd been there," cracked a third.

Chicagoan's Story.

One incredible tale was brought back by Lt. [j. g.] Paul R. Gary, 25, of 10261 Avenue G, Chicago, whose wife, Grace, is living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Kaufmann, 6049 S. Albany av.

"I was on a special mission 70 miles up the coast from Cape Najima," Gary said. "I flew low over thousands of civilians, probably farmers and fishermen. They not only didn't take cover—many of them actually waved at me. I dropped my belly tank to make more speed and was in the lead of my two wingmen. Maybe they thought I was being chased by Japs."

Light anti-aircraft fire was the only opposition Gary encountered.

Lt. Strother Kipp, 25, former Evanstonian, now living near Los Angeles, bagged his third Jap plane.

"My group was at 18,000 feet when five Jap fighters jumped us out of the sun," Kipp said. "One made a pass at me, missed, and I pumped lead in his tail. He burned going down." Kipp got his first two over Rabaul last year. He said the Japs nowadays seem loath to close in.

Another Chicagoan Scores.

Lt. [j. g.] Henry H. Olek, 25, whose mother, Helen, lives at 2938 W. 38th pl., Chicago, bagged one of these five while flying wing position in Kipp's formation.

"We were over Tateyama air field when they hopped us," Olek said. "My guy came in at 5 o'clock position and nicked my left wing flat. He passed, zoomed in front of me, and did a slow roll. I pulled up after him, got h in my sights and poured on the coal. The plane caught fire and I saw the pilot bail out. Hell, if I'd known my division was 4,000 feet below I could have got another one."

A former Campbellsburg, Ind., high school teacher accounted for the third one. He is Lt. Comdr. Hugh Nicholson, 32 l the navy since 1938, and former flyer aboard the old Yorktown.

"This bird made a run on me and peeled," he said. "I turned left and followed him down. He was still smoking when he hit."

Despite his long experience today's plane was Nicholson's first, but he was modest about it. "Probably some student checking out," he said. He flew over Tokyo yesterday but couldn't see it for the clouds.

Flying over the big Atsugi air field near Tokyo, Lt. [j. g.] John Davis, 23, Lackawanna, N. Y., and his division strafed 100 twin engined bombers and 60 single motor planes on the ground, destroying many of them. Twenty miles south of Cape Najima they strafed and set fire to a 2,500 ton freighter. On this run a Jap bullet glanced off Davis' engine cowling and struck his windshield.

"I ducked like a Hellidiver," he admitted. Davis said he wasn't particularly scared on his first combat flight yesterday. "It was just like before a football game," he said. "I felt sort of keyed up. The instant my wheels left the deck I was at ease."

Davis' squadron skipper, Lt. Comdr. Marshall Beebe, Anaheim, Cal., annexed one Nip plane on the way out today and another later in the afternoon. He also destroyed a parked, two engine bomber on Hamamatsu air field.

Beebe's assistant wingman, Lt. [j. g.] Dave Crist, 23, of 621 Blaine av., Elkhart, Ind., admitted he was plenty scared on his first combat fight. He told of a big flak burst that buffeted his plane and blew the cowling from Beebe's.

COURT MARTIAL AT PARIS FREES YANK MAJOR

PARIS, Feb. 22 (AP).—A United States court martial today acquitted Maj. Walter H. Marlin, commanding officer of the 716th railway battalion, of a charge of neglect of duty in connection with the looting of railway supplies by members of his battalion.

The prosecutor argued that those responsible for placing Marlin in a situation he was incapable of handling probably were more guilty than the officer himself, and urged an inquiry on a higher level.

Marlin had testified that he entered the army after offering his services in a letter and being notified by return mail that he would be commissioned a major.

SMOKE VICTIM REVIVED.

Francis Burde, 45, was revived yesterday after he had been overcome by smoke in a fire in his second floor flat at 2418 Clybourn av.

FLAILING FISTS ANSWER 'LIAR' CHARGE IN HOUSE

Hook Slurs Rankin and the Battle's On!

manded to be heard. He inquired: "When one member of the house so far forgets himself as to use either the language quoted or the language which the gentleman himself says he used, I would like to know whether it is in order for this house to enforce some discipline, or whether the mere striking of the outrageous language from the record is all that is going to occur today?"

"That is a matter for the house to determine by either a motion or resolution," replied Ramspeck.

Told to Shut Up, Sit Down.

Hook again attempted to speak and Rankin roared:

"The member from Michigan must keep his seat the rest of the day and keep his mouth shut, under the rules of the house."

Ramspeck agreed this was the case and ordered Hook to take his seat. Both opponents remained on the floor. Rankin, arising later to speak on the rivers and harbors bill, was accorded an ovation from both sides of the chamber.

The stage was set for the Rankin-Hook encounter while Rep. Hoffman was speaking about the army's action in letting down the bars against Communists in security positions in the war department.

Hoffman said it was well known that Secretary of War Stimson was under the domination of Justice Frankfurter of the Supreme court and suggested the new policy may have been brought about by Frankfurter, a noted exponent of leftist philosophy.

Red Officers Opposed.

"Some of us are beginning to wonder whether the acceptance of Communists as officers, who can send our sons to death on foreign soil, is due to Frankfurter's influence," he remarked. "If I had my way, congress would pass legislation which would prevent our men in the armed service from obeying any order of any alien born individual who during the last 20 years had been or now is a member of the Communist party. Nor would I permit a single American youth to serve under a Communist or one who believed in the communist doctrine.

"The selective service act was not passed to force men to die in support of the policies of the Communists.

"I wonder who thinks all Americans are going to quit, lay down, and roll over when the CIO or the PAC or the Communists start the fight going to revolutionize our government."

"Proud," Asserts Hook.

Hook interrupted. He said he knew outstanding members of the CIO-PAC and was proud of it.

"I want to call attention to the fact that the real men in the CIO and PAC are doing more to keep down the Communists than any other group in the United States," Hook asserted.

Rankin then joined the debate.

"Of course they are keeping them down because they are tied around their necks, tied up with them, wrapped up with them, holding them down," Rankin told Hook. The debate continued:

Hook—And we hope to hold them down.

Rankin—You will hold them down.

Hook—And if the gentleman from Mississippi will quit his raving and ranting and get down and at least assist the good citizens of the CIO, he would probably be doing a service to this country.

"Down to His Level."

Rankin—Whenever I get down to the gentleman's level as it is reflected down here by this FEPC [fair employment practices committee] and Communist party that he has been mixed up with.

Hook—You are a ... . liar when you say Communist party.

Smith and Cox went into a huddle after the battle with the announced intention of drafting a resolution for submission to the house tomorrow reprimanding Hook or perhaps recommending more severe punishment. It is within the power of the house to expel a member found to have forfeited his right to a seat by misbehavior.

Later Cox and Smith issued a joint statement saying a resolution of expulsion for Hook was too harsh, in their opinion, and that a resolution of censure would be offered. Cox said if this were adopted Hook would be brought to the bar of the house by the sergeant at arms for censure by the speaker.

Cox Tempers Stand.

Tonight, however, Cox further tempered his stand when he told reporters he expected to take the floor tomorrow before any disciplinary action is proposed and offer Hook and Rankin opportunity to make a public apology to the house.

Rep. Powell [D., N. Y.], a new Negro member who is listed in house committee files as pro-Communist, issued a statement later calling for "impeachment or expulsion" of Rankin "as a disgrace to America." Powell said the attack upon Hook by Rankin proves the latter "an American Fascist."

PLAN RIGID BILL TO END PETRILLO RULE OVER RADIO

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—To the accompaniment of musical movies, members of the house interstate and foreign commerce committee today joined with Chairman Paul Porter of the federal communications commission in indorsement of legislation designed to curb the "malicious domination and tyranny" of James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians.

Paul Porter.

The committee indicated it would draft an even stronger bill than the measure passed Jan. 15 by the senate, which makes unlawful any interference with the broadcasting of noncommercial, cultural, or educational programs.

The legislation was initiated after Petrillo ordered the National Broadcasting company to cancel all programs from the National Music camp at Interlochen, Mich., on the ground that the youthful musicians were competing with union musicians.

Navy Band Barred.

Rep. Dondero, [R., Mich.], sponsor of the house bill, gave another instance of Petrillo's "arrogance" which stirred committee indignation. He said the navy had agreed to furnish a band from Dearborn, Mich., for a patriotic parade in his home town, Royal Oak, Mich., when Petrillo stepped in and forbade the navy band to participate. The navy gave in without protest, Dondero said.

Officials of Interlochen, a nonprofit summer school of music affiliated with the University of Michigan, presented their testimony in unusual fashion, setting up a motion picture apparatus in the committee room and giving the lawmakers a 30 minute Interlochen musical movie.

Dr Joseph E. Maddy, president of the Interlochen camp, assailed Petrillo as a "despotic dictator" operating "a $4,000,000 extortion racket."

Urge Protection.

Dondero and Maddy proposed that the legislation be amended not only to prevent Petrillo's blacklisting of musical schools, but to protect from reprisals teacher members of the A. F. of M. who instruct at such schools.

Reference was also made to Petrillo's edict, prohibiting members of the union from teaching at the National Music camp under threat of suspension from the union.

"Under that system he could even ban the Quiz Kids from the air unless their teachers belonged to a union," remarked Rep. Wolverton [R., N. J.]. "He probably feels that he can by-pass congress even if this bill is passed."

Petrillo is Absent.

Chairman Lea [D., Cal.] asked if a representative of Petrillo was present. When there was no answer, Rep. Brown [R., O.] remarked:

"He is adopting the same defiant tone with congress that he used successfully with the President of the United States. He's asking for it and it's about time congress let him have it."

Porter said there was "a twofold evil" in the ban by Petrillo on the Interlochen broadcast.

"If an organization can prevent radio stations from broadcasting a concert by high school students, a precedent is established whereby broadcasts of speeches, forums, conventions, etc., will be prevented," he said. "The second evil is that small stations, dependent upon amateur talent, are injured."

LOW PRESS RATE FOR WORLD NEWS URGED IN SENATE

Called the Basis of Free Exchange.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Sen. McFarland [D., Ariz.], chairman of the interstate commerce subcommittee studying post-war international communications, today urged an international agreement to cut costs of transmitting news to such an extent that all countries will be able to meet the expenses of using world-wide news as a method of promoting world understanding.

Sen. McFarland.

The subcommittee was created recently to study the disposition of 250 million dollars' worth of radio and wire facilities the army and navy have set up around the world and the controversial proposal of a merger of all American international communications.

McFarland in a senate speech lauded efforts of the American press to have a free press plank in the peace treaty. He cited unsuccessful efforts of American foreign correspondents to file stories involving high government policies of other nations and activities of powerful foreign figures.

Overseas "Play" Described.

He said prevention of the dissemination of "important intelligence" hinders molding of accurate public opinion thruout the world. He recalled that for the last three decades the only stories from America which received "play" abroad were those involving gangster killings, murders, sex triangles, and crookedness and intrigue in high places.

"The real basis of this problem for a world-wide free press lies fundamentally in low rates for the transmission of news stories all over the world," he said. "It lies in equal rates for all press users of the same facilities. That is not the situation now and never has been.

"Long before we can make high sounding demands at the peace table for a world-wide free press, we must formulate plans for the creation of a communications policy and a communications enterprise which will adequately represent American interests."

Service Programs Mapped.

The army and the navy, along with the state department and the federal communications commission, are considered to be ahead of congress, which has just begun its study. These organizations reportedly are almost ready to announce their program.

At the same time, private corporations are racing to obtain the upper hand in the merger. It is reported Radio Corporation of America has the inside track, but International Telephone and Telegraph interests also are active. The latter organization controls Mackay radio and commercial cable, which operates across the Atlantic.

The American press interests in free news dissemination were advanced early by Press Wireless, a newcomer in the field of international communications, at a conference Jan. 9 of publishers and press service representatives.

SENATE GROUP APPROVES BILL TO CONTROL JOBS

Penalties Up to 5 Years Among Provisions.

BY PHILIP DODD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—A national job control bill, providing for penalties as high as five years in jail and a $10,000 fine for violation of its provisions, was reported to the senate today by the senate military affairs committee. Debate on the measure is expected to open next week.

The committee's Washington birthday gift to the nation was the result of nearly three weeks labor on the New Deal's "work or jail" bill which had passed the house. The house measure was discarded by the senate committee for the "voluntary" job control bill reported today with amendments providing the penalties.

The bill produced by the committee today would give the war man power commission power to fix ceilings on the number of workers any establishment could employ, regardless of age or sex, and to prohibit or regulate the hiring of new workers. It also would make farm workers subject to military draft if they leave their farm jobs without permission.

Uses Tax Lever.

In industry and other nonagricultural pursuits, penalties under the bill would be one year in jail or a $10,000 fine, or both, for violation of provisions of the bill or of rules to be written by the WMC relating to the bill. Penalties of five years in jail or a $10,000 fine, or both, are provided for violation of the section on farm labor.

The bill also places compulsion on employers by stating that any wages paid for services rendered in violation of the measure or related WMC regulations would be disallowed as deductions for computing taxes or amounts to be recovered under contracts with the government.

The section providing jail sentences and fines for violation of nonagricultural portions of the bill immediately caused a heated disagreement among senators as to whether it applied to employers alone or to both employers and employes. Sen. Austin [R., Vt.], author of the section, told reporters he intended it to apply only to employers.

Denies Austin Interpretation.

But Sen. Ferguson [R., Mich.] asserted in an interview that the penalties could be applied to workers under rules made by the WMC. Ferguson, along with Senators O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], Kilgore [D., W. Va.], Wagner [D., N. Y.], and Ball [R., Minn.], was a sponsor of the bill when it was first offered as a substitute for the "work or jail" bill. He said, however, he was not in favor of the amendments which have since been added.

"I don't favor criminal penalties unless the violations for which they can be invoked are specifically described by law," Ferguson said. "Knowing how our administrative agencies function, we can anticipate under this bill regulations from the WMC which would apply these penalties to workers."

The bill provides for the penalties only upon conviction in federal court, which would prevent administrative tribunals from invoking the penalty clause of the bill.

Vote Is 13 to 4.

The bill was reported to the senate this morning by a 13 to 4 vote in the committee. However, members reserved the right to vote against the bill or to vote for amendments on the floor regardless of the position they took in the committee.

Several members of the committee who voted to send the measure to the floor are known to be against the bill, but to believe it was best to get it before the senate for discussion. Among them are Chairman Thomas [D., Utah] and Sen. Chandler [D., Ky.], who are opposed to any type of man power legislation.

FIRM PAYS CITY $173 FOR SEWER CLEANUP COSTS

Thomas D. Garry, superintendent of sewers, said the city collected its first bill yesterday in a new policy of charging industries for the expenses of flushing and scraping sewers clogged by industrial wastes. The Western Shade Cloth company, 2141 Jefferson st., paid $173.58 for which it was billed by the city for labor and other costs of cleaning oily waste from a sewer. Garry and Public Works Commissioner Hewitt said the city will continue to bill factories responsible for clogged mains. City engineers will coöperate with the industries, they said, in designing catch basins to prevent clogging.

ARMY REPORTED SET TO HANDLE LABOR DRAFTEES

House Told Camp in Illinois Ready.

BY LAURENCE BURD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] charged today that the army, ignoring congress, has assigned regiments to handle work battalion units under the New Deal's still pending "work or fight" bill.

"Thousands of men are being wasted in preparation for a program that congress has not even authorized and probably will throw into the ash heap anyway," Shafer said in a statement. "The army, with 8 million men, is howling for more, but is wasting entire regiments on this instead of preparing them for combat."

The army's preparations for training the work units were disclosed in a letter to Shafer from a commissioned officer whose name the congressman withheld. The officer said his regiment and others were recently transferred to Camp Ellis, Ill., from other camps.

Four Weeks' Training.

"We are to train the 'work or fight' men in a four week cycle, after which they decide whether to stay in the army or go back to a war job," the letter said. "In view of the fact that the legislation which will induct these men is still in a very fluid state in the halls of congress, I leave it to you to tell when we will get the men to train."

Shafer said the officer's letter disclosed "ridiculous inefficiency" by the war department. He noted the letter was dated Feb. 13, 12 days after the house passed a "work or jail" bill, still pending in the senate, to force nonessential workers into war necessary jobs.

Didn't Want Program.

"The house changed the original work or fight' bill to a 'work or jail' bill because the army asked it," said Shafer. "Army officials testified they didn't want to fool around with work battalions for noncombatants who refuse to take war jobs. So, at their request, the house voted fine and prison penalties instead.

"Now we find the army has been getting ready to carry out the very program it said it didn't want; and that the house rejected. What's more, it is obvious the senate is opposed to such a plan.

"Some high official or officials are responsible for this double talk and utter waste of fit soldiers, not to mention millions of dollars."

ARMY SERGEANT DECIDES TO END 33 YEAR CAREER

After nearly 33 years in the army Sgt. Owen McBarron, 59, of 5027 Quincy st., will retire next Wednesday, he said yesterday. He is now a patient in Vaughan General hospital, near Maywood, and had been with the quartermaster corps at Camp Grant. He joined the infantry in 1908 and served in the Philippines, China, France, Germany, Hawaii, and Panama. There was an interruption of his army career from 1911 to 1913 when he was a motorman for the Chicago Surface lines. McBarron retired in 1939, but returned to active duty in April, 1941.

700 TRY TO BUY 355 BIKES AND PRAMS AT SALE

More than 600 eager youngsters and perspiring adults packed the auction room at 66 W. Ohio st. yesterday to bid for 345 bicycles and 10 baby buggies placed on sale by the police department. Outside a line of 100 more awaited a chance to enter the room and offer a bid.

The vehicles, recovered by police from thieves, fetched fancy prices and William Doubek, police custodian, estimated the sales total might reach more than $7,000.

One dilapidated bike, its shattered front tire draped limply over the handlebars, brought a final bid of $7. Bikes in better condition sold quickly for $20 and $30. A few bicycle bids reached $40. The youngsters, on holiday leave from school, groaned at the high prices and fingered unhappily the few dollars they had scraped together hoping to find a bargain.

The only tricycle on sale brought a laugh from the crowd and $15 from Dr. Abraham Rabin, 5575 Van Buren st. A baby carriage which looked as if it were due for retirement after long service brought $4 from Basil Hrylyszyn, 2432 Ohio st., who planned to give it to a neighbor. The highest price paid for a buggy was $12.

GET A WAR JOB! KEEP IT!

Chances are there is a service flag in many a window on your block. Perhaps you know some of the lads those starred flags represent. And perhaps some of the stars are gold.

Think back! Remember "only yesterday", when they were all kids, shouting their young lungs out over a baseball game on the corner lot, or roller skating to school?

Hard to picture any of them killing or being killed, isn't it?...That's the trouble. Picturing war is so hard for us at home we are apt to forget we are part of the war. For instance, it is hard to keep in mind that slacking up on war production is slacking.

...So, when the war news is good, lots of folks who are really patriotic, but who are just too far away from the sound of guns and the sight of mangled dead to feel the fight, are tempted to run out on their war jobs. In fact, the Enemy is counting on this "easing off", here in distant America. Probably this explains why he continues to fight when apparently he is beaten.

The only way to get this war over in a hurry is to prove that our nation means business—by swamping the Enemy with the greatest output of planes, shells, tanks, guns and other tools of victory ever shipped to our boys.

Our military leaders have stated that increased production of desperately needed supplies will shorten the war by many bitter, bloody months. Can you refuse to help?... If you have a war job, KEEP it. If you haven't, GET ONE!

What Price Victory?

It might be a thousand men—or a thousand tanks—or a thousand rounds of ammunition.

War workers, your toil will return our soldiers and sailors to their homes—quicker and with fewer casualties.

Chicago war plants like Douglas and Dodge making C-54 planes and B-29 motors; Stewart-Warner with its radio-radar; Western Electric making communications equipment; and Electro-Motive Division diesel engines lessen the cost in lives of war's frightful gamble.

The more tools of war we supply, the fewer of our fighting men will die.

JOB DRAFT FAILS IN 'CRACKDOWN' TRIAL BY WMC

Workers Refuse to Shift to Tire Plants.

New Bedford, Mass., Feb. 22 [Special].—Refusal of workers to submit to the war man power commission's "crackdown" program of compelling them to change jobs today brought an admission from the local WMC director that this area's first test of a labor draft order had resulted in failure.

Imposition of the order, which came from Washington and is backed by the army, has caused a tempestuous upheavel in this industrial city. Protestors called the order unconstitutional and unnecessary, demanded a congressional investigation, and criticized "power-mad federal agencies."

Despite the directive's authority to deprive nonconformants of their right to work, a number of employes designated for job changes have defied the order and refused outright while many others did not appear for scheduled interviews.

"Temporarily Unsuccessful."

Paul N. Devine, New Bedford WMC area director, described the test as "temporarily unsuccessful" and conceded it had produced only meager results in efforts to move textile mill workers to jobs in tire cord factories.

He disclosed that a two weeks' house to house canvass, in which 1,000 of 3,500 textile workers were interviewed prior to the order last Monday, had produced only seven workers willing to accept referrals to the tire industry.

In the program to channel textile workers into tire cord jobs considered more essential to war production, the order directed nine textile mills to reduce their man power ceilings by 118 persons.

Yesterday representatiwes of the United States employment service interviewed 60 of the 118 employes. Only six of those interviewed agreed to change jobs. Of those ordered to appear 48 did not report. Six others were hired for tire work as a result of the house to house canvass. In one mill 900 employes stopped work when the interviewers appeared, but returned to their jobs upon the request of union leaders.

Day's Work a Failure.

Today's results were even worse. Thirty-three persons were scheduled for interviews, but not a single agreement to a job shift was obtained. Twenty-two did not appear. Three made direct refusals and three others announced they would avail themselves of the right to appeal. Five were found not qualified for the jobs to which it had been planned to move them.

Devine said those who failed to report will be sent registered letters ordering them to appear for interviews, and that if they do not then report within three days their employers will be ordered "to fire them."

A similar fate was scheduled for those who refused to submit to orders to take a different job. It was understood the order was to be carried out in the following manner:

The WMC reduces a textile mill's man power ceiling, thus making a demand for a specific number of men of certain skills. The company and the WMC agree upon the identity of the men to be moved and they are ordered to report for interviews.

Cut Off from Jobs.

Assuming 10 men are ordered to so report and only one accepts the transfer, the remaining nine are at once out of a job. They cannot return to their former work because their company's ceiling has been reduced to exclude them. They cannot obtain other employment because the WMC will deny them the necessary referral. Their only alternative is to apply for compensation insurance.

According to labor leaders, the refusals to transfer to tire factory work is based on the workers' contentions the new jobs do not provide them with their present working conditions relative to pay, security, and other benefits. The order these labor men say, would coerce employes to accept such reductions tho their new employer is guaranteed a profit thru cost-plus contracts with the government.

While the WMC contends the authority for its order comes from a directive of War Mobilization Director Byrnes, those protesting it contend it is imposing restrictions now under consideration in congress, but not yet law.

In an open letter to the state congressional delegation the Massachusetts Federation of Labor termed the WMC program "unconstitutional and unnecessary" and asked a congressional investigation of man power conditions in the state to determine "if conditions do exist as alleged by power-mad federal agencies."

In Washington Sen. Walsh [D., Mass.] suggested that the WMC suspend its order and that a war labor board representative be sent to Massachusetts to solve the labor problem, in which event "the people would voluntarily go to work in the other plants."

Joseph Salerno, president of the Massachusetts CIO, termed the WMC order an "illegal and unconstitutional action which promotes servitude, not service," and declared it will "promote confusion, not production."

Teacher Is Pupil

The pre-war kindergarten that offered nothing more than a program of play to divert the minds of juvenile pupils is definitely out of the picture today. In its place has come a planned, constructive instruction to prepare the pupil for his first grade work.

This was thoroly demonstrated yesterday in the last of a series of three training sessions held by the Catholic Kindergarten association, sponsored by De Paul university, in Our Lady of Carmel school, 720 Belmont av. It was attended by 375 nuns, representing more than 200 parochial kindergarten schools in the Chicago area, who sat in the pupils' chairs to receive instruction.

The session included training by groups in four subjects: Activity, music, science and religion, and readiness.

Sister Maria Imelda, president of the association, was in charge with five instructors. Formerly, she said, the complaint about kindergarten was that it offered play for the pupils and nothing more, but now it is put on a new level to give groundwork for these 4 to 5 year old pupils in their following year.

JUKE BOX MAKER AND WIFE FIGHT ROUND IN COURT

Another round in the long court fight between Mrs. Katherine Smythe, 40, of 18 E. Elm st., and her estranged husband, Paul H. Smythe Jr., 43, former bricklayer who invented a better music box, was waged without a decision yesterday before Judge Donald S. McKinlay in Superior court.

P. H. Smythe Jr. and Mrs. Smythe.

Mrs. Smythe, represented by Atty. Joseph Harrington, is seeking separate maintenance on a charge of cruelty and half of her husband's income, which she said is $35,000 a year from patents on juke box improvements.

Mrs. Smythe said her husband was laying bricks in 1930 when she gave him $1,400 to construct his first juke box model. He now lives on a farm near Lake Villa, Lake county. She said yesterday that she supported him by operating rooming houses from 1933 to 1940, before his patents began to pay. But on cross-examination by Atty. Morris Meyers she admitted Smythe took her to Florida in 1936 and 1941.

INQUIRY STARTS IN $25,000 BLAZE ON SOUTH SIDE

An investigation was started yesterday to determine the cause of a $25,000 fire that destroyed a three story building housing the Monarch Truck and Parts company, 2013-15 State st., earlier in the day. Fire Commissioner Corrigan said the fire probably was the result of carelessness.

Corrigan said the dilapidated condition of the old building accounted for the rapid advance of the flames. Three walls collapsed. A large stock of second-hand automobile parts on the second floor, Corrigan said, caused the floor to drop as supports were weakened by the flames.

Street car traffic was rerouted around the area, and some elevated trains were delayed for a time. A 4-11 alarm was sounded as the flames, fed by inflammable liquids in the building, spread. The company is owned by Philip Levin, 6432 N. Talman av. No employes were on duty and no one was injured.

Mouth Full of Crackers Bar Answer, So He's Shot

Okmulgee, Okla., Feb. 22 (AP).—All because of a mouthful of crackers the Rev. Howard Bush, a Methodist pastor, was in a hospital today with a bullet wound in his stomach. Bush and Deputy Sheriff Tom Powell were lying in wait in the darkness near the minister's home for a persistent prowler, when Bush decided to go into his house for an overcoat and a snack—unknown to Powell. So when a figure appeared in the darkness, Powell challenged it, and receiving no answer, fired. Bush couldn't answer because his mouth was full of crackers.

MORE TOBACCO IS ANSWER, SAY CIGARET MAKERS

BY FRANK HUGHES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 22.—In this gateway to the tobacco country, where cigarets pop out of the "making machines" by the millions, are sealed into packages, plopped into cartons, and plunked into cases which roll down the conveyors to the shipping rooms as fast as the eye can follow them, the cry of the manufacturers is "give us the tobacco and we'll make the cigarets."

This comes in the face of a triple A official's statement yesterday that the burley tobacco crop—and burley is one of the two chief tobaccos used in cigarets—will be 600 million pounds in 1944-'45, an increase of 50 per cent over the average crop and 100 million pounds more than the government estimated would be grown.

The other principal ingredient of those things people stand in line for everywhere is flue-cured tobacco, and while in Kentucky's burley country the production figures on flue-cured are not at hand, tobacco men here say that there ought to be at least an equal abundance of that 1944-'45 crop to feed America's hungry smokers.

Millions of Smokes!

This correspondent actually looked at a million cigarets today—maybe it was a billion—in the factory of Brown and Williamson corporation, Louisville's largest cigaret manufacturer. But, still, he stood in line and displayed his room key to get his customary single pack of a "cat and dog" brand at the hotel cigar counter. The people who make them don't take them home from the factory, and there aren't any more per person in Louisville than there are in Chicago.

William S. Cutchins, a director of the Brown and Williamson corporation, said today that the company's Louisville plant, and all of the cigaret factories, are making more cigarets than ever before in history. The industry's figure is 324 billion cigarets in 1944 against 296 billion in 1943 and 251 billion in 1942.

"Vastly increased purchases by the armed forces," is one reason Cutchins gives for the shortage, but he adds that "even with labor conditions and government demands what they are, if we could get more aged tobacco we could make more cigarets."

Tobacco Must Age.

About 40 per cent of Brown and Williamson's principal brands now go to the army and navy of this country and to allied soldiers overseas. In some factories the percentage is higher.

"But there isn't any aged tobacco on the market now that can be purchased," Cutchins said. "All of that was grown years ago and the new crop coming up has to be aged 18 months to three years before it can be used in cigarets."

Tobacco isn't taken out of the fields and rolled into cigarets. Because the curing takes years, it is a safe assumption that the tobacco the triple-A didn't let farmers grow three years ago has a lot to do with the cigaret shortage today.

Labor Problem Not Serious.

There is a definite labor shortage in cigaret factories because the war man power commission holds that cigaret making is a nonessential industry, altho tobacco growing is "essential." However, the labor shortage doesn't bulk very large at the Brown and Williamson corporation.

R. D. Clay, assistant plant superintendent, says the company always has been a stabilizing influence in Louisville's labor market because it paid a little more than the going wage rate. The factory has its troubles getting and keeping help, but still there are enough people, Clay says, to make more cigarets if the tobacco could be purchased.

On the "making machines," formerly operated by men, only women now are working, and the percentage of women in all departments is overwhelming. The factory operates on a 19 or 19½ hour day, using two shifts and paying overtime.

SENATOR BRANDS SILLIMAN EVANS NEWSPAPER LIAR

McKellar to Demand Quiz on Sale.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—Sen. McKellar [D., Tenn.] said today in a senate speech that he will introduce a resolution calling for an investigation of what he termed the "devious and questionable" sale of the Nashville [Tenn.] Tennessean to Silliman Evans, former publisher of Marshall Field's Chicago paper.

McKellar assailed Evans as an "assassin of character who has filled his columns with dirty, venomous, corrupt, and most damnable falsehoods ever printed concerning . . . Mr. Crump [E. H. Crump, Memphis, Tenn., political boss] and me."

Money Troubles Told.

The senator said the Nashville newspaper got into financial difficulties several years ago and was taken over by the RFC. He said that when the newspaper was sold to Evans, others were interested in buying the property and paying more for it but that these prospective purchasers were prevented from making bids for the property.

"I have it on the highest authority that one and perhaps two other persons were willing to pay at least $800,000 for the paper and Evans bought it for $600,000, and these men were told the government was interested in Evans' getting the paper," McKellar said.

Seeks Effect of Sale.

The senator said he will ask for a senate investigation of the sale, asserting the sale should be set aside if it is shown the RFC suffered a loss because other prospective buyers were prevented from bidding.

The Tennessee senator said Evans' attacks have been inspired by a desire for personal publicity.

"If I were describing Evans . . . I would say that he is a cross between a jumping bob-tail jerboa [a species of small rodent] and an alley cat with a large admixture of a mangy and flea-bitten dog thrown in," asserted McKellar.

MANTENO DEATH INQUIRY ENDED; ATTENDANT OUT

State's Atty. Tolson of Kankakee county said yesterday he had completed his investigation of the fatal beating a week ago of Louis Fields, 35, inmate of Manteno State hospital, by two other patients, and no further action would be taken against the attendant who did not stop the fight. Tolson said the attendant, Joseph Oxford, who has been dismissed, was alone with the three inmates and in a "serious predicament," but should have made more of an effort to stop the fight. Tolson said Oxford was guilty only of poor judgment.

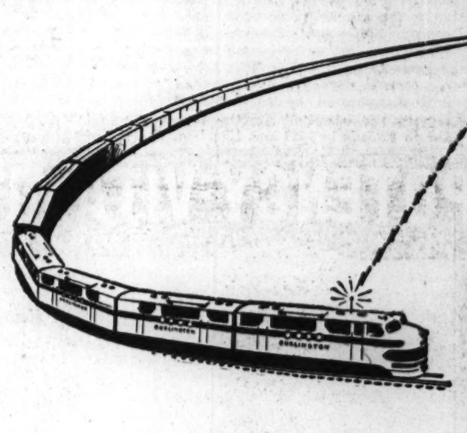
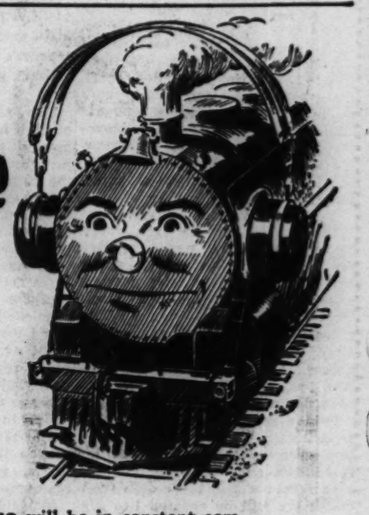
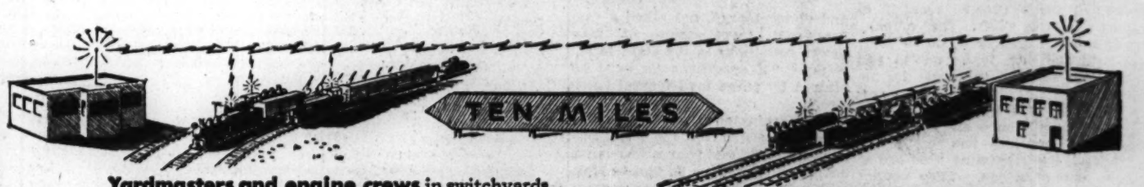
When trains have engine-ears

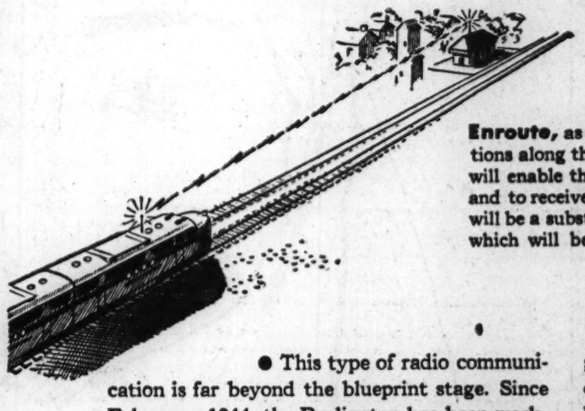




Men in the caboose will be in constant communication with those in the engine by means of two-way, high frequency radio. This feature of exchanging information and instructions will increase operating efficiency tremendously—will save a minimum of two hours on the average thousand mile run.



Yardmasters and engine crews in switchyards as far as ten miles apart will be in touch with each other through the same static-free, two-way radio. All of the switch engine crews will be able to receive "on the spot" instructions and acknowledge them instantly. The resulting coordination will be reflected in substantially improved shipping service.



Enroute, as trains come within ten miles of stations along the line, two-way radio communication will enable them to give up-to-the-minute reports and to receive last-minute instructions. Here again, will be a substantial increase in operating efficiency which will be translated in terms of time saved.

● This type of radio communication is far beyond the blueprint stage. Since February, 1944, the Burlington has been working with the Bendix organization in developing it to the point of reality. Burlington's facilities served as the first field laboratory in which it was tested and proved. Just as soon as we are given the green light by the Federal Communications Commission, we plan to install two-way, high frequency radios in 16 of our diesel-powered mainline freight trains and in our principal switchyards. Thus, begins another chapter in railroad progress—another Burlington "first" in modern transportation development.

MADE IN AMERICA.

Capt. Ernest M. Gruenberg, a doctor with the 101st air borne division, one of the Americans freed from German prison camps by the Russian offensive, told of looking out a window in his place of confinement as his liberators arrived. "There," he said, "they were—the Red army rolling up in Sherman tanks." Another American, Lt. Frank H. Colley, added, "We kept looking out at the passing scene, and there were many Shermans, Studebakers, Chevrolets, G-M-C, Fords, half-tracks, and so on." Hour after hour the Russians streamed by on American wheels.

One journalist has described this great Russian offensive as "made in the United States of America." This description was offered in congress by Rep. Robsion, who stated that the foreign economic administration has listed, among our lend-lease contributions to Russia, the following:

Eleven million pairs of army boots, 97 million yards of cotton cloth, 50 million yards of woolen cloth, 58 million yards of webbing, 362,000 motor vehicles, 1,045 railroad locomotives, 7,164 freight cars, 1,000 dump cars, 100 tank cars, 2,120,000 tons of steel, 478,000 tons of railroad rails, 110,000 tons of wheels and axles, 233,000 tons of aluminum, 314,000 tons of brass, 65,000 tons of copper products, 16,600 tons of ferro-alloys to be used in the manufacture of steel in the soviet mills, 733,000 tons of nonferrous metals, 12,200 airplanes, 1,300,000 tons of petroleum products, 638 tons of chemicals, plus billions of pounds of food, feed, clothing, powder, shells, and other war equipment.

The FEA further reports that we have provided the Red army with 6,000 tanks, 1,800 self-propelled guns, 3,300 armored scout cars, and 29,000 motorcycles, in addition to more than 300,000 trucks. Sixty power trains with generating capacities of from 1,000 to 5,000 kilowatts each, which can be moved from city to city and from industry to industry, are another incidental item. These enormous contributions in material, all products of American industry, were carried by us over tremendous distances so that Russia should be supported in its offensives against Germany.

The astounding extent of our aid has undoubtedly had a decisive influence upon Russia's fortunes in this war. Could she have survived without it? Would she have been able to launch her present vast offensive without it? We think the answers are apparent. To assert this country's claim to a large share of the credit is in no way to detract from the courage or skill of the Russian armies.

We mention these facts because the leaders of the Roosevelt administration are not only reluctant to take pride in the prodigies of this nation's productive prowess, but are engaged in dog in the manger behavior toward their own countrymen. Secretary of War Stimson, for instance, would have this nation believe that it is not carrying its fair share of the load. He uses the example of the British and Russian forced labor drafts to beat Americans over the head in demanding the enactment of Mr. Roosevelt's "work or else" legislation. To hear him tell it, the only way we can keep freedom is to embrace totalitarianism.

The Russian successes are in no small part an American achievement. The African campaign of the British 8th army would never have rolled thru the desert without the aid received from America. We have not only kept our own great forces supplied and fighting on every front from Iwo Jima to the Rhine, but we have given, and are continuing to give enormous aid to allies as diverse as Russia, Britain, China, France, Italy, India, Australia, New Zealand, Canada, the Central and South American countries, South Africa, Ethiopia, North Africa, Cuba, Mexico, and nobody knows how many other countries. In three years we have poured 35.4 billion dollars' worth of war material into allied countries—43.3 per cent of it all to Britain and 28.4 per cent to Russia.

And, still, we aren't doing enough, according to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Stimson. Is there an alienist in the house?

DE GAULLE STANDS UP MR. ROOSEVELT.

Gen. de Gaulle can make a point of honor of going where he is not wanted and again of not going where he is wanted. He refused to visit Mr. Roosevelt in Algiers. He was invited but had other business on hand. Something is being made of this snub, and too much can be. If Mr. Roosevelt wants to see a man here at home the man usually thinks that courtesy to the office requires him to put in an appearance. Abroad Mr. Roosevelt is on his own. If he wants to see a potentate he can call on him, not for him. The French military politician thinks of himself as the embodiment of France. Petain said he was France. Louis XIV. did it even better.

De Gaulle rather pointedly was not asked to join the meeting at Yalta for reasons which must have seemed good and which could be justified, if necessary, on two grounds if not more: 1. That France at this stage is not sufficiently engaged in the matters which were under discussion. 2. That De Gaulle himself is not a man who would be useful at this time. It may be unjust to say that the present head of the French government has been chiefly concerned with getting where he is, but he is mainly responsible for creating the appearance of a great personal ambition. If he is an unselfish French patriot his manner and his activities have been unfortunate.

At a time when the internal affairs of France could occupy the whole thought of the French government Gen. de Gaulle has preoccupied himself with the future of the country in world affairs and its position as a great power in Europe. He has been defiant. He has blustered. He has said what France would have and what it would not have. Meanwhile Germans are holding French ports. The French people complain of their hardships and the insufficiency of the relief they have had. The transport system is disorganized and inadequate. An energetic French government would have applied itself more effectively to these problems.

If Gen. de Gaulle's mind had been on immediate French necessities instead of on his position in relation to Churchill and Roosevelt he might have obtained guns to clear out the German pockets and food to feed the French people. An energetic man whose motives were beyond question, whose persistence was for the manifest good of his country, who was not posing as the architect of French destiny and the defender of French glory, might have done much good. If he then had annoyed the powers which have liberated France it would have been to some purpose. His nuisance value would have been converted into real French benefits.

Mr. Roosevelt may have kicked over the protocol by inviting the French head of state to meet him on French territory. It was the beau moment for a snub. De Gaulle, however, cashed the occasion for pride and not for profit. An abler man would have seen Mr. Roosevelt and would have got something from him. Everybody else does. De Gaulle could have poured a Gallic torrent of importunities and reproaches into sympathetic ears and probably tilted the cornucopia for more than a trickle of wheat, coal, and other necessities.

Mr. Roosevelt should worry about Gen. de Gaulle. Three kings called on him.

FEATHER-BEDDING IN THE ARMY.

Rep. John Phillips of California informed the house the other day that of the 12 million Americans in uniform 7,225,482 were overseas. He pointed out that this leaves in this country 4,674,518 physically capable men who either enlisted or were drafted and all of whom presumably are eager to fight. Mr. Phillips found it odd under the circumstances that the administration should be howling about a man power shortage and demanding legislation to put people in any job it saw fit.

He could have pursued his speculations further if he had cared to do so. On the basis of divisions which have been identified, Gen. Eisenhower has about 44 on the battle line in Europe, Gen. MacArthur has 13, and there are six divisions of marines in the Pacific. A triangular division consists of about 15,000 men; so our 63 combat divisions abroad represent a total of 945,000 men who are capable of using rifles, machine guns, mortars, artillery, or armored vehicles against the enemy. This means that less than one in seven of our total overseas forces actually is in a position to see the whites of the enemy's eyes.

The housekeeping branch of the army and navy is not quite as topheavy as this would imply, for there are thousands of flyers and many times their number in ground or carrier crews. Then there is the navy personnel, manning our large fleets.

Of those kept at home, the army lists 800,000, including members of the WAC, on special limited duty; 150,000 in hospitals or in the process of being hospitalized; about 30,000 stationed on defense, and 750,000 handling supplies, reserves, and other operational duties. Still, 63 combat divisions out of 12 million in uniform, two-thirds of whom are in the army alone, would seem to demonstrate clearly that there is an excessive rear area establishment.

What gives point to all this is the announcement that the 6th armored division has just completed 204 consecutive days in the line. It has fought without respite since it became operational last July in Normandy. The record of this division is far from unique. The 1st division has been in every campaign since the original landing in North Africa 27 months ago.

The army has adopted a policy in this war of keeping combat organizations steadily in action against the enemy and replacing losses as they occur. The changeover in some divisions has been virtually complete. But altho this practice of keeping a division in the line may be deliberate, it would also appear to have been dictated at least in part by necessity. Replacements of combat troops have not been sufficient to give relief to battle weary outfits.

The necessity of shaking down the army and bringing a much larger part of its potential to bear upon the enemy would seem to be clearly demonstrated. One of our commanders in Italy was able to round up a full division by screening out the physically able officers and men in his rear areas, and Hanson Baldwin, the military writer, estimates six divisions could be organized from our housekeeping and nonessential units in France alone. In Paris, for instance, he found 150 hotels tenanted by these warriors.

The peculiar aspect of all this is that the army and navy, thru Gen. Marshall and Adm. King, have been particularly insistent in supporting the Roosevelt work draft scheme, altho their own utilization of man power is inefficient on the face of it. They have all the discipline and organization which they favor giving the administration over civilians, but they can't get adequate numbers of men to the right place at the right time; otherwise, there never would have been a break-thru in the Ardennes. Even so, it can safely be said that they employ men to better advantage than does the burocracy, whose overstuffed pay rolls, listing no less than 354,202 men of military age as draft exempt, essential workers, are productive of little but headaches for the rest of the people. So what is the purpose of this labor draft? It can't have anything to do with winning the war.

Further examination of the Atlantic Charter might be made to determine whether it says anything about compelling a man to join some labor union or go to jail.—Indianapolis News.

THE CRYSTAL BALL.

This column has been urged by Delos Avery of the Sunday sections and rhymes for Parrish's political cartoons to take a bow for clairvoyance. He pointed out that we revived the subject of Hitler's mountain retreat at Berchtesgaden a week before that town in the Bavarian Tyrol was thoroly bombed, and returned to the subject 12 hours before the news was announced. But we silently withdrew behind the scenes for further study of our crystal ball.

* * *

Contemporary interest in Berchtesgaden was anticipated as far back as 1868 by an American artist named Frederick Edwin Church, an eminent figure among the landscape painters called the Hudson River school. See his canvas in the current exhibition at the Art institute: No. 28, "Bavarian Alps South of Berchtesgaden"—a shadowy view of ridges at which Hitler, no doubt, has peered many a time thru the telescope on his chalet's terrace.

Incidentally, Hitler's lair, named Wachenfeld in 1936, is now called Berghof [mountain manor or palace] by the Associated Press. This new name may seem more lordly to the owner, but to Chicagoans it suggests a brand of beer.

Church also painted, in 1868, a view of Salzburg, on the Austrian frontier near Berchtesgaden, and the picture hangs in this exhibition as No. 29. Thus he anticipated the tourist boom of the 1920s and 1930s, when that quiet old city lured authors, composers, kings, millionaires, movie stars, ski jumpers, and all other breeds of celebrities and fashionables to its summer seasons. Remember Max Reinhardt's drama and music festivals? Remember "Everyman"? Remember the reign of the dirndl in women's apparel? All that was the Salzburg influence.

FEBRUARY EVENINGS.

Down across the river bridge,
Up the other hill,
Walking home at evening
Thru the winter chill.

Little towns are quiet
On most any day;
Winter evenings anywhere
Mostly are dull gray.

First lights now appearing,
Shine but do not glare;
All the sounds are muted
Ripples thru the air.

Freight train on a siding,
Puff, puff, puff, and blur;
Campus bus now passing,
With its rubber whir.

Thoughts are also muted,
Violin-faint but clear—
Things that bothered all the day,
Rid of doubt and fear.

Possibly these homeward walks
Certain needs fulfill—
Down across the river bridge,

Choppy's Second Puppyhood.

Recently we celebrated Choppy's 10th birthday, equivalent to 70 human years, and it is quite an age for a little doggie, as we told him.

Maybe Choppy understood what we said, because when I came home a few nights later he had taken an old shoe of mine and mangled it unmercifully. He even stood in the middle of the room, shaking the shoe defiantly.

Now, chewing shoes is definitely a puppy trait, and while Choppy is to be complimented on possessing enough teeth to do it, at his advanced age he really should be more dignified. I chided him, and he looked perplexed. He was evidently trying to show us that 10 years was not "quite an age for a little doggie."

No, Choppy is not getting senile, but I do believe he is going into his second puppyhood.

O, well, at least he will never be baldheaded.

QUESTION FOR HUNTERS.

I wonder if the huntsman in his glee
Would ever after know serenity
If he could look into a maimed buck's eyes
And see the pain that smothers outward cries.

I wonder if the huntsman in his quest
Would feel a searing conscience slow his zest,
If he could watch a fawn searching in vain
For one whose grace will never live again.

I see their patterned beauty, skyward spun,
The antlers plead against the flaming sun.

R. F. D. writes: "On Jan. 5, 1945, I received a 2-B classification until June 27 because of my work as chief chemist and radiographer in a foundry which is in 100 per cent war work. On Feb. 14, I received notice that by a vote of 4 to 0 the board of appeals had placed me in 1-A, and in the same mail I received notice to report for induction on Feb. 28. Neither my employer nor I received notice of any kind that my case was to be reopened and hence had no chance to present an appeal. Does the board of appeal have the right to make such a decision without due notice?"

Yes. When a registrant whose principal place of employment is outside the jurisdiction of the local board, the law requires that any occupational deferment must be reviewed by the board of appeal having jurisdiction over the area of his principal place of employment. No notice of any kind is required or given because it is assumed that all basic facts and data upon which the local board gave the deferment were in the registrant's file as it was sent to the board of appeal for review. It seems strange, tho, that the local board would send you an induction notice under the circumstances without first having consulted the occupational advisor of the state. If your board has not already contacted the occupational advisor, you might request it do so for information as to any further steps that may be taken. An appeal to the state director for a stay of induction might help.

INSECT CONTROL IN COMBAT AREAS.

WHENEVER one of our discussions has to do with the health of G. Is in Asiatic waters, a deluge of letters from concerned parents reaches this column. By and large, it can be stated that the medical departments of the army and navy are fully aware of the hazards incident to fighting in tropical regions, where biting insects not only make life unbearable but constitute sources of microbe carriers.

It seems scarcely possible that typhus, which was the chief dread in World War I., has become relatively unimportant in our present prolonged conflict. The form which is spread via the body louse is highly fatal and it exists in many parts of the globe all the time. In the Russian army in 1914, 150,000 victims succumbed in six months. Between 1917 and 1923 there were 30,000,000 cases and 3,000,000 deaths in European Russia.

Fortunately, a vaccine was discovered, as well as an adequate delousing program, employing the fumes of methyl bromide. The gas will destroy not only the lice but their eggs, without the slightest injury to clothing or equipment. The portable outfit can be utilized in the field so that one of our most lethal afflictions can be eliminated completely before it starts.

Furthermore, the soldier's own body can be rendered free from parasites by means of a standard louse powder, known as "MYL." It is supplied in small, pepperlike cans and is to be used whenever typhus is prevalent. It offers protection from "bugs" without the necessity of going thru the more complicated maneuvers.

Recently, a modification of the MYL powder, called "DDT," was developed and it appears to be even more potent. It was applied in one of our prison camps and approximately two weeks later the men were all reëxamined and not a single "cootie" was found. It has been learned that one dusting will safeguard the individual for more than a month. DDT saved the day in Naples, when our troops who were in charge of the city were endeavoring to clean out all nests of infection.

Typhus is not our only menace. We must be able to control mosquitoes. No matter how carefully the régime is carried out, however, it is bound to break down under combat conditions. Then it is that the men must rely upon netting, insecticides, and repellents. In addition, our warriors are urged to take atabrine so that malaria will not be able to get a head start.

The government maintains a laboratory at Orlando, Fla., where experimental work is being carried on constantly. Mosquito bombs have been devised and the spray from a one pounder will kill all the "skeeters" in a small room of 1,000 cubic feet in four seconds. After 15 minutes, the "buzzers" in a space containing 225,000 cubic feet will give up the ghost. This powerful chemical, harmless to man, is effective against the species which transmit yellow fever, dengue, and filariasis. It also will annihilate sand flies, which may disperse leishmaniasis as well as sand fly fever.

While every one hopes that the war will not continue much longer, we still have numerous cards up our sleeves which will aid the victory over many a strange ailment encountered by our forces.

ORIGIN OF SPASM.

T. K. writes: What causes pyloric spasms?

REPLY.

The orifice, or gateway, between the stomach and the small intestine is under the control of the sympathetic nervous system. Emotional upsets may produce a tightening [spasm] of this structure. Irritation produced by ulcer or by improper food may be a factor. Now and then the condition is present at birth.

CRAMPING ARTERIES.

M. D. G. writes: What is a histamine headache?

REPLY.

Periodic, one sided headaches, due to spasm, or narrowing of the arteries of the scalp. Histamine, which is always present in the body in an increasing amount in allergic patients, is probably the causative factor. Relief is obtained by desensitizing the patient to this drug.

MENTAL DISORDER.

M. N. writes: Can a man of 30 have dementia precox?

REPLY.

Yes, it is more common in young people.

SORE CELLS.

J. S. writes: What is cellulitis?

REPLY.

WRITTEN IN BLOOD

Front Views & Profiles

By MARCIA WINN

The Fellow Peril.

The picture on the back page showed the first marines to die on Iwo. They sprawled on the slight crest where Japanese gunfire had felled them. The picture on the amusement page [adv.] showed Errol Flynn and his merry men crouching. [Sorry, our error. Mr. Flynn, his gun pointed toward the earth, crouched and scowled at an absent enemy. His fellows looked at him in wide, smiling admiration.] The phrase, ballooned in a dark halo above, screamed, "Yank paratroopers land on Nippon's neck!" The picture advertised the movie, "Objective Burma," and in one corner were the frightening words, "3d rugged week!"

By rugged the movie people possibly refer to the queues fighting from dawn until midnight to get a seat in any theater in this fourth winter of war. Or perhaps they refer to the perils of State st., that artery of belligerence in which no holds are barred when trying to enter [1] a bus, [2] a street car, [3] the subway, [4] a department store, or [5] the lowliest cafeteria.

Ah, you celluloid gentlemen in Burma, ah, you battered warriors on Iwo, come and see our rugged way of life. It is the new American way. Come and lose 10 pounds of weight when the fat lady who was standing beside you on the bus decides to stand on your head in Objective: Exit. Come and maul your fellow man to ribbons to get a seat in the peanut gallery in Objective: Movie. Come and learn gutter language, lost perhaps in the roar of battle on alien soil but regained in Objective: Hosiery. Come and see the pretty, frail shoppers—their strength is as the strength of dragons because their greed is great—push entire counters apart to fall, a clawing mob, on Objective: Cotton panties. Come and join our battle lines. Learn petulance, not patience. Learn to rend, not tend, your fellow American.

Think not of the American woman as a tender flower. Brother, she has learned self-preservation. She has learned that the fit survive. [Perhaps the word fit should be used in the plural.] She can snatch the hair from a salesgirl's head faster than you can throw a grenade. She exceeds that only in the speed with which she snatches a desired article out from under the nose of the lady who says she spied it first. Neither the hour, the weather, disease, nor multitudes daunt this splendid creature. Beside her, Carrie Nation was a piker.

Two gentlemen of our acquaintance learned of this first hand last week. One now is having his neck jerked to rectify a displaced spine. The other sits home and plays atonal music. "This way lies madness," he says wanly, "but the other way lies death." The latter had been ruminating in the book department of a State st. store when he saw a line of ladies stretching the width of the store. Cleansing tissue? Cigarets? Being addicted to both, he thought he would get some. An hour later he emerged at the desired counter in a whirlpool of clawing, reaching hands. Objective: A sale of junk jewelry.

The other ventured into a store because it was his wife's birthday. He wanted to buy her some stockings. He went early. So did the ladies. They were lined outside the store [eight above zero] before it opened. He followed them within. The line around the stocking counter was six deep and without end. A kindly saleswoman, noticing this meek, unarmed man, this rabbit in with the practiced wolves, took pity on him and whispered, "Try the shoe department. No one else will." He raced upstairs to find that 300 ladies had done so before him. Again he stood in line. Eventually he was only two ladies away from success. The first lady, a large number in mink and flowers, wanted size 11. The salesgirl had only size 9½ [the size our friend wanted], so the lady took size 9¼. Objective: Anything. The second lady, a fat squatdrop, wanted size 8. She, too, took 9½. Her compromise was the last. There were no more.

The two gentlemen now are pulling every ruse at their command to overcome the handicaps of age and get into the marine corps. Objective: A male battle front.

RIGHTS CONVERTED INTO PENALTIES.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—With reference to the new closing order for night clubs, cafes, etc., it seems to me there is one important point that is being overlooked. I observe that in order to enforce this order of Mr. Byrnes, it was said that violators would be deprived of their rationing privileges, employment ceilings, priorities, etc. This is making an illegal order stick by beating the customers over the head with other illegal orders, and is an outrage against our laws.

For example, priorities and rationing, according to the laws and intent of congress, were supposed to be operated on the basis of the laws covering these particular activities. In theory, every person is entitled to equal privilege with every other person in our rationing laws, and the only penalties are those which apply to the infraction of rationing laws. So to deprive a person of rationing privileges because he does not obey some other, illegal fiat of some administrator, is an illegal act in itself. The same applies to the priority laws which are intended to distribute critical shortage goods on the basis of war and critical civilian needs.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Words cannot express my dissatisfaction over the collaboration of the President of the United States in the partition of Poland. This action certainly does not express the wishes of the right and clear thinking American people.

I thought that we were at war in Europe to prevent action of this kind rather than to condone it. Why do we get mixed up in these wars if we cannot accomplish some good? I am unable to see the advantage of destroying one monster in Europe if the only result is to build up another ogre.

In my mind the Crimea conference is an even worse catastrophe than the one at Munich.

THE AMERICAN LANDSCAPE.

Chicago, Feb. 16.—The Chicago Art institute is to be congratulated on the very excellent exhibit of American paintings representing the "Hudson River school."

The Hudson River school collection of paintings shows us the beauty of our American landscape, recalling to our minds the names of earlier American painters whose aim was to transmit to canvas "the beauty that around us lies." This beauty is still with us, needing only the encouragement of the public to bring forth American painters who will lead us all to an appreciation of our own scenic values.

SUBNORMAL PRISONERS.

Chicago, Feb. 18.—Recently the papers were headlining the sentence of a 15 year old boy at Dixon, Ill., to the penitentiary for 207 years for the terrible crime he committed. Society has certainly come a long way when it sentences a juvenile, despite testimony of a psychiatrist showing him to be subnormal, to 70 years in the penitentiary with murderers and thieves as everyday associates. What an education he will get.

Does not this great state have institutions besides our penitentiaries, for the care of criminals of this type, where they may be sent with the help of an enlightened judiciary?

SOLDIERS WANT AMERICAN PAY.

FRANCE, Feb. 6.—Do you people at home realize that you are our only hope? There is no one else to whom we can appeal. We—thousands of your soldiers—want to be paid in United States currency.

What can you do? Write to your congressman! He fears your individual wrath just as much as he likes his position. Tell him what you want. Demand action! One letter stands for much more than one individual. It stands for a fighting individual—and all the friends he can muster. Your congressman is not in a position to fight against you. He is supposed to represent you. See that he does.

DAYLIGHT SAVING SAVES LIVES.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Rose Epperly writes that daylight saving time is the bunk, as no electricity is being conserved by it and her children don't want to go to bed in daylight.

Well, maybe we do have to turn on the lights in the morning and don't save much by it, but it is usually light enough by the time people go to work, and what's more important, it's light when coming home. This not only saves lights and eyestrain, but has no doubt avoided many accidents and deaths. The present brown-out would make accidents even more likely.

Regarding children going to bed—how many children ever want to go to bed at night regardless of the hour—and the daylight naturally offers a good excuse to stay up.

PACIFIC FIGHTERS' PEACE TERMS.

La Salle, Ill., Feb. 14.—I read your editorial, "Help Against Japan," with great interest, in view of the fact that that same morning I received a letter from my son, an air pilot in the Southwest Pacific, and here is what the boys decided on the conditional surrender of the Japs:

1. Withdrawal of troops from China, Korea, Manchuria.
2. Disarmament.
3. Japan to give up key island mandates to the United States.

Then we could rearm China to act as a counter against future Jap aggressions.

SETTLING A FUSS, MAYBE.

Chicago, Feb. 19.—I am writing to settle a fuss between two people. A was married in 1932. After living with his wife a year and a half a divorce took place. At that time one had to wait one year before remarrying, but before the year was up he married. L. Was the marriage legal? B says it was not; A says it was because he has lived with his second wife five years and they had three children. 2. Who is right?

A. L.

1. The Illinois statute removing the delay requirement contained wording expressly validating marriages previously celebrated in violation of that requirement.
2. It seems probable that the marriage is valid, but we cannot advise more competently without knowing all the facts, as to dates, places of residence, etc.

BIG RAIL MOVES IN CITY HINGE ON LEGISLATION

Terminal Authority Law Under Consideration.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

A consolidated passenger terminal on the lake front at Randolph st. is a leading proposal in post-war plans for modernization of Chicago's railroad facilities. The project, first advanced in 1933, is for a union station to house the 16 trunk lines now running into the four railway stations east of the river and south of the loop.

The location at Randolph st. was urged by the city planners as conforming with expansion of the central business district northward from the loop and the river, and in keeping with a rule to place passenger terminals close to the heart of a city.

It developed yesterday that a bill is being prepared for action by the legislature for creation of a Chicago metropolitan terminal authority. It is a measure separate from the bill agreed upon by Gov. Green and Mayor Kelly last week for a metropolitan transit authority and a public owned transportation system, which is slated for referendum vote June 4 at the judicial election.

D' Esposito Plan Analyzed.

The idea of a terminal authority was submitted to Mayor Kelly last fall by Joshua D' Esposito, who was chief engineer in building the Union station and who, by the mayor's appointment, is head of a terminals committee. Others on the Kelly committee are officials of the five railroads that own the four terminals south of the loop.

As proposed by D' Esposito, the new authority would put the city into the railroad terminal business. It would have no taxing power, but would be empowered to issue self-liquidating revenue bonds. Instead of the railroads building the terminal, the authority would build it with proceeds of the bonds and the railroads would pay rental.

Proponents argued the plan would serve to place the railroads in a position similar to that of the air lines, for which airports are provided on a rental basis, and the passenger station would be a municipal terminal, corresponding with Chicago airport.

So far, no other large city has a publicly owned railroad terminal, said D' Esposito, tho some have port authorities of wide powers.

The proposed authority would be given rights of condemnation and eminent domain under present plans.

Old Illinois Central Plan.

Under the 1919 lake front ordinance, the Illinois Central railroad was to build a new terminal at E. Roosevelt rd. This was to have been completed by 1927. The ordinance, however, set forth that any other railroad in the city might use the new terminal on reasonable terms. The city planners, however, were unable to get the other stations east of the river to participate, and the Illinois Central has contended it cannot design a station until it knows how many tenant companies it would have to provide for.

Then, in 1933, the Randolph street terminal idea was broached by the late James Simpson, then head of the Chicago Plan commission, and was reported in detail by Edward J. Noonan, consulting engineer for the city. Neither this project nor the Roosevelt rd. proposal has emerged from the conversational stage. Other sites, too, are discussed.

1933 Arguments Still Used.

The 1933 arguments, which still stand, were that when the four stations east of the river were built they were placed as close to the central business district as possible.

Then the business center grew northward from the stations, leaving passengers on the fringe. When the Chicago Plan first was issued, in 1908, expansion of the loop district southward was expected, and Roosevelt road was picked by the plan as suited to railroad terminal development. Expansion, however, went in the other direction, stimulated by the improvement of Michigan av. with its two deck bridge, La Salle st., and Wacker dr. The 1933 Randolph street site was approved by the Chicago Plan as conforming with changes that have developed in the central business district since passage of the 1919 lake front ordinance.

L. C. Station 50 Years Old.

Meanwhile, the Illinois Central has been making improvements at its thru passenger terminal, now 50 years old. It has torn down the old train shed, has almost completed a new one of the Bush type, used in the Bush terminal at New York, and has put in modern lighting.

The railroad has rebuilt its interlocking building, "the throat" of the station, at a cost of half a million dollars, enabling somewhat longer trains to enter it; has remodeled the waiting room and facilities; has rebuilt its platforms, and has rearranged hallways to give elevator service to the waiting room. Real post-war modernization appears to be waiting on what is done toward a new consolidated terminal.

THE QUESTION.

Have you noticed any change in the seniors about to meet the challenge of war in contrast with seniors of four years ago?

WHERE ASKED.

Riverside-Brookfield High school, Riverside [asked of teachers].

THE ANSWERS.

L. G. Thompson, dean of boys, 104 Lincoln av., Riverside—A few years ago there was the attitude of not being concerned about studies. They were going into the army and they didn't care about their future further than that. But now with a better outlook on the duration of the war seniors are getting back to normal.

W. A. Shuey, athletic director, 3826 Rosemear av., Brookfield—I find quite a few of the boys a little more serious than they were four years ago—that is, the smart boys who wish to go thru high school in three years and get in a year of college before they enter the army. Then there are some who can't get into the army soon enough.

K. L. Roth, physics instructor, 80 Edgewater rd., Riverside—A large proportion of the students don't think there's an awful lot in store for them when they finish high school. However, many of them realize that education is the most important thing right now and are doing things that will help them in the service.

J. G. Vance, mechanical drawing teacher, 80 Kimbark rd., Riverside—When war started students were pessimistic. That has disappeared. The boys have braced themselves for the detour in their careers. Many consider the time they will spend in the service as an opportunity for the future and are looking forward to it.

W. A. Dudley, coach, 57 Forest av., Riverside—There was a streak of "I don't care" attitude among the students about two years ago because they had the idea that the army was the end. However, the boys of today are getting back to the idea that first comes education, then come what may—they're ready.

CHICAGO'S NEXT SURFACE CARS FASTER, QUIETER

All Late Improvements to Be Incorporated.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

When the Chicago Surface Lines get some or all of the 200 street cars the system has on order they will be better cars than any now rolling on any city's streets, in the considered opinion of Evan J. McIlraith, acting general manager of the lines.

He said yesterday that in the building of the new vehicles advantage would be taken of advances in metallurgy, power application, streamlined design, and other factors making for fast, efficient, and comfortable service.

Specifications for the cars have been drawn by the Transit Research corporation of New York, an organization set up and financed by the major local transportation systems of the United States. It works in close coöperation with several corporations which make essential parts of new street cars.

Only Two Companies Make Cars.

Only two companies, Pullman Standard and St. Louis Car, make car bodies and frames and assemble the complete product, McIlraith said. There are, however, some 15 suppliers of parts. For example, motors are made by General Electric and Westinghouse, and such specialties as wheels and brakes are made by other companies.

Street railway executives established the research group as a clearing house for all suggested improvements, in the belief that an excellent car was more certain to result than if many manufacturers built whole cars in competition. Under the latter system, it was felt, car buyers might have to choose between cars that were better in some respects than those a competitor built and inferior in other respects. The aim of the research corporation is to incorporate the best features that can be advanced, after patient investigation, into an integrated whole car.

Better Than Madison St. Cars.

The research corporation has been operating for years and designed the Madison street cars, bought in 1935 and still giving good and almost noiseless service. They are the only reasonably modern cars the surface lines possess. Those now on order are said to have many improvements over the Madison street cars—they are still quieter, faster, and three inches wider.

Aluminum may get increased use in the new cars. One company, Reynolds Metals, has completed the construction of an aluminum box car for steam railroad use, in collaboration with the Mount Vernon Car company.

John W. Burnett, manager of Reynolds railway supply division, said that his company had not yet tried any street car models, but was collaborating with the St. Louis Car company in building an experimental train for the elevated lines. This train, as well as the 200 surface cars, must be granted material priorities by the office of defense transportation and the war production board.

COUNTY GROUPS TO HEAR TRANSIT PLAN EXPLAINED

Representatives of 20 or more Cook county towns and villages are expected to attend a conference this afternoon, at which the proposed metropolitan transit district supported by Mayor Kelly and Gov. Green will be discussed. The meeting will be held in the offices of the Illinois commerce commission, 160 N. La Salle st.

The Kelly-Green plan calls for municipal ownership and operation of the elevated and surface lines and, later, of bus systems in the city and county.

A referendum to approve the plan is to be held in Chicago June 4. The towns and villages may delay their entrance into the district until later if they wish. Louis Ancel, attorney for the village of Maywood, called the conference, he said, so the municipalities might learn their rights and be prepared to protect their interests.

BURNS TO DEATH IN COLLISION OF TWO TRUCKS

Farris Nichols, 37, of New Carlisle, Ind., was burned to death yesterday when his gasoline tank truck exploded and caught fire after ramming into the rear of another truck on U. S. highway 20, six miles west of Michigan City, Ind.

Police are seeking the driver of a hit and run auto that struck and killed Vincenzo Benedetto, 66, 12260 Avenue O, a watchman, at 10739 Avenue O. Police said there were no witnesses.

Confessed Incendiary Booked on Four Charges

Walter Haag, 37, of 1744 Barry av., firebug who admitted starting 70 fires in his neighborhood in the last four years, was booked yesterday by Detective James Garvey on four charges of arson. Haag will be arraigned in Felony court today. Most of the fires set were on Fletcher st., Barry av., and Belmont av. in the 1700 to 1900 blocks, Garvey said.

CURFEW TO RING DOWN CURTAIN ON JOBS OF 2,000

Midnight Closing to Cause Big Loss.

A prediction that more than 2,000 persons here will lose their jobs as a result of the 12 o'clock coal saving curfew set for midnight Monday was made yesterday by Thomas Rosenberg of Raynor and Rosenberg, law firm representing the Cafe Owners' association. Rosenberg estimated that more than $200,000 is spent here daily between midnight and 4 a. m. on all forms of amusement.

"Facing a 25 to 60 per cent drop in income, the cafes won't be able to meet their pay rolls," Rosenberg said, after a metting with the operator's executive committee. His assertion was echoed by Miss Margarette Marais, secretary of the corporation which operates the Brown Derby, 104 S. Wabash, who said that 40 of the establishment's 86 employes would be dismissed immediately.

Await WMC Clarification.

The Cafe Owners' association said after a meeting with the board of directors of the Chicago Federation of Musicians that the status quo would be observed until next Thursday pending clarification of the curfew order by the war man power commission.

At a meeting of the Greater Chicago Hotel association it was decided that hotels would comply fully with the order. Ernest Byfield, executive manager of the Sherman and Ambassador hotels, said no loopholes, such as taking advantage of the fact that a restaurant may remain open if the serving of liquor is an "adjunct," would be employed.

A count of receipts at the Sherman on Monday and Tuesday, normally light nights, indicated a 13.5 per cent loss of revenue. The American Hotel association will be asked to negotiate with the Chicago Federation of Musicians for the Chicago hotels.

Heavy Reservations.

A sampling of the night clubs disclosed that unusually heavy reservations are being made for tomorrow night and Sunday night by pleasure seekers wanting a last fling before the curfew goes into effect.

The Columbia Broadcasting system announced a way of continuing after midnight broadcasts by dance orchestras.

The network will pick up dance broadcasts in the eastern time zone until midnight there, then broadcast for an hour from Chicago and the middle west, hop to Denver for an hour on mountain time, and to Los Angeles and San Francisco until it's midnight there.

Mutual to Stop at 12.

The plan will result in broadcast for a half hour longer than before the ban.

The Mutual network announced it would cease broadcasting at midnight, and the NBC and Blue networks said they had scheduled no dance broadcast pickups after midnight.

Many border line cases and questions remained to be settled by the WMC, such as: At what hour can 24 hour bowling alleys reopen after midnight? What about war workers on the swing shift? At what hour can early movies open?

Voters to Decide June 4 on Bond Issue for Parks

Chicago voters will act on the new 10 year park development bond issue June 4, the law department of the Chicago park district said yesterday. Thru an error the date had been announced previously as June 5. The election at which voters will decide on the 60 million dollar project is that of Superior and Circuit court judges.

RIDES ICE FLOES TO RESCUE DOG FROM DROWNING

John Kane, 6439 Maryland av., crossed the sanitary district canal on the ice floes near the district pumping station in Wilmette yesterday in an attempt to rescue two dogs from drowning. The canal is 22 feet deep and about 50 feet wide.

Kane, a sanitary district truck driver, was visiting with Charles Ruud, 7447 N. Artesian av., superintendent of the station, when they heard the dogs, a black and white setter and a small black mongrel. The dogs were clinging with their forepaws to an ice floe.

Ruud ran for a life preserver. Kane grabbed a pike pole and jumped onto a bobbing piece of ice. He leaped from floe to floe, finally hooking the pike under the setter's collar. The mongrel drowned. Kane held to the setter and the life preserver, while Ruud pulled both ashore. The setter shook himself on Kane, and loped away.

ARREST LAWYER AND DETECTIVE ON RAPE CHARGE

Carl [Jack] Burnstein, 33, of 5747 Sheridan rd., a lawyer with offices at 134 N. La Salle st., and Raymond D. [Don] Reinsch, 31, of 7221 Oketo av., a private investigator, were booked on charges of rape by Warren av. police last night after Municipal Judge Irwin B. Clorfene personally appeared at the station and demanded that they be booked or freed.

Police also booked Jean Howard, 20, and Wilma Jean Bogle, also 20, both strip tease dancers living in the Ansonia hotel, 2709 Washington blvd., on charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor girl. They reputedly introduced Burnstein and Reinsch to the alleged rape victim, a girl 16 years old.

Reinsch was arrested Wednesday and Burnstein early yesterday. They were being held for examination by the sex bureau. Yesterday being a holiday, they were not questioned, and last night Judge Clorfene interceded for them. He said he had taught Burnstein law, and his help had been asked. Clorfene insisted the two men be booked on some charge so they could furnish bond. Police consented, and the judge later signed $1,000 cash bonds for each at his home at 3857 Congress st. A professional bondsman provided cash bail, and Burnstein and Reinsch were released. They will appear with Miss Howard and Miss Bogle in Felony court today.

FIRE PREVENTION SCHOOL COURSE TO BEGIN TODAY

The program of the fire department's proposed fire prevention school for factory and hotel night watchmen will be demonstrated at 10 a. m. today in the drill school at 720 Vernon Park pl. Fire Commissioner Corrigan said the fundamentals of fire prevention and the proper way to turn in a fire alarm will be taught to newly appointed firemen. Opening of the school was postponed last week when the watchmen failed to report. Some of their employers said the watchmen wanted to be paid while learning.

TWO MORE RADIO LEADERS BLAST FM BAND SHIFT

Two more radio executives yesterday expressed their views in the controversy on the federal communications commission's proposal to shift frequency modulation [FM] broadcasting from its present band of 42-50 megacycles upward to 84-102 megacycles. The FCC proposed the move on the ground that interference will be reduced in the higher frequencies.

Yesterday Frank Freimann, executive vice president of the Magnavox company, Fort Wayne, Ind., and Gordon G. Brittan, vice president of the Warwick Manufacturing company, Chicago, voiced their objections to the shift.

Freimann sided with those manufacturers who have said that the shift will make obsolete millions of dollars worth of FM equipment.

Board Sees Year's Delay.

Freimann said that the radio technical planning board, meeting on Feb. 14, agreed that the shift would delay the introduction of postwar FM sets a year or more because of lack of suitable transmitting equipment and technical problems.

The board also agreed, he said, that the cost of an FM receiver, working in the proposed band, would be about twice that of one working on the present band or an extension thereof.

Brittan said that the present band is wide enough and that neither an extension of the present band upward to 70 megacycles, as some radio leaders have suggested, nor a shift to 44-102 is warranted. He said that FM broadcasting has not yet demonstrated a wide public acceptance and that until it does the present allocations are adequate.

Columbia Favors 84 to 102.

The Columbia Broadcasting system has filed a brief with the FCC outlining its stand on television and FM. The brief of 40 pages favors the commission's plan of moving FM from 42-50 megacycles to 84-102 megacycles, a change which the FM Broadcasters, Inc., opposes.

CBS objected to the assignment of frequencies either for theater television or subscription radio on the ground that they "would be available to the public only upon payment of a fee and could use wire lines" in contrast to the "gratis services of broadcasters."

ON SHORT WAVES

LONDON.

The North American service of the BBC from London includes the following programs today. The frequencies (in megacycles) employed after 4:15 p. m., are: 11.93, 9.58, 9.52, 6.11, 7.26, 9.51. 4:30 p.m., Front Line Family; 4:45 p. m., News; 6:30 p. m., Radio Newsreel; 7:30 p. m., World Affairs; 11:05 p. m., War review; 11:30 p. m., news reports.

RADIO PROGRAM TO HONOR NEGRO PRESS FOUNDING

Noted Entertainers Will Participate.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

A special program paying tribute to Negroes for their part in the war will be broadcast over WMAQ-NBC at 1:30 p. m. tomorrow. The broadcast, featuring well known Negro and other entertainers, will be presented in observance of the 118th anniversary of the Negro press.

Rochester.

Ralph Cooper, master of ceremonies, will introduce Lena Horne, the songstress, from New York. Lionel Hampton and his band will play in Chicago; Jack Benny and Rochester, from Denver; Enoch Waters and John Jordan, war correspondents, from Pearl Harbor and Rome.

A message from President Roosevelt will be read. Paul Robeson, the actor and singer, will contribute to the program. A drama based on a Negro soldier's heroism in Normandy will be included.

For the first time since they were kids together, Jimmy and Tommy Dorsey, brother band leaders, will play in combination when they appear on Eddie Condon's jazz concert over WENR at 3:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Gunther Hollander, 14, the boy with a British accent, will rejoin the Quiz Kids Sunday evening. Gunther escaped from Germany with two brothers and a sister just before the war and spent four years in England before reaching America. He was brought to the United States by Edna Ferber, his cousin. His father was a judge prior to the war, but was seized by the Nazis and put into a concentration camp.

The Nazi inspired broadcasts of "Mary of Arnhem," directed to allied troops from Holland, are being countered with broadcasts thru three new mobile stations, the British Broadcasting corporation has announced. The mobile stations, in northwest Europe, are on the air from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m., European time. They carry some of BBC's programs by relay and originate others of their own. Each mobile unit is complete with technicians, drivers, and even cooks.

"Mary of Arnhem," among her other "news bulletins," was credited with putting out the fake that Field Marshal Montgomery had taken all the credit for stopping the Nazis in the Ardennes.

Rear Adm. Everett G. Morsell, supply officer of the 9th naval district, will appear on three radio broadcasts today in connection with the 150th anniversary of the supply corps. Adm. Morsell will be a guest o the Breakfast club at 8 a. m. over WCFL; on Elizabeth Hart's program at noon on WMAQ, and on WJJD's Soldiers of Production at 2:30 p. m.

Museum Children's Films.

Nine free movie programs for children will be presented on consecutive Saturdays at 10 and 11 a. m. beginning March 3 in the Chicago Natural History [Field] museum.

U. S. GIVES GOOD HOUSEWIVES BONUS OF RED POINTS

Patriotic American housewives every day are getting extra red points for doing a job that they alone can do for this country.

For those who wish to get this red-point bonus, here's what to do. Save every drop of your used kitchen fats. Turn them in to your butcher promptly. For every pound, he'll give you 2 red points bonus . . . that's how urgently these used fats are needed to make medicines, gunpowder, synthetic rubber, soaps and a hundred other essentials on the battlefield and home front. Keep saving until the last gun's fired!

AIR LINES TOLD TO ACT SOON ON TERMINAL PLAN

Public Works Commissioner Hewitt notified a committee of engineers representing the eight air lines at Chicago airport yesterday that their failure to agree to certain structural details is delaying completion of plans for the new terminal the city hopes to build and get into operation by this fall. He requested the lines to act on proposed interior arrangements of terminal restrooms and to send their proposals to the city architect by noon Saturday.

Hewitt disclosed it was found possible to enlarge the building, originally intended to be 1,400 feet long and 30 feet wide, to 1,500 feet by 40 feet, thus arranging for 35,000 square feet of floor space for the air line offices instead of 25,000.

Pennsylvania Central Airlines notified the city it will want space on the 63d st. side of the airport for a building to house repair shops and a dispatcher's office, and to provide storage space for supplies.

Club Plans Scrapbooks for Military Hospitals.

Members of the library committee of the Woman's City club, which is headed by Mrs. David K. Crighton, will meet at 2 p. m. today in the club rooms to begin work on its new project of making scrapbooks for military hospitals. The cover for the scrapbooks was designed by John Swanson, eighth grade pupil of Hawthorne school.

Camera Peers at What Makes a Violinist Great

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Anybody can hear the difference between your violin playing and Nathan Milstein's. Now it can be seen, too, thru films made by a motion picture camera capable of taking 1,000 photographs per second and recording even the subtlest and slightest movements of the hand and bow.

In the upper lobby of Orchestra hall yesterday Milstein stood patiently under a battery of brilliant lights and executed trills, glissandi, and other of the effects which make up his technical repertoire.

The camera, peering into mysteries which no eye has ever seen, made note of the number of times the great violinist's fingers pressed and released the strings and of the distance they rose from the strings.

Next week, when the films have been developed, they can be run off at a rate so slow that two seconds of playing will be extended to 10 minutes of running time and every tiniest detail can be studied. Also, 2,000 still photographs of the same or any other two seconds of playing can be displayed.

The photographing of Milstein's playing was the beginning of a scientific study of musical performance to be conducted by the Chicago Symphony orchestra and the Illinois Institute of Technology. Milstein was soloist with the orchestra last night and will be again this afternoon. The playing of other violinists who are to come later in the season, as well as that of the orchestra's concertmaster, John Weicher, will also be studied under the high speed camera.

The study is being directed by Dr. David P. Boder, staff technician of the Illinois institute's psychological laboratory. It is a part of a large scale study of the psychology of music which will attempt, among other things, to increase science's knowledge of the reasons for music's effects on human beings.

Dr. Boder explained that the high speed photographs were not designed to reveal everything that makes a particular violinist's playing outstanding but he said that he hoped that something definite could be found out about the technical adroitness which is one of the components of fine performance.

Sally Forwards Patient's Plea for Small Radio

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A social worker from a community house which ministers to the needs of one of the poorer districts of the city has appealed to us for a small radio for Mr. Y., who suffers with a lung ailment and is in a sanitarium. For some time his family has met with misfortune. One child has been an invalid for years and is cared for by a neighbor while Mrs. Y. works to support the household.

Mr. Y. may again become the family provider, but now must have complete rest in order to rebuild his health. He worries about his family's welfare and is restless and unhappy. A radio would keep him interested. We hope some reader who owns an extra one will be willing to donate it.

Perhaps a radio repair man will be willing to do a service for one of our elderly north side applicants. Mrs. W. suffers with a bronchial ailment and has rarely left her room since the death of her husband a few months ago. Her modest living expenses are met by an old age pension and extra expenditures of any kind cannot be considered. Her only source of companionship and entertainment has been her radio, which, unfortunately, is no longer in working order. Her name and address will be supplied upon request.

A More Mature Milstein Scores Major Success

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, Hans Lange, conductor; Nathan Milstein, violinist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Feb. 23, 1945, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon. The program:

Capriol Suite .....Warlock
Symphony No. 3, F major.....Brahms
Concerto for Violin, A minor...Goldmark

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

What do 13 years do to a violinist? Every man has his own answer, and Nathan Milstein gave his last night by scoring one of his major successes in the Goldmark Concerto with the Chicago Symphony orchestra under the sympathetic direction of Hans Lange. That very concerto served for his debut in the spring of 1932 when a relatively unknown young fiddler walked out on the stage of Orchestra hall and got himself called the Horowitz of the violin. His Goldmark, like Horowitz' Rachmaninoff of that period, was bold, brilliant, and challenging, taut to the point of the explosive.

But Milstein, like Horowitz, has changed. He still has what he had, but more has been added. The Goldmark is no masterwork, but it has shining charm and deft craftsmanship and Milstein played it with a delicate brilliance of understatement that bewitched the ear. His tone was supple and polished as spun silk, embroidering the passage work, running sleek and lovely for the singing line, and arching into taut authority for the climactic cadenza. He was no longer a gifted youngster charging headlong into music, but a mature musician who understood, captured, and communicated the flowing lyricism of a beguiling work. The audience was justifiably enchanted and declined to go home without an encore. It was unaccompanied Bach, and it was magnificent.

The orchestra's accompaniment was one of the most rewarding things in a gentle, often beautiful concert. Under Mr. Lange's quiet baton it caught the mood and magic of Milstein's performance, sharing its smiling simplicity that rode so serenely on technical skill. Perhaps a part of this was because the soloist came last and the orchestra improved steadily thru the evening. It began by introducing Warlock's captivating "Capriol Suite" to its midwinter repertory, and played the early dance movements, particularly the tordion, with a touch of understanding wit. The "feet in the air" movement refused to reveal its graces and the finale lost its sense of humor despite Mr. Lange's persuasive baton.

Launching the Brahms Third was rather like getting a battleship under way in a storm. It threatened to flounder because our orchestra has been out of the groove a long, long time. But gradually, gently, quietly, Mr. Lange coaxed and at last Brahms won. It wasn't the great Brahms of older days, that would be too much to expect in one isolated concert, but it was Brahms that slipped deeper and deeper into remembered beauty, until now and then it achieved an exquisite bit of phrasing, a lovely touch of translucence, a sudden glory of tone. The opening of the last movement was an authoritative challenge, a true Brahmsian voice that would not be denied. It was a voice Mr. Lange might give us in all its eloquence, as it did at that Ravinia début when he played the cycle, if the powers that be gave him the chance.

'Private Investigator Maclain'

By Baynard Kendrick

INSTALMENT XLI.

ATTACKED.

Duncan Maclain knew he must act swiftly. For the first time in his life he had so much at stake that he dared not fail. The trouble was that with all his skill he didn't know where to begin.

When the cab rolled off and left him on the silent stretch of East 10th st. he walked up the steps with caution. With his finger close to the button above the third box he stopped and pushed the first button instead. In a few seconds time a buzzer answered.

Outside, from a basement window, somebody called, "Why don't you push the right bell, you drunken bum?"

The captain opened the door and, merging with Schnucke, climbed the stairs like a disembodied shadow.

He listened for five full minutes, then tried the door without a sound. It was unlocked, so he pushed it ajar for an inch or two and listened again. Satisfied at last, he opened it and went on in.

He had to know something and know it fast. Schnucke led him around a chair and stopped at a desk. A whisky bottle was nearly empty. The light bulb in the desk light was cold.

The captain toured a sitting and bedroom and at last found book shelves stuffed with volumes. The bottom ones were stacked with magazines. His fingers flitted over the piles and stopped at the New Yorker, recognizable instantly because they were thin. He riffled thru the two on top, but the volumes were empty.

The third, fourth, fifth, and sixth held clippings shoved in the back. There were more in the ninth and 10th. It was obvious now that Morse had the habit of using New Yorkers to serve as files.

The captain stacked them up again and turned to search for the telephone. With his hand outstretched, he stopped.

He had left the apartment door open, the better to hear. Downstairs some one entered, using a latch key. There was a murmur of voices, and a "Thank you."

Two sets of feet climbed the stairs to the second floor. One set disappeared, lost in the opening and closing of a door. The second set continued, climbing steadily.

The captain knew that a showdown had come. He might postpone it temporarily by closing and bolting the apartment door, but now was as good a time as any. The footsteps were bent on the destruction of Duncan Maclain and Sybella Ford, who knew too much about clippings. The captain backed into the bedroom, holding Schnucke close beside him, and letting it come.

The footsteps stopped in the living room while the owner turned the desk light on, then moved still closed to the bedroom door.

Speaking out of the shadows, the captain said, "My dog will tear you to pieces if you pull a gun. Even if you shoot before he gets you, you'll still have lost, for I'm a deadly shot at sound. The best thing you can do right now is to sit down."

The owner of the footsteps chuckled and came confidently on to enter the bedroom.

The captain heard breathing, and tensing every muscle, launched himself at the sound. He crashed into an unseen stool, taking it on the shin. A fist in brass knuckles cut a three inch gash across his chin and split his lips. He went back down, slamming his head against a partly opened bureau drawer. Then a booted foot smashed into his side, caving two ribs in.

It was then he learned that even a man who has owned one for years can't always tell what a dog will do. For the only time in her gentle life, Schnucke barked a bark of real defiance, which ended in a terrifying growl. Above Maclain a voice snapped out an oath.

The captain reached for his gun and found he lacked the strength to pull and fire. But Schnucke had done her part almost as well as Dreist. The footsteps hurried

The knack of making good yeast breads is one which may be acquired by any one who has patience and perseverance. With a reliable recipe and a thoro understanding of bread making's basic principles, the art is half mastered. "Practice makes perfect" is the answer to learning the other half—the correct technique in handling the dough.

In explaining the principles of bread making, let's start with a basic white bread recipe as a guide:

White Bread.
[Two 1½ pound loaves.]

1 cup milk
2½ tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon salt
1 cake yeast [small size]
1 cup lukewarm water
6 to 6½ cups sifted flour
2½ tablespoons melted shortening

Scald milk; add sugar and salt and cool to lukewarm. Crumble yeast in water which has been boiled then cooled to lukewarm. Add to milk mixture. Add half the flour and beat until smooth. Add shortening and remaining flour, or enough to make dough which is easy to handle. Knead dough quickly and lightly until smooth and elastic and place in lightly greased bowl. Turn dough over and over until well greased. Cover bowl with plate and set in a warm place free from drafts. Let rise until doubled in bulk, about 1½ hours. Divide into two equal parts and shape into loaves. Place in greased bread pans, cover with towel, and let rise again in a warm place until doubled, 1 to 1½ hours. Bake at 425 degrees for about 40 minutes, or until bread shrinks away from sides of pan and gives a hollow sound when tapped. [May be made also into rolls, but slightly less flour should be used.]

No recipe in its usual brief form includes minute details and exact reasons for each step. In bread making the beginner needs additional information, such as this:

Mixing—Milk should be scalded [heated until foamy but not boiling] and water boiled, in order to destroy organisms which might harm the yeast cells. Liquids then should be cooled to lukewarm before yeast is added, as extreme heat affects yeast growth.

Kneading Time—Kneading is important; in fact, correct kneading is perhaps the most important step in bread making. The kneading should be thoro, but heavy pressure is not required. If dough is insufficiently kneaded the bread may be heavy, while too much or too vigorous kneading also makes bread heavy. Ten minutes of uninterrupted kneading is approximately the minimum length of time necessary. Kneading should be done quickly and lightly until the dough is smooth and elastic and the surface blistered; it should not stick to the fingers or board.

Kneading Technique—Turn the ball of dough out on a very lightly floured bread board and flatten it slightly with your knuckles. Press it away from you, using the heels of both hands. Fold it over, turn a quarter turn, and repeat process, adding a little flour from time to time if dough seems too sticky. Avoid adding too much flour. Often a sticky dough will become firm as the kneading proceeds. As a simple test for sufficient kneading, place a ball of dough on the hand and count 30. Well kneaded dough will not stick to the hand when dropped. The surface will feel smooth and satiny.

Rising—Optimum temperature for rising is from 80 to 84 degrees; temperature should never be lower than 75 or more than 90 degrees. Covering the bowl while rising is important to protect dough from drafts and prevent drying out. If dough rises on a radiator, be sure it is protected from direct heat by use of a board or several thicknesses of heavy towels. To tell whether dough has risen enough, press lightly with the finger. If dough springs back it is light.

Baking—Unless you are sure your oven bakes uniformly, turn loaves around once during baking period to insure a uniformly brown crust and thoro baking. When loaves are baked, remove from oven and turn from pans immediately. Place on wire rack or set on top of pans and keep from drafts. Brush with melted fat or oil.

Old-Fashioned Stack Cake

3½ cups sifted cake flour
3½ teaspoons baking powder
1 cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
4 eggs
¾ cup melted shortening
1 teaspoon vanilla
1 cup milk
1½ cups jam or fruit butter

Sift flour once before measuring, then resift three times with baking powder. In the order listed, add rest of ingredients except the jam. Beat well about 5 minutes. Add a little more milk if batter seems too thick. Pour batter into well greased and lightly floured 8 inch cake pans, using ⅓ cup of batter for each pan and spreading well over pans. Bake at 350 degrees for 10 to 12 minutes. There should be nine thin cakes. When cool, put layers together with jam or fruit butter. Let stand 12 hours before serving, wrapping well in waxed paper to prevent drying out. Serve sprinkled with confectioners' sugar.

Willett and the board of directors of the Illinois Association for the Crippled will entertain at tea Sunday, March 4, from 3 to 5 p. m. in the Willett apartment on top of the 20 N. Wacker dr. building. Mr. Willett is chairman in Chicago of the nation-wide campaign to raise funds to meet the demands of the increasing number of crippled persons.

Assisting Mrs. Willett as hostesses at the reception will be Miss Thecla Doniat former director of the Spaulding School for Crippled Children; Mrs. Jules Brady, Mrs. B. J. Cohn, president of the Dorothy Kahn club for Crippled Children; Mrs. Byron V. Kanaley, Mrs. Rollo K. Packard, Mrs. James B. McCahey, and Mrs. Frank L. Beals, among others. Serving as "elevator girls" from the 41st floor to the penthouse during the party will be Miss Claire Ullmann, daughter of the Herbert Ullmanns, and Miss Peggy Houser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Houser Jr. of River Forest. In the absence of George H. Williamson, president of the Illinois association, Mr. Brady, 1st vice president, will preside at a short program.

Today's Events.

Mrs. Frederick A. Preston will not be on hand today to enjoy the fruits of a membership tea which she has arranged for the Junior Army-Navy Guild organization [Jango], as she and Mr. Preston have gone to San Diego, Cal., to spend three weeks with their son, Lt. [j. g.] Charles D. Preston, on duty there with the naval reserve. Thru Mrs. Preston, who helped organize the Chicago branch of Jango at the request of Mrs. Ralph Bard, Mrs. Richard D. Nugent will open her Lake Shore dr. apartment for the party from 4 to 6 p. m. Old, new, and prospective members of Jango, an organization of officers' wives, mothers, and sisters, have been invited to the tea.

Since Miss Beth Coleman and her parents, the John Colemans, left for Miami, Fla., to be gone until April, Miss Coleman's duties as Jango publicity chairman have been taken over temporarily by Mrs. Leland R. Newell. Also Florida bound are Mr. and Mrs. Nugent, who will leave Monday for Boca Raton. Mrs. Nugent's father, Sellar Bullard, will arrive Tuesday from California to join Mrs. Bullard, who has been visiting here for several weeks. While the Nugents are away Mr. and Mrs. Bullard will share the former's apartment with their grandchild, young Barbara Gray Nugent.

When Dr. Walter Gropius speaks at luncheon at 12:15 p. m. today in the Palmer House he will be flanked at the speaker's table by a large group of prominent Chicago men. The luncheon meeting was organized by the Chicago Association of Commerce, the Institute of Design, and the Chicago plan commission. Dr. Gropius will speak on "Rebuilding Our Communities After the War."

Mrs. Allyn D. Warren will be hostess for the English Speaking union at tea this afternoon following Chicago Symphony orchestra's concert in Orchestra hall.

At the Cordon's tea from 4 to 6 p. m. today Maureen Parzybok will sing a group of songs.

The next to last in a series of civic concerts presented by Circle 27 of the Oak Park and River Forest center of the Infant Welfare society will be heard tonight in the Oak Park High school auditorium. The Don Cossack chorus will sing.

Engagement News.

Lt. Arthur Stowe Van Deusen of the naval reserve and Mrs. Van Deusen of Wilmette announce the engagement of their daughter, Genia, to Quartermaster 2d Class Edgar L. Goelz Jr. of the navy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Goelz, also of Wilmette. Miss Van Deusen attended the Roycemore school and Carleton college and has been pursuing a career in photography. Mr. Goelz is at home from duty in the south Pacific.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Linwood Chambers of Riverside announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Ruth, to Glenn Ray Noggle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn J. Noggle of Dayton, O. Miss Chambers, a graduate of Missouri Valley college, received her master's degree from Southern Methodist university in Dallas, Tex., and is teaching English at the University of Illinois. Mr. Noggle, a graduate of Miami university, Oxford, O., also is on the University of Illinois staff.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 22.—When Phil Silvers rubs Aladdin's lamp in "A Thousand and One Nights," and wishes to be a top radio singer, Frank Sinatra's voice will do Silvers' singing. It took a long time for Columbia to get a release for this bit of dubbing, but now it's in the bag. Phil will also grow an enormous bow tie for the occasion. Should be a very funny scene. . . . Carlos Ramirez will be the "Kissing Bandit" in Joe Pasternak's technicolor musical of the same name. . . . Twentieth Century used an old film cut of the Ritz Brothers in "Take It or Leave It" and got such good response it's talking a film offer with them. The boys are now breaking records at the Latin Quarter in Chicago. . . . Dave Street, of the Joan Davis show, has been signed to a term contract at Republic, and will be starred in an untitled musical. . . . Barbara Britton has a chance to go to New York and do a show for the Shuberts as soon as she's finished with "Captain Kidd." . . . Jack Kirkland is in a huddle with International. . . . The new Jimmy McHugh-Harold Adamson song, "Buy, Buy, Buy a Bond," is being recorded by Harry James and Bing Crosby and will be the official song of the next war loan drive.

'Twas Nice Awarding.

Look's achievement awards at the Carthay Circle certainly brought out most of Hollywood. The glamor girl of the whole show turned out to be little Margaret O'Brien, who easily could have taken care of her own award and one for the most promising actress of 1945, too. Greer Garson got her exercise for the evening, because she had to make that long trip to the stage twice, once for herself and the other time for Walter Pidgeon, who's on a hospital tour. But best of all was the naturalness and charm of Ingrid Bergman, who never needs jewels or fancy clothes to outshine any other star. . . . Lt. Comdr. Greg W. Toland, who's now out of the service and is photographing "Uncle Remus" for Walt Disney, has just been notified by Rear Adm. Sylvio de Noronha of the Brazilian navy that he has been awarded the Brazilian order of the southern cross with the rank of officer for documentary pictures that he photographed in Brazil.

Good Neighbors Here, Too.

Miguelito Valdes, the "Sinatra of Latin America," and Carmen Miranda are cementing Latin relations at the night spots. . . . Virginia Mayo is back in town after two months of personal appearances with "Princess and the Pirate," and on bond, Red Cross, and hospital shows. On the way home, she took time out to visit her home town, St. Louis, and get acquainted with a brand new little niece there. . . . Pine and Thomas have a good picture idea in "Tokyo Rose," but they can't find a gal who wants to play the title role. . . . Nora Martin has signed a long term recording deal with Decca. . . . Fred Kohler Jr. is following in his pappy's footsteps. He's one of the villains in "Paris Underground"—plays a gestapo officer.

It Must Be a Gift.

We were discussing alibis the other day, when Fefe Ferri told an amusing one about Molnar and another Hungarian playwright who had invited Molnar to his new play. Afterwards Molnar expressed the opinion that the play would fail, and the author was indignant. "You may not like it, but I'll just show you. I'll just ask one of the audience." So in the lobby the author stopped a man who was coming out and asked what he thought of the play. "It smells!" said the man as he walked on. "You see?" said the author to Molnar. "Controversial, isn't it?" . . . Remember Mary Mannering, a beauty of the gay nineties? She retired from the stage when she married. Now she has paid $110,000 for a beautiful home at Holmby Hills, and becomes the neighbor of Irene Dunne and Claudette Colbert. . . . Tony Romero tells about the rookie he overheard talking to a mess sergeant. "Can you dress a chicken?" roared the sergeant. "Not on the money the army pays me," answered the rookie.

Fashion Group Show Presents Spring Preview

BY ELEANOR PAGE.

The message that the Chicago Fashion Group brought to a capacity audience at its eighth annual spring fashion show yesterday in the Drake hotel, "Fashion Becomes You," ended on an optimistic note: "Keep lovely, the days of peace are on their way." At least 60 ways to keep lovely were paraded on the runway, all becoming to the pretty young models and undoubtedly to the average woman, too, in a show that was intended by Fashion Group members to present an accurate picture of fashions for the forthcoming season.

The Fashion Group, thru its regional director, Mrs. Mary Sharpe, who served as commentator, predicts the strong influence of French inspiration but denies a future of slavish copying. "No longer is there the backward glance to Paris," said Mrs. Sharpe. "American designers have found strength in their isolation. This collection speaks more eloquently of American talent than has been evident at any time previously."

The dresses brought back to the runway at the close of the show, chosen by advisory members of the group as prophetic of the coming season, included a new three-quarter length coat of black wool with an unusual cut to its sculptured shoulders, a silk suit which combined black, mahogany brown, pale blue, and white, and a pale pink felt hat covered with a profusion of lovely flowers and accented for good measure by streamers of azure blue satin ribbon.

Others chosen from the collection as particular fashion news were a three piece wool suit in palest pink, a black crepe dress with an "uncluttered" neckline and a skirt that dipped in back, trimmed with one huge cabbage rose where one might expect to find a bustle, and a startling dinner pyjamas costume consisting of mid-calf length slacks of tomato colored crepe topped by a long sleeved blouse of smokey green with a tiny mandarin collar.

Other trends noted in the show were the number of inverted kitchen pot hats of all colors and materials, which were greeted with mixed emotions by beret or bunch-of-flowers conscious women, and the "presentably naked" fashions for beach and dinner wear. For beach wear was shown a ballerina skirt and brassiere of black cotton. The model removed the skirt in a modest strip tease to reveal brief tailored shorts of black polka dots on white.

About $2,000 will be given to Gardiner General hospital as a result of the show.

Chicagoan Sets Fashion Trend for Very Young

BY REA SEEGER.

One of the smartest styling tricks of the year can be credited to Fred A. Block of Chicago. Mr. Block has won future customers thru their buying mothers by assembling a collection of little girl dresses, sizes 3 to 6 plus that are just about the cutest things in town. You can find them in smart shops and stores in Chicago, as well as in shops and stores around the country that feature the grown-up models with the same label.

Appreciative mammas will buy the diminutive models just for the clever label and name. They're called "Little Blocks" and each tiny cardboard tag is a replica of a building block. The cloth label sewed to the dress also shows the tiny playing blocks. The dresses are fascinating, especially those in the size 3 group. Equipped with tiny pockets for dimpled little fists, fancy, colorful braid, and absurdly narrow ruffles and frills, the gay cottons in stripes, tiny checks, and sunshine shades of yellow provide a most abundant choice.

Fred A. Block originals made in Chicago long have been known for expert workmanship, inspired details, and good looking colors. The collections include day time and street clothes, suits, and coat dresses. Glittering new favorites and short dress-up clothes are bespangled with sequins and silk embroidery.

Chicken Roll-Ups: A Novel Idea for a Luncheon Dish

(Other recipes, menus, and food suggestions will be found on the opposite page.)

A tasty chicken filling encased in rich pastry, with a topping of fresh mushroom sauce, is a super luncheon dish you'll want to spring on your next group of noonday guests. Here it is served with peas and carrots and fruit gelatin salad. To make chicken roll-ups: [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]

Melt 2 tablespoons margarine, add 2 tablespoons flour, smooth to a paste, then stir in gradually ½ cup cream and ½ cup chicken broth [or 1 cup milk]. Cook until smooth and thickened. Beat well 2 egg yolks, add a little of the hot mixture, then return to double boiler. Add 2 cups finely diced cooked chicken, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, 1 tablespoon minced onion, a few grains of ginger, and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Cook for 10 minutes over hot water, then cool. Make pie dough, using 1½ cups flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, and just enough ice water to moisten for rolling. Roll very thin, cut into squares 5 by 5 inches, spread with chicken, and roll up. Moisten ends and press together. Brush with beaten egg yolk diluted with a little cream and bake in a greased pan for half an hour at 400 degrees. Top with mushroom sauce.

Film 'Meet Me in St. Louis' Is Sheer Delight

By Mae Tinée.

Delightful is the word for this movie!

As an ardent reader of Sally Benson's stories of the Smith family, I was a bit leery as to what the movies might do with them—but I'm happy to assure others who enjoyed them that they've been very deftly handled and have lost none of their refreshing simplicity and charm.

The story concerns brief episodes in the life of a large family living in St. Louis in 1903, when the entire city is agog over the coming world fair. The old house shelters Mr. and Mrs. Smith, their four daughters and one son, grandpa, and Katie, the maid, who is a most important member of the family.

The film has been splendily cast. Harry Davenport's grandpa is a nicely gay old fellow; Mary Astor is sweetly patient as the mother of five; Leon Ames plays Father Smith, who is harassed and occasionally overwhelmed by his offspring; Judy Garland and Lucille Bremer are perfect examples of a pair of girls with matrimony on their minds, and little Margaret O'Brien was a perfect choice for the role of Tootie, the baby of the family. She's an imp and a darling, and you'll love her!

I particularly enjoyed the Halloween sequence, in which Tootie runs about in rags and tatters, with glasses and an enormous false nose, wide-eyed and wistful because she's "too little" to take part in the fun.

Filmed entirely in color, the settings are perfect to the last detail—dominated by a nice ginger-bready old house, bedecked with stained glass windows, furnished with loads of knicknacks, and illuminated by gas. The costumes are carefully styled to the period and have a definite Gibson girl flavor. The musical numbers, featuring Judy Garland, are well done, but they are only an extra fillip to an entirely adequate production.

"Meet Me in St. Louis" is gay, and quaint, and tuneful as a music box and excellent entertainment for any one of any age.

White Collar GIRL

By Ruth Mac Kay

V-Mail.

Dear Soldier:
You will be surprised, I think,
To learn that you're my constant inspiration;
When I grow tired, my thoughts go out to you

And do not quit because you have the notion.
So, why should I complain of extra work!

Good Scout.

She's small, dark, and lively. Daytimes she manages the girls' shop in a State st. store. When the shop closes she goes home to the interests curled closest to her heart—a husband, two teen-age youngsters, Ted and Betty, and her spaniel, Buster.

You'd think that might be quite a task even for hands as capable as Dorothy Shoenberger's, but for extra measure she adds another interest. A couple of years ago she organized a Girl Scout troop of 7 to 10 year old "Brownies." Later, she led a group of 10 to 14 year olds, then turned her spare time to a bigger job, that of chairman of her neighborhood district of six Scout troops.

She is one of 2,500 Chicago women who meet once a week with eager faced Girl Scouts. Surprisingly enough, almost two-thirds of these volunteer leaders are white collar girls, and the list of their occupations runs all the way from riveters to M. D.'s. Surely there ought to be some little badge of honor for these busy persons who give so much of their time to our future white collar girls simply because, in Mrs. Shoenberger's words, they — well — they "just like to!"

Pork on Way to Becoming Only a Dream

BY ARNOLD ERICKSON.

If you enjoy ham 'n' eggs, minus the ham, you will be able to satisfy your appetite for this breakfast meal pretty well in the weeks ahead, because there's likely to be a reasonably generous supply of eggs. However, if you want the combination you will find it difficult to match every two eggs you buy with even a small, thin slice of ham.

So serious has the pork supply situation become that distribution experts at the stock yards anticipate weeks at a time in the next eight or nine months when many housewives will not even see ham or pork chops in their retail butcher shops. The situation as it is developing for civilians is much worse than even the most pessimistic experts in the industry dared predict when they were warning the office of price administration many months ago to correct the errors made when it first became entangled with the complex live stock and meat business.

Despite the fact that large numbers of unfinished cattle are being slaughtered many weeks before they are ready for beef production, the larger beef tonnage cannot offset the decline in pork production caused by the disastrous liquidation of breeding herds which followed the imposition of the ceiling on live hogs in the fall of 1943. The hog selling wave continued thru the first half of 1944, and since then the industry has operated on a lower production scale than at any time since this country entered the war.

In the last month packers under federal inspection produced 5 million fewer hams than in the same month of 1944, a reduction of 32 per cent, and the output this month is 35 per cent below that of January. The end of production decline is not in sight. Pig raising has been falling ever since the OPA first set a price limit on live hogs on Oct. 4, 1943, and this decline is still in progress.

If you have fear the men in service are suffering as a result of the current meat shortage you can forget them, packers said. Altho they are unable to supply all the meat cuts of every kind whenever federal buyers ask for them, packers have been able to supply all the tonnage needed by service men at all times. They doubt that the time will come when the services will have to sacrifice meat for some other foods as the civilians and lend-lease have to do these days.

Buyers for the services hold a priority over all others in Packingtown. As long as there is any meat at all they get it. However, the program to use meat as a bid for cooperation in the liberated countries has been seriously upset by the failure of lend-lease buyers to obtain volume. The decline in lend-lease purchases has been staggering. During the first five weeks of this year lend-lease obtained 50 per cent less pork than in the same weeks last year, 94 per cent less beef and veal, 87 per cent less lamb and mutton, 14 per cent less canned meats, and 89 per cent less lard. In all, lend-lease purchases for the five weeks were 173,582,000 pounds, compared with 465,595,000 pounds in the same period last year.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 heart	Pass	3 diamonds
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	3 spades
Pass	4 clubs	Pass	7 hearts

Opening lead, 10 of spades.

The bidding is given as it actually occurred, tho it doesn't have the complete recommendation of this department. We are old fashioned enough to desire a little more solidity for our grand slam contracts.

The opening lead was the 10 of spades. Declarer refused to finesse, winning the first trick with the ace. Concluding that his best chance was to establish dummy's diamonds, he immediately went to work on that suit, trusting that the outstanding six cards would be divided three and three. When this hope failed to materialize, the contract landed on the rocks.

Declarer cursed his hard luck instead of bewailing his faulty technique. He had a much better prospect of fulfillment on another line of play. That the six outstanding diamonds would probably not break three and three did not occur to him. There was the further consideration that even if the diamonds did break, he would lose the hand, if any player had four hearts, because if the diamonds were ruffed that opponent would have more trumps than himself.

The best plan was to try to cash all eight trumps separately, which together with three club tricks and two other aces would count to 13. The proper procedure was to play the ace, king, and queen of clubs, discarding dummy's two spades. A small spade is now ruffed with the two of hearts. The ace of diamonds, followed by another diamond, ruffed by the four of hearts, and now it is impossible to lose any tricks, because the danger of an over-ruff has disappeared. By cross-ruffing the spades and diamonds declarer makes the balance of the tricks.

When this line of play was pointed out to the actual player, he said he disliked to lead out the ace, king, and queen of clubs for fear some one would ruff. In order for him to be justified in his apprehension, the outstanding nine clubs would have to be divided seven and two, an extremely remote holding. The best percentage play was really quite simple.

Mrs. Grace F., Chicago—My husband cut a tin can almost in two at the center and folded it to fit neatly over the rim of my basement wash tub. The two parts of this can, fastened firmly to the rim, make excellent holders for my soaps, bluing, ammonia, etc.

Mary D., Evanston—To pry a stubborn lid off vacuum sealed can, I use a tool handle wedge which I keep in my kitchen drawer for this purpose.

Mrs. Ted W., Chicago—When coffee, chocolate, or cocoa stains become "set," I make a paste of borax and water and rub this thoroly into the stains. This usually will remove them. If I can catch the stain right away I soak in cold water for several hours, pour boiling water thru the stains from a height, then launder as usual.

Women Urged to Help Shape World Future

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

Never before have women, particularly American women, had such an opportunity as they have today to assume an effective part in shaping the future of the world. This was the consensus of speakers of different occupations and interests who yesterday addressed a Chicago area conference on women's share in post-war planning.

Some 34 leading women's organizations were represented at the all day meeting in the Palmer House, arranged by the Altrusa club and presided over by its president, Mrs. Stella Ford Walker.

The conference followed similar regional meetings in Texas, Minnesota, and New York, all stemming from a first conference of key women from all parts of the country last June at the White House.

From the local school board to the international councils that will plan the peace, women must have a voice in policy making, the speakers asserted. To prepare themselves for a responsible national and world citizenship, women must learn "the economic facts of life," the conference was told by Mrs. Raymond Sayre, Ackworth, Ia., vice president of the Associated Women of the American Farm bureau.

It was Mrs. Sayre's opinion that women generally are "long on enthusiasm and short on facts," and she urged a more conscientious study of basic economic and social problems toward intelligent action. "It's not the women who stay in the kitchen and serve the refreshments who will be the policy makers of the future," she reminded her audience.

Miss Mary V. White, president of the Illinois State Woman's Trade Union league, spokesman for women in industry, told the conference that one-fifth of the country's working women are the principal bread earners in their families and that the war's toll of dead and disabled will substantially increase the number obliged to support family or dependents. From 75 to 80 per cent of women now working will want to continue working after the war, she said. The only sure solution for problems of discrimination and unequal pay for women in industry, she said, lies in providing enough jobs for all workers.

Mrs. Edna Siebert, vice president of the Illinois Education association, told the conference that teachers were leaving the profession in alarming numbers, chiefly because of inadequate salaries, and that decreasing numbers of young people were interesting in entering the teaching field. Both she and Miss Iman Elsie Schatzmann, former executive secretary of the committee on rural education of the American Country Life association, enumerated discriminatory practices against women teachers and urged concerted action to raise public school standards.

Mrs. La Fell Dickinson, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, called for united action among women for the withdrawal of all discriminatory legislation, state and federal, based on sex.

Thru the Looking Glass

The necessity for wearing glasses certainly shouldn't strike terror into the heart of even the vainest woman nowadays. On you, and you, and you, glasses can look good! And it's been definitely established—maybe just because eyeglasses are now an asset to chic rather than a drag—that the old line about men's failure to make passes at girls who wear glasses is sheer bosh.

Eyeglass frames, as you may have noticed, have been styled up. The lense is chosen for your individual needs, of course, but the frame, both in shape and in color, is something you ought to choose with an eye to effectiveness. Maybe it's the pixie effect you need, which can be achieved easily with the harlequin lens. Maybe you're just the type to wear the severe, round frames which used to be considered "school teacherish" but now can, on the right type, be as smart as any spring bonnet. What you should have should be decided upon in relation to your facial contour, your general type, AND your coiffure. Nine times out of 10, when the frames are well selected, glasses can give the face a certain piquant look, or an attractively intelligent look. In other words, glasses are nothing to fear—and certainly nothing to refrain from using if the eye specialist says you need them.

When you do get your well chosen glasses pay careful attention to the line and the grooming of your brows. Fuzzy, neglected brows can make the whole face look subtly soiled, whereas a clean, tho not exaggerated, line can give a touch of crispness to your whole makeup.

And remember, too, that you must make your mouth up especially well as a second facial focal point when you wear glasses. This is most important; the mouth should be well defined so that the glasses don't dominate the whole face.

Spring Designs

The soft lines of this princess frock recommend it to many figure types. The shoulders and sleeves have the new spring detailing. As a companion pattern, there is one for a matching hat and bag set. Style No. 3768 is designed for sizes 12 to 46. Size 36 requires 2⅞ yards of 35 or 39 inch material. Style No. 3716 requires one yard of 35 inch fabric for both in the one adaptable size. Applique included.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The spring fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Services offices, is 15 cents, 12 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

The petite miss from 3 to 6 need not wait for summer days to display her cotton finery; she may wear it now and look like the proverbial breath of spring. Fresh new cotton dresses are being unpacked and going like hot cakes. Stripes, checks, and prints in seersucker, chambray, pique, and sheers are found in high colors or delicate pastels.

Reminiscent of the lovely tissue ginghams is the pastel checked cotton dress at the left. This blue, green, and white combination has three bias bands trimming the skirt above the hemline. Lace insertion marks the high waist line in front, and matching edging trims the cuffs and high round neck line. A belt tied in a butterfly bow decorates the back.

The ice cream pink sheer cotton in the center is imprinted with small blue flowers. The skirt has five rows of horizontal tucks above the hem line, and the entire bodice is covered with fine vertical tucks. The peplum influence is noticeable in the minute shirred band under eyelet insertion at the waist line. Eyelet embroidery trims the snow white turn-over collar. This model also is available in pastel blue with blue flowers.

An interesting stripe treatment is found in the blue and white sheer cotton at the right. The skirt and center of the bodice have a vertical arrangement in contrast to the insertion between two bands of red and white cotton braid. The square yoke, trimmed with the same braid, is edged with eyelet embroidery. This dress also is available in red and white stripes.

Goodwill Industries Auxiliary to Discuss Furnishings Project

The woman's auxiliary of Goodwill Industries will discuss ways and means of furnishing the new building planned for the Goodwill plant at a meeting at 10:30 a. m. today in the Chicago Woman's club offices, 410 S. Michigan av. Since the old plant at 2425 Wallace st. has been condemned, the organization has conducted an intensive fund drive in order to carry on its program of training physically handicapped persons to become self-supporting. The women's division hopes to furnish the following departments of the new building: Curative shop, first aid center, kitchen and dining room, chapel, and laundry and dry cleaning departments. Mrs. Burnett D. Warner heads the women's department.

Speaker Tells Need Today of a Washington

George Washington was "neither a Virginian nor an easterner, but the symbol of our national integrity" whose knowledge of human values and understanding of practical citizenship would be of great help today, Dr. L. Hubbard Shattuck, director of the Chicago Historical society, said last night at a Washington's birthday dinner of the Illinois Society of Sons of the Revolution in the Union League club.

Teaching of American principles and theories is the "bounden duty" of American educational institutions, Dr. Shattuck said, and he recommended that Americans who enjoy the privilege of criticism also heed their governmental responsibility.

At a luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis club of Chicago yesterday, the nation's first President was credited with establishing the pattern of thinking and leadership still followed in American life. The speaker was Guy H. Vande Bogart, president of the Northern Montana college at Havre, Mont.

Using as his subject, "The Continuing Leadership of Washington," Dr. Vande Bogart recalled that Washington urged a sound financial system, warned against over emphasis on political party spirit, and emphasized the importance of carefully planned relationship with foreign governments. The great general also advocated avoidance of interference with the internal affairs of foreign countries but believed in understanding their problems, the speaker said.

School children on holiday yesterday used the opportunity to visit the city's museums. An estimated 5,500 youngsters pushed thru the Museum of Natural History. The Adler planetarium reported 315, an attendance three times as big as on the two previous pay days. The Chicago Academy of Sciences noted attendance doubled, while the Art institute's 2,500 visitors were described as an average number.

Babies Often Do Not Follow Set Routines

(Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

"He's supposed to go to sleep at 6, but his hour seems to be 7. And he's supposed to sleep two hours in the morning and two hours in the afternoon, and he only has one nap a day," said the baby's mother. "And he's supposed to take 8 ounces of milk at every feeding, but sometimes he only takes four or six and I think he needs more for his bones," she went on, quoting the very good book she refers to. "I can't make his day work out according to their program for a 6 month old baby, so I've given up trying."

"But he's about the healthiest, happiest baby I ever saw," I remarked. "And the doctor says he's perfect, so why let those details trouble you?"

Each baby is, in a sense, a law unto himself. That is, every baby is an individual, and altho he has certain universal needs and attributes of babyhood, he also has his own particular needs, rhythms, and quirks.

Every baby needs plenty of sleep and food. But all babies will not need the same amount of each, take them at the same time, nor even be absolutely uniform from day to day. If mothers would accept this, they would worry and fuss less.

Some days a baby is more rested than others; some days he's hungrier than others. We can't know just why; perhaps he may grow faster some days than others, or he may in some way which we can't observe, use more energy at some times than at others. So we must accept some variation from day to day; and also some deviation from the regimes laid out in even the best o. baby books.

OHIO MEETS ILLINOIS; TITLE HOPES AT STAKE

MISSOURIANS' GLOVES SPIRIT HITS NEW HIGH

Booms in St. Louis and Kansas City.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The traditional enthusiasm generated by Golden Gloves competition, due to reach its 1945 zenith in the Tournament of Champions Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday in the Chicago Stadium, this year has received fresh impetus in every one of the out of town centers which are coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in boxing's biggest show.

If you think that the home town folks thruout the country are not back of their favorites, consider the attendance figures in the tournaments conducted by the Kansas City Star and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Both are prime examples of the high pitched interest in Golden Gloves thruout the nation this year. Every youngster who steps into the Stadium ring during the three night struggle next week will make his entrance confident that the fans back home are pulling for him to go thru to the championship finals in the Stadium on March 9.

Turn Out Despite Blizzard.

Take the St. Louis Globe Democrat tourney, for instance. Justin Faherty, the event's director, reports that the four nights of punching there attracted an aggregate audience of 33,425. More remarkable, however, was the final night's crowd of 11,352 who came to cheer their champions despite the fact that the most crippling blizzard St. Louis had known in five years was lashing the city during the bouts.

Ernie Mehl of the Kansas City Star follows his Missouri colleague with the proud record of 25,000 spectators in the three nights required to determine his team. The final night drew 13,000.

Zaler Heavyweight Alternate.

The Globe-Democrat team includes two boxers who have won a total of seven intercity bouts this season against Cleveland, Kansas City and Oklahoma City. They are Harold McComy of the St. Louis Broadway A. C., a flyweight, and Curtis Smith, East St. Louis lightweight. Corp. Steve Selenkow of the army air forces, fighting unattached, won a tough decision in the heavyweight final against Corp. William Zaler, Chicagoan who is stationed at Jefferson Barracks. Zaler probably will return to his home town, however, since Corp. Selenkow was unable to obtain leave. Returning to the welterweight side of the Tournament of Champions will be Bill Jackson, 147 pound St. Louis champ two years ago.

Other St. Louis candidates now being groomed by Coach Paul Spiea, himself a noted Golden Gloves alumnus, include Austin [Skeets] Gillam, 160 pounds; Fred Latson, 126 pounds; John Gulley, 175 pounds, and John Slazinik, a novice graduate who won the 118 pound open championship this year.

Rivera Is Classy Flyweight.

The Kansas City troupe brings with it one of the outstanding favorites to win the 112 pound Golden Glove. He is Frank Rivera, a Mexican, who is rated by Mehl the best flyweight Kansas City has seen in years. Frank holds intercity victories over Chicago, St. Louis and Oklahoma City boxers in his class. Ray Spurlock, middleweight who fought for Chicago in the intercity bouts against New York last March, is another repeater.

The remainder of the Kansas City team consists of Sgt. Matt Baranski, a welterweight from Great Bend, Kas., who has won 26 consecutive fights in army competition; Bob Jarvis, bantamweight; Bob Childers, lightweight; George Lawrence, light heavyweight from Haskell Institute, and John Taylor, Fort Leonard Wood heavyweight.

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BY ARCH WARD.

BOB LEWIS, the Cub secretary, is as jovial a fellow as you'd want to meet, except for a few pet peeves. . . . One of these is the ball player who comes to the Cubs from a rival club and immediately begins broadcasting about how "we used to do it in New York, or wherever." . . . He awards the championship in that department to a player who came to the north siders from the Giants. . . . After the newcomer's batting average had shrunk down below his weight he told Lewis he was sure the bat manufacturers were using an inferior grade of wood as compared to that used by the Giants. . . . Then he demanded that Robby write a curt letter to the bat people, advising them that the dastardly inequality had been discovered. . . . George Franck, who played with the Giant eleven following a brilliant career at the University of Minnesota, has won his captaincy in the marine air corps. . . . Charley Berry, the one time White Sox catcher and now an umpire in the American league, recently ran across Hank Soar of the football Giants during a tour of Greenland. . . . Charley said Hank was one of the most popular soldiers in that northern outpost. . . . George Jones, the Iowa Seahawks' ranking 440 yard man, did not go out for track in his campus days at Maryland State Teachers' college. . . . He did earn a varsity letter in soccer, however. . . . Lt. Col. Charles F. Leonard, who has charge of cadet military training at West Point, holds one Olympic record that cannot be bettered. . . . Col. Leonard scored perfectly in the 200 shot pistol event of the modern pentathlon in the 1936 games in Berlin. . . . He took second place in the complete competition, which also includes swimming, fencing, riding, and cross-country. . . . Incidentally, he coaches the academy pistol team now.

More than 1,323,000 persons, from all over the world, have visited Man o' War at the Jeffords-Riddle Faraway farms in the heart of the Kentucky blue grass country. . . . Signatures of visitors are kept in 63 huge ledgers, each with 500 pages and 42 names to the page. . . . Race st. in Philadelphia was one of Philadelphia's earliest turf courses. . . . It was called originally Sasafras st. but, even after racing on a public thorofare was banned in 1726, Philadelphians continued to refer to it as Race st., so the city fathers made it official. . . . Eugene [Scrapiron] Young, who resigned as Notre Dame's trainer to operate a boys' camp, has completed arrangements for the site at Covington, La. with the Christian Brothers of St. Paul college. . . . Mel Ott was spotted wearing glasses as he followed the players around in the New Orleans Open golf tournament. . . . "They're no good for hitting," said Mel, "I've already tried them." . . . Ray Ellis, Madisonville [Ky.] High school coach, has been signed as line coach at Georgia Tech.

Think it too much to ask
That ere we spoke your hand found mine
In a familiar clasp?

Can't you see us roll back the years
And sweetly reminisce
Upon those days when life for us
Brimmed o'er with happiness?

The hand of Fate is kind at times
And makes a wish come true,
And it could be that sometime I

BASEBALL'S BIG PROBLEM NOW IS PERSONNEL

Congress Holds Key to Prospects.

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Man power remained baseball's big problem today as President Ford Frick of the National league returned from a series of Washington conferences to await final action on the work or fight bill and put into effect the new travel saving plans.

Frick said President Will Harridge of the American league, the other half of the game's diplomatic team, was en route to Chicago and no further trips to the capital were planned until the limited service bill is passed or defeated.

Contrary to popular opinion, it was learned most baseball men favor passage of some sort of a man power bill, centralizing control in one government agency with a definite nation-wide policy.

Players Are Waiting, Too.

Players have been unusually slow in returning their 1945 contracts and club owners have attributed this reluctance to doubt about job status. No change for the better can be expected until congress takes a final vote on the pending legislation. An important move by baseball itself can then be expected.

Other than to repeat that "we had a most pleasant and helpful talk" with Mobilizer James Byrnes, Frick confined his comments to a discussion of the conference with Col. J. Monroe Johnson, ODT chief.

No Request Is Made.

"I think it should be brought out that the ODT didn't ask us to make any 25 per cent mileage reduction," Frick stated. "That was an arbitrary figure agreed upon by Harridge and me before our press conference. Col. Johnson mentioned no figure and was very pleased at what we already had done."

Frick estimated the 25 per cent savings they expected to make would mean a reduction of approximately 1,000,000 passenger miles.

Having estimated cancellation of the All-Star game as saving 500,000 miles, he said other cuts would be effected by doubling up on small trips and cutting number of players on some hops.

No Big Schedule Shifts.

"There will be no drastic changes in our schedule," Frick predicted. "Nobody asked us to consider any east-west plan nor to cut our intersectional trips below the planned three.

"We can save travel room and I am working on a letter to go to my club owners tomorrow explaining our trip and asking coöperation."

Clarifying the status of exhibition games, Frick said a club's spring training base would mean its "home city" before the season started. He pointed out the New York Giants and Yankees could play at Atlantic City, N. J., the Yanks' base, but could not play at Baltimore, a neutral city.

TRAVEL CUT UNIVERSAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22 (AP).—Some sports may be asked to reduce travel more than baseball does this year under a conservation policy being formulated by the office of defense transportation.

The ODT is seeking to cut "at least 25 per cent" in sports and other fields of civilian transportation, and baseball yesterday voluntarily pledged complete coöperation with this program.

Other travel groups [including nonsports] may not have made appreciable reductions, it was pointed out, and some have even increased their travel.

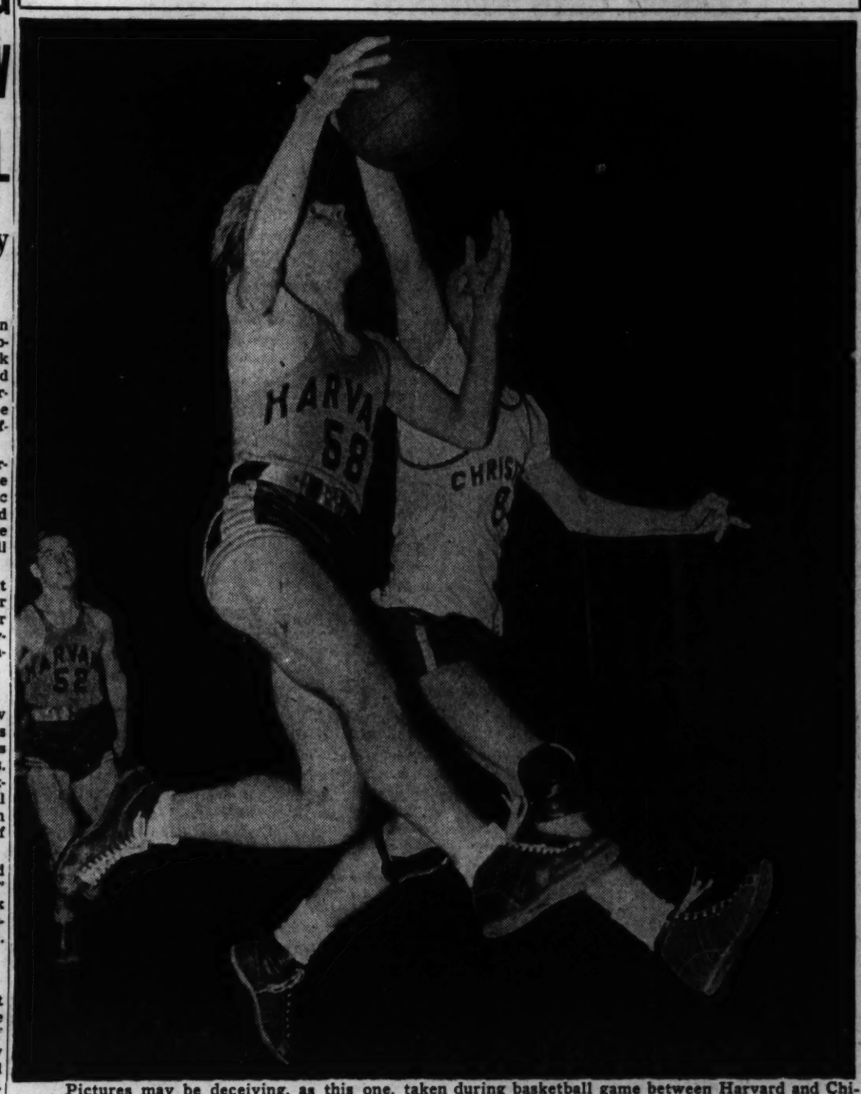
ROBINSON AND LAMOTTA MEET AGAIN TONIGHT

New York, Feb. 22 [Special].—Ray Robinson, Harlem welterweight, is a 2-1 favorite to defeat Jack Lamotta, Bronx middleweight, in tomorrow night's 10 round bout in Madison Square Garden. The fight will mark their fourth meeting.

Robinson, who will be outweighed some 13 pounds, about 147 to 160, holds two decisions over Jack. Lamotta is the only fighter ever to whip the so-called uncrowned welter king. Jack did it in Detroit in February, 1943. The boys fought twice in Detroit and in the second meeting Ray reversed the decision.

It will be Robinson's first appearance in the Garden since August, 1943, when he outpointed Henry Armstrong. Since being discharged from the army, Robinson has won eight fights, six by knockouts.

BALLET ON THE BASKETBALL STAGE



Pictures may be deceiving, as this one, taken during basketball game between Harvard and Chicago Christian prep teams in the Private School league tournament in University of Chicago fieldhouse yesterday proves. It appears that Price Jackson (58) of Harvard and Earl Wolf (8) of Christian are executing a perfectly synchronized dance maneuver, whereas Price really is taking a running shot at the basket while Earl strives desperately to thwart the shot. Price got his basket and Harvard won the game, 49 to 31. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Add Signs of Spring: Grimm Takes Over for New Season

BY EDWARD PRELL.

Charley Grimm, who has been coming to Wrigley field since 1919 as player, coach, manager, radio announcer, and fan, checked in at the north side park yesterday for his first full season as Cub pilot since 1937.

When some one mentioned these various roles, Charley, now 45, admitted the years were piling up in recalling his first visit to the park. He came to Chicago late in 1919 as a rookie first baseman for the Pittsburgh Pirates after having played with Little Rock in the Southern association.

"Jim Vaughn was the Cub pitcher," Charley reminisced. "I hit a double off the big left hander. That night I composed the longest letter I have ever written. It was to the folks back home in St. Louis. I described in detail the flight of the ball and how it finally bounced off the brick wall in right field."

Charley's Exit as Player Was a Bit Different.

Nineteen years later Grimm's active career came to an end on the same field. The Cubs were playing the Dodgers and Watson Clark, also a lefty, was pitching against Charley's team.

"It was in the ninth or 10th inning," said Charley. "Score was tied, two out, and a runner in scoring position. . . . I struck out as a pinch hitter and we lost the game in the 12th."

Then Charley came back to the present, baseball's fourth war year, with its increasing man power shortage and travel problems.

"As I see it," he declared, "it's up to the managers to be optimistic and do the best they can. I've looked over the fellows we have listed for this season and if we can keep most of them we'll be all right. But I've just come from St. Louis and down there they think it will be the Cardinals again."

He'll Miss Dallessandro, but Not Lou Novikoff.

Grimm especially was cheered after inspecting the catching department, which lists five. These are Mickey Livingston, Dewey Williams, Paul Gillespie, Leonard Rice, and Joe Stephenson. Last year the Cubs were in such straits back of the plate they paid $25,000 for Williams, an International leaguer. Livingston and Gillespie have drawn medical discharges from military service. The Cubs traded Bill Lee to the Phils two years ago for Livingston, who started moving ahead of Clyde McCullough as the regular catcher.

Secretary Bob Lewis (left) welcomes Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs to Wrigley field.

The Cub manager expressed regret over the loss of Dom Dallessandro, who in 1944 had his best season with the Cubs. As for Lou Novikoff, whose release to Los Angeles was announced Wednesday, Grimm feels that the Russian just didn't have major league ability.

"Looks like our pitchers will be all right if we can keep them," he ventured. "We've got old-timers, youngsters, and in-betweeners, with three left handers among them."

The southpaws are 38 year old Ray Prim, who won 22 and lost 10 for Los Angeles and had a 1.70 earned run average; Charles Gassaway, 35, who won 17 and lost 8 for Milwaukee, and Bob Chipman, who had a combined 12 won and 10 lost record last season with the Dodgers.

In all there are 16 pitchers, including Al Nusser, a Chicago semi-pro, whose signing was announced yesterday. He is 32, a 210 pound 6-footer, whose only professional experience was in 1938 in the Western International league.

Plans to Open Spring Camp at French Lick March 8.

All of last year's infielders are on the 39-player roster, with several additions. Heinz Becker, the first baseman, is getting a third trial. Other infielders returning for new chances are Pete Elko, who hit .351 at Nashville; Glen Russell, who batted .315 at Los Angeles, and John Ostrowski, who hit .282 with the Angels.

Roy Johnson and Milt Stock are Grimm's assistants. He said a bull pen coach would be obtained shortly. There have been reports that Richard [Red] Smith, Grimm's former aid, has been signed, but such is not the case, tho he still is a possibility. The Cubs will begin training at French Lick March 8.

Harvard school, winner of the Private School league title and favorite in the Private school tournament now under way in the University of Chicago fieldhouse, last night won its opening game in the meet by defeating Chicago Christian, 49 to 31.

Harvard led all the way, running up a 30 to 14 advantage at half time.

Harvard's opponent in the semi-finals will be Concordia, which came from behind in the final two minutes of play to defeat Luther, 43 to 42, after trailing thruout the game.

Concordia's fast finish came when Center Ed Trushein tied the score with a pivot shot after Luther had led, 42 to 40, with two minutes to play. Trushein's goal was followed by a free throw by Forward Roman Vallesky.

University High defeated Chicago Latin, 20 to 12, in the third game, as Bill Gray scored nine points.

INJURIES MAY SLOW ILLINI IN GAME TONIGHT

Three Big 9 Duels Carded Tomorrow.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Illinois' basketball squad, with four road games to play, begins a critical week-end trip tonight at Ohio State and then meets Northwestern tomorrow evening in the first game of the Stadium double header. Subsequent contests are scheduled at Indiana and Iowa next week.

The Illinois-Ohio State game tonight definitely will decide the Buckeyes' campaign to retain their 1944 Western conference championship. Ohio State, beaten by Purdue in Lafayette, 37 to 36, on Jan. 6 and by Illinois, 56 to 41, in Champaign on Feb. 16, must win to remain in the race. If the Buckeyes win tonight, Illinois then would have two defeats since Michigan took the first game of the series with Illinois. Iowa, beaten by one point by Illinois, leads the race but faces Wisconsin tomorrow night in Madison. The Badgers lost to Iowa by a point last Monday in Iowa City.

Home Floor May Help.

The score of Illinois' victory at home over Ohio State would seem to indicate a decided superiority. Statistics show, however, that Illinois scored 23 field goals on 61 attempts that night while Ohio State, far below form, scored 17 field goals on 80 attempts. Playing at home tonight, Ohio State should be more effective.

Illinois is handicapped by injuries as well as disadvantages of travel. Howie Judson is a doubtful starter because of an ankle injury Monday night when Illinois defeated Minnesota, 49 to 48. John Orr, with recurrence of a knee injury originally received during the football season; Walton Kirk, with a pulled groin muscle, and Walt Kersulis and Jack Burmaster, who have colds, also may not be in top condition for Ohio State and Northwestern.

Hoosiers Play at Columbus.

Ohio State lost Bill Pfeiffer, rugged relief man for Arnold Risen, 6 feet 8 inch center, by induction before the first Illinois game but the Buckeyes defeated Indiana the following night. Tomorrow Ohio State concludes its conference season with the Hoosiers in Columbus.

Illinois also is concerned over the Northwestern game tomorrow for the Wildcats actually play better basketball than their record of three victories and eight defeats indicates. Last year, with a team composed principally of reserves because of transfer of navy personnel, Northwestern defeated Purdue and Iowa to knock both from the title race.

Northwestern has had only three days practice this week because of the end of the term for navy men, and Frank Wright, regular guard, will not play. He is visiting his home in Bremerton, Wash., before reporting for navy assignment, but the Wildcats still have a fair chance to whip Illinois.

N. U. Near Finish.

Northwestern concludes its conference season tomorrow night and De Paul, which meets Western Kentucky in the second game of the double header, also concludes its schedule except for the possibility of participation in tournaments. The Demons have been beaten by Illinois and Great Lakes. Victory over the Hilltoppers—De Paul won the first game of the series—will be the 18th for the year. George Mikan, De Paul center, who has scored 399 points in 19 games, will be honored by citizens from Joliet, Ill., his home.

The second half of the De Paul-Western Kentucky game will be broadcast by Jack Brickhouse over W-G-N starting at 10:45 p. m.

NOVIKOFF STILL HOPES TO PLAY IN THE MAJORS

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 22 (AP).—Lou Novikoff still thinks some major league club wants him, he said today, and he won't sign a Los Angeles contract until he learns what salary the Angels are willing to pay him.

"I don't want to start a row now," said Lou, who had plenty of contract troubles while he was with the Chicago Cubs. "I'll talk to President Don Stewart and see what's what, but I have a notion one or two major league clubs would like to have my services this season."

HAWKS GET REST BEFORE TOUGH WEEK-END JOBS

Battle Wings Tomorrow and Sunday.

The Chicago Blackhawks, their Stanley cup play-off hopes substantially bolstered by the happy 5 to 0 victory over the Boston Bruins in the Stadium Wednesday evening, yesterday enjoyed a well deserved recess before their difficult week-end assignment — two games against the second place Detroit Red Wings. They will entrain tomorrow morning for Detroit, where they will battle the Wings tomorrow night before returning with their foes for Sunday's Stadium battle. They will hold a light drill on the Chicago Arena rink today.

Goalie Mike Karakas, who rates as the hottest National Hockey league guardian of the moment, will have the toughest task of the night tomorrow. In his last two games Karakas blanked his opponents for a record of 120 scoreless minutes, shutting out the world champion Canadians last Sunday before whitewashing Boston. The Wings, his foes of tomorrow, have not succumbed via the shutout route on their own ice in the last 42 games they've played there.

Regardless of what Mike does, however, he is now the proud possessor of one of hockey's most unusual feats—a goalie who drew an official assist. He was so credited on Wednesday's fifth and last goal against Boston, when he cleared the puck and passed it on to Mush March, the latter scoring after a rink-long solo rush. Karakas is thus the fifth goalkeeper in National league history to be given as assist.

Rangers Beat Wings, 5-3, in Play-Off Bid

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—The New York Rangers, paced by Jack Mann, scored four goals in the first period tonight, then staved off a Detroit rally to defeat the Red Wings, 5 to 3, before a crowd of 13,921. The victory kept alive the Rangers hopes of reaching the National Hockey league play-offs.

Mann figured in three of the four Ranger goals in the first period. Two were scored on long shots by Defense Man Guy Labrie. After building up an apparently safe lead, the Rangers began to play defensive hockey and found it wasn't enough when Detroit put on pressure in the final period.

The Red Wings were pressing hard for the tying counter when Ab Demarco picked up a loose puck at the far end of the rink and caged the clinching goal.

MILT BYRNES OF BROWNS TURNED DOWN BY ARMY

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 22 (AP).—Outfielder Milton Byrnes of the St. Louis Browns has been rejected for military service following a physical examination at Jefferson barracks, Mo., it was learned tonight.

Bronchial asthma was said to be cause for Byrnes' rejection. According to a ruling regarding professional athletes, his case now goes before the war department.

Catcher Walker Cooper of the St. Louis Cardinals also was examined at Jefferson barracks this week but the result is not known.

Oklahoma Aggies Defeat Oklahoma Quintet, 23-17

Stillwater, Okla., Feb. 22 (AP).—A stalling University of Oklahoma basketball team failed in an effort to outmaneuver its traditional rivals tonight as the Oklahoma Aggies won, 23 to 17, in a contest filled with fouls. Bob Kurland bore the brunt of the Sooner attack at 21 of Oklahoma's 24 fouls were committed against the 7 foot center. He hit 10 of 18 free throws.

ICE-CAPADES TO BRING BALLROOM DANCING TO ICE

Nate Walley, the professional figure skating champion of the world, and his wife, Edythe Dustman Walley, former Northwestern university co-ed, will bring ballroom dancing to ice in the "Ice-Capades of 1945," opening next Thursday night for two weeks in the Chicago Arena.

Walley, a Minneapolis product, won the world pro championship in England in the 1934-'35 season and repeated the following year. That was the last time the title was placed in competition because of the war.

Walley also rates as one of the leading instructors of the sport, having developed Gene Turner, who won the national amateur championship; Eleanor O'Meara, and Dorothy Caley, both Canadian champions, and his wife, now a top performer.

OPEN PLAY-OFFS FOR PRO BASKET TITLE MARCH 5

Play-offs for the 1945 National basketball league title will start March 5, league officials announced yesterday.

First and second place teams in the eastern and western divisions will meet in a best two out of three series, with the finalists clashing for the title. The first round schedule:

WESTERN DIVISION—Chicago at Sheboygan, March 5; Sheboygan at Chicago, March 6; Chicago at Sheboygan [if required], March 8.

EASTERN DIVISION—Cleveland at Fort Wayne, Ind., March 6; Fort Wayne at Cleveland, March 8; Cleveland at Fort Wayne [if required], March 11.

If Fort Wayne wins, the championship round [best three out of five] will open in that city on March 11 or 12. If Cleveland survives, title play will start March 10 or 12 in Chicago, or March 11 or 12 in Cleveland against Sheboygan, Wis., depending on who wins the western play-off.

PREP STARS TO PLAY IN B.B.Y.O. BASKET MEET

A number of leading high school basketball players who will have completed their school competition, will play in the ninth annual B'nai B'rith Youth organization tournament which will open Sunday, March 4.

The divisions of play will be school, for grammar and first year high school students, junior, for players 5 feet 8 inches and under, and the senior division, for those over the junior height limit.

The junior champions and an all-star quintet will meet the Catholic Youth organization's representatives in Lane Tech gymnasium Tuesday, March 27.

Majorki, Great Lakes Forward, Has Measles

Luke Majorki, a regular forward on the Great Lakes Naval Training station basketball team, will be lost to the team for its two remaining games, against Bunker Hill tonight and Chanute field tomorrow night, it was announced yesterday. Majorki has the measles. Majorki played with the Fort Wayne, Ind., South Side High school last year. He will be replaced in the lineup by Randy Clark, sixth highest in team scoring for the season.

De la Cruz Passes Up Cuban Army to Join Reds

Cincinnati, O., Feb. 22 (AP).—Tomas de la Cruz, currently in the Cuban army, has decided to forego participation in Mexican baseball championship play, and will pitch again this year with Cincinnati's Reds.

MOSCONI WINS 2 BLOCKS; LEADS BY 1,470 POINTS

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—Willie Mosconi of Toledo, O., today won both blocks to take a 5 to 3 lead over Ralph Greenleaf of Detroit in the New York phase of the cross-country defense of his national pocket billiard title.

After winning the afternoon block 125 to 19 in seven innings Mosconi also captured the evening match, 125 to 39, in nine frames. Mosconi had high runs of 78 and 81 to 15 and 45 for his rival.

The champion now enjoys an overall lead of 1,470 points, with 4,998 to 3,528 for his challenger.

Hugh Mulcahy Hopes to Be Back with Phils in '46

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP).—Sgt. Hugh Mulcahy, 31, first major league baseball star to enlist, says he still has plenty on the ball and hopes to report for Phillies' spring training in 1946, according to a copy of the 8th army's mimeographed newspaper, The Octogram, received here.

Facilities at Sportsman's Open March 1

John L. Keeshin, president of the National Jockey club, said last night that the facilities of Sportsman's Park, the half mile track in Cicero, will be made available to turfmen and horses on March 1. "We have decided to offer our track to horsemen of Chicago and Illinois and hope that the facilities of the plant will relieve some of the hardship and inconveniences caused by the present racing emergency," he said.

"We feel, and I am speaking for every one connected with the National Jockey club, that it is our duty to do everything possible for those horsemen who make the Chicago circuit their home operating base," he continued. "Our track superintendent has been instructed to give preference to horses owned by residents of Illinois and under this order our local owners can look to Sportsman's Park as a haven and training ground during the present racing emergency."

The Jockey club does not collect any fee for stable rental or for use of training facilities. The action does not mean that there will have to be an increase in the track personnel, which has been reduced to a staff of watchmen necessary to protect the property.

Keeshin explained that he has received numerous letters from Illinois owners who have their thorobreds stabled at various tracks thruout the nation and desire to transfer them to the Chicago area as early in the spring as possible.

Local WMC to Have Say on Midnight Law

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22.—The war man power commission said today that enforcement and interpretation of the midnight curfew for entertainment and sports establishments will, for the most part, be left to regional and local WMC offices. A spokesman said that the WMC is working on a general program to carry out the objectives of the closing order, which goes into effect Monday, and expects to have enforcement measures ready in a day or two.

The WMC official said that the curfew was "dumped into our laps" so unexpectedly by War Mobilization Director Byrnes that the man power agency has not yet been able to iron out details or answer many of the questions that have risen.

Some of these questions include when may bowling alleys and billiard parlors reopen after midnight for the next day's business, and may places of entertainment remain open after midnight as restaurants if they close their bars and dispense with orchestras and floor shows?

Regional directors of the WMC meeting in Washington coincident with the issuance of Byrnes' curfew decree, discussed interpretation and enforcement today. The WMC spokesman said these regional heads will be empowered to answer questions which develop and obtain compliance within the outlines of the general WMC policy. State and local authorities are expected to assist the WMC in policing the curfew.

PACKERS DROP TRAFTON AFTER SINGLE SEASON

Green Bay, Wis., Feb. 22 (AP).—Coach E. L. Lambeau of the Green Bay Packer professional football team said today that George Trafton had been given his release as a member of the Packer coaching staff.

Trafton, a former Chicago Bear center, signed a one year contract to coach the Packer line last year and helped guide the Green Bay team to a National league pennant.

"We regret that circumstances are such that we cannot carry more than three coaches," Lambeau said. "If times were normal we would not let George go as we are impressed with his ability."

The Packers recently announced the signing of Walter Kiesling, former head coach at Pittsburgh and a former Packer lineman as an assistant coach. The other assistant coach is Don Hutson, the team's great end.

LONGSHOTS WIN IN 4TH, 5TH AT ORIENTAL PARK

HAVANA, Cuba, Feb. 22 (AP). — The two highest purses of the winter meeting at Oriental Park were returned today when Lady Atilania paid $178 in winning the fourth race and May Sing won the George Washington purse paying off $107.20.

May Sing, a four year old filly owned by the Guanamaquilla stable, took a long lead in the featured fifth race and won by three lengths over Shot One and Zouave. The winner ran the six furlongs in 1:12⅘.

Almendares stable's Lady Atilania, a seven year old mare, picked up speed in the stretch and won by half a length.

CHAMPION LOSES IN NATIONAL 'Y' HANDBALL MEET

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 22 (AP)—Oscar Klayman of St. Louis defeated Al Anfenson of Minneapolis, defending champion, 21-15, 21-11, tonight in the singles division of the National Y. M. C. A. handball tournament.

RIVERSIDE BEATS LEYDEN, 56 TO 23, TO REACH FINALS

Riverside High school's basketball team, off on what Coach Barney Dudley hopes is the path to the state title, last night advanced to the finals of its own district tournament by trouncing Leyden, 56 to 23, in the first semi-final contest of the evening.

Officials worked overtime in calling 25 personal fouls against Riverside and 28 against Leyden, one of the highest totals registered this year. Two members of the Riverside team and three Leyden players were excused from the game after their fifth offense.

Riverside led all the way, with the score 10 to 6 at the end of the first period. The advantage was increased to 17 to 10 at the half. In the third period, Riverside scored 23 points while limiting Leyden to four.

Hinsdale Rally Fails.

A belated rally by Hinsdale failed to catch the Bensenville squad in the second game of the Riverside meet, and the latter won, 31 to 30, after being held to three points in the final quarter while Hinsdale scored 14. Bensenville led, 24 to 12, at the half, with Bob Shoppe's 10 points being high for the game. Bensenville will meet Riverside in the finals tonight.

Don Herr scored 12 points to lead Libertyville to a 39 to 27 victory over Barrington in the Wauconda district. Ela likewise advanced to the finals by beating Northbrook, 57 to 34.

Peotone and Crete advanced to the finals in the Grant Park district, Peotone defeated Wilmington, 44 to 31, and Crete beat Braidwood, 41 to 22.

West Chicago Upset.

West Chicago, favorite in the Mooseheart district, was upset by Mooseheart, 37 to 35, after rallying early in the fourth period to take a 28 to 26 lead. Mooseheart led, 20 to 13, at the half, and was ahead, 26 to 25, at the end of the third period. The West Chicago rally continued, but Mooseheart finished strongly to win in the final moments of the game.

Mooseheart's opponents in the finals will be Geneva, which defeated Yorkville, 41 to 38.

STATE'S PREPS TO VIE IN SWIM EVENTS TODAY

New Trier High school's swimming team will defend the title it won last year when the 1945 state high school swimming meet opens this afternoon in Winnetka in the New Trier pool.

Preliminaries will begin at 3:30 p. m. today, followed by an evening session and finals at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

New Trier, along with Lane Tech, of Chicago's City league, and Oak Park High school, are ranked as favorites. Other schools entered are Amundsen, Austin, Harrison, Roosevelt, Schurz, Steinmetz, Sullivan, of the City league, and Morton, Danville, Maine, Evanston, Highland Park, Lockport, Proviso, Rockford East and Rockford West, Niles, and Waukegan.

WAGE REVISION IS OPPOSED BY GROUP OF WLB

Implies No Change Until Nazis Fall.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22 (AP).—Public members of the war labor board advised President Roosevelt to hold tight to the Little Steel formula so long as civilian goods and services must be restricted.

Because the President has indicated he will rely heavily on the four public members' findings in deciding whether to crack the ceiling on base wage increases, the report implied no revision until victory is fully in sight, especially not while hostilities continue in Europe. The whole recent trend has been to channel more and more of the nation's capacity into war.

The Little Steel formula, keystone of the administration's war time stabilization policy, allows for 15 per cent higher pay than in January, 1941, to make up for cost of living increases up to May, 1942.

Labor Group Dissents.

The public members reported, at the President's request, on the status of wage earners in war time.

Industry members of the board announced their concurrence with the findings. Labor members, in separate statements, dissented.

The report, four months in the making, was submitted on the eve of John L. Lewis' threat to the formula in negotiations between his United Mine Workers and the bituminous coal operators, scheduled to begin March 1. Both the AFL and the CIO have demanded Little Steel revision.

The public members told the President they "do not recommend a present change in the Little Steel formula as necessary to eliminate any overall inequity in the war time stabilization program."

"The time has not yet come, in our judgment, when general wage increases can be freely resumed without danger of an inflation which would be disastrous to the war effort and to the economic security of all segments of our population," they added.

Post-War Change Expected.

In preparation for the post-war period, however, the public members said:

"The cost of living adjustment of the Little Steel formula will have to give way to wage and price adjustments which definitely raise the general level of real wages.

"Planning for prosperity, however, is by no means solely, or even primarily, a matter of increasing wages but must necessarily call for a comprehensive program on all economic fronts."

The four members suggested, as regards substandard wages, that the fair labor standards act be changed by congress to increase the minimum wage, now fixed at 40 cents. They also proposed fixing minimum wages for key positions, as was done in the case of 50,000 textile workers in a decision handed down this week.

Criticized by CIO Members.

The five CIO members and alternates on the board said the public members' report revealed "a complete absence of understanding" of present and future economic problems.

They declared that "under present conditions the CIO members do not see how they can discharge their very deep responsibility to the nation and to labor." One of the members said this did not imply a direct threat to withdraw from the board, but the statement continued:

"We therefore intend to submit this entire situation to the executive officers of our organization for an expression as to the steps that must be taken to secure these essential and vital changes."

NEW YORK LIFE BOOSTS ASSETS TO 3½ BILLIONS

New York, Feb. 22 (AP).—The New York Life Insurance ompany today reported assets at the end of 1944 aggregated $3,570,738,940, an increase of $227,782,510 in a year. United States government obligations were 54 per cent of the total, the annual report said.

Living policyholders received 57 per cent and beneficiaries 43 per cent of total payments in 1944 of $182,029,816.

New Devices Cut Failures in Bombings

Reports of how American bomber performance in every war theater has been improved sensationally by use of the automatic pilot and a new electronic supercharger control were brought to Chicago yesterday by field engineers for the company that manufactures the equipment.

Sixty men who have been at bomber bases overseas and 100 others who have been teaching use of the devices at bases in this country met in the Edgewater Beach hotel. The engineers from abroad had lived with the flyers for months and given instruction to men who were veteran bomber pilots before the new equipment became standard installation.

One "Abort" in 500.

Use of the supercharger control has reduced the number of "abortive" sorties over Europe caused by improper functioning of superchargers and their controls from 52 out of each 100 uncompleted missions, to one out of 500, said Herbert Williams, chief field engineer in England for the Minneapolis-Honeywell Regulator company, which developed the control and the automatic pilot. An "aborted" aircraft, it was explained, is one that does not complete its sortie because of mechanical failure.

The electronic control replaces hydraulic systems, he said, "automatically insures pre-selected engine performances at all altitudes and guards against excessive turbo speeds." The rate of failure, he said, has been reduced to two-tenths of 1 per cent.

"Ninety-two per cent of high level bombing over Europe is now being done on the automatic pilot," he said. "The altitude averages 25,000 feet, slightly higher for B-17s and slightly lower for B-24s.

Ten Idle Minutes for Pilots.

"Leading planes and the two deputy leaders are on the pilot from the initial point to the target. That is a run from seven to 10 minutes. When you consider that the anti-aircraft fire is terrific all that time and that the pilots can do nothing but sit there while the automatic equipment is in charge, you must admit that those boys are wonderful."

Williams brought with him one month's record of bomb hits that his associates said were "sensational." The figures, however, are a military secret.

Company spokesmen said their convention was one of 15 authorized by the office of defense transportation out of 400 applications.

NEW PRESIDENT MAY BE NAMED FOR I. C. TODAY

Directors of the Illinois Central railroad who will meet in the company offices this morning are expected to elect a new president to succeed the late John L. Beven. Eugene W. Stetson, chairman of the executive committee, said the nominating committee had not submitted its recommendations, but a number of men have been considered for the post.

Wayne A. Johnston.

Stetson, who is chairman of the board of the Guaranty Trust company, New York, said he hoped a president would be selected today, that he opposed delay.

Among those who have been mentioned for the presidency are Wayne A. Johnston, general manager, who has been in charge of operations; R. E. Connolly, vice president, who has been in charge of the property since Beven's death, and James J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads. Johnston has become widely known for his operating ability. Connolly is the road's financial expert. Pelley was a vice president of the Illinois Central when he left to head the Association of American Railroads.

TREASURY STUDY OF SPECULATION CURB IS STARTED

Washington, D. C., Feb. 22 (AP).—The treasury is seeking to determine whether speculation in stocks and real estate can be effectively curbed thru taxation, Sec. Morgenthau told a news conference today. He said he approved the general purposes of a proposal by Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the federal reserve board, for a war time excess profits tax on gains from speculation.

Morgenthau said he was not prepared to endorse any specific proposal.

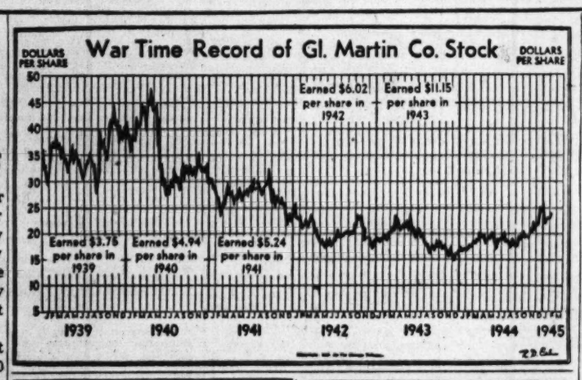
"Like Eccles, I am also worried about unhealthy gains in values of capital assets," the secretary said. "If we can discourage speculating on farm land, for example, I think we would be doing a lot of people a real service."

Pay Increase Approved; Bonus Plan Is Rejected

The regional war labor board yesterday approved wage increases for 200 employes of units of the American Can company's plants in Maywood. They included flat 2½ cent hourly increases for men and 4 cent raises for women. The board disapproved a plan of the Majestic Radio and Television corporation to pay a $25 Christmas bonus to 462 employes and approved a wage incentive plan of the Rulon corporation, 4159 Grand av., affecting 250 employes.

Markets Reopen

Securities and commodities exchanges and banks, closed yesterday in observance of Washington's birthday, will reopen today.



Predict Army Pullman Need Will Increase

Military requirements for Pullman cars are expected to increase rather than decrease during the next few months despite the fact the United States has more than 6 million troops overseas, Champ Carry, executive vice president of the Pullman company, said yesterday.

Pullman provided 422,598 cars for military use during the 18 months ended last November and an average of more than 25,000 cars a month thru 1944, he said. In October and November Pullman provided more than 26,000 cars for each month—closely approximating the previous peak for the entire war.

Civilian Travel Heavy.

The company, altho it was carrying an unprecedented number in military service, at the same time handled abnormally heavy civilian travel. In 1944, 36 million military and civilian passengers were carried in Pullmans, an all-time record.

Carry said about a half the Pullman fleet is engaged in military service and with 422,598 cars alloted for such use in 18 months it is easy to understand why civilians are not always able to get reservations.

As the fighting abroad became more intense the need for accommodations for returning wounded have increased, Carry said. A substantial proportion of the cars allotted daily to the military is used to carry the wounded.

Two Major Obligations.

"Civilians must keep in mind that the war has created two new major obligations," Carry said. "The first is to see that our wounded or discharged men get safe and comfortable transportation to hospitals or their homes. The second is to transport military forces speedily to new posts of assignment. The situation is tough and it will get tougher."

He said the Pullman company is carrying far more men during World War II. than it did in World War I. During the 18 months prior to the 1918 armistice, 6,426,566 troops were carried in organized movements. During the 18 months ended Nov. 30, 1944, 16,318,680 were transported.

HOG OFFERINGS SHRINK; SHEEP, CATTLE STRONG

Twenty of the biggest stock yards in the country yesterday received only 37,000 hogs, a few more than the 34,476 handled by the Chicago yards alone on the same day last year. The aggregate was one of the smallest for a Thursday on record. The slump was attributed mainly to the hog shortage on farms, altho some market points reported that heavy snowstorms curtailed the movement.

Buyers gave ceiling prices for nearly all the stock they could buy. The average of $14.70 a hundred pounds at the Chicago yards was unchanged and as high as the price has been since October, 1943.

Other meat animals were bought quickly at strong to 25 cent higher prices, with steers showing most gain in the cattle alleys.

Cows, canners, and cutters were mostly firm, altho some sold 15 to 25 cents higher. Bulls ruled strong to 25 cents higher. Calves sold steady to strong.

Lambs were mostly 15 cents higher. Twelve carloads from Colorado topped at $16.75.

TWO MACKLERS BUY SECURITIES OF DISTILLERIES

Joseph H. and Michael B. Mackler, brothers, said yesterday they had purchased all the outstanding securities of Waterfill & Frazier and Shawhan Distilleries, two Ohio corporations, from Harry E. Collin of Toledo. The plants are making alcohol for the government. The distilleries also bottle liquor owned by the states of Washington and Oregon.

The two companies own 3,000 barrels of whisky and in addition the Macklers purchased from Collin warehouse receipts for 7,000 barrels. The entire transaction was said to involve more than 2 million dollars.

The Macklers, formerly in the investment business, are officers of Winter & Hirsch, Inc., a Chicago finance company.

PERSONAL INCOME TAX—8.

Losses on the sale or exchange of capital assets, whether long or short term, can be applied as offsets to capital gains, both long and short term, in arriving at the year's net capital gain or loss. If the losses exceed the gains, the net capital loss can be deducted from other income [computed without regard to capital transactions] up to $1,000.

If not fully deductible in the year in which it was realized, a net loss of this kind can be carried forward to offset either capital gains or $1,000 of other income in each of the succeeding five years.

A capital gain or loss is measured by comparing the net sales proceeds—or value of property received in exchange—with the cost or adjusted cost. The cost "basis" must first be determined. With some special exceptions, this is the original price paid. In the case of real estate, the cost of subsequent additions and improvements—not current repairs—is added, and an allowance for depreciation of buildings and equipment is deducted. If the property was owned and occupied by the taxpayer as his personal residence, however, no allowance for depreciation is made for the period of such use, and the same rule applies to other personal items not held for the production of income.

The basis for property received by inheritance is the fair market value at the date of the decedent's death, with subsequent adjustments for additions and depreciation. Special cost rules apply in the case of property received by gift and property owned before March 1, 1913.

In personal transactions, most expenses directly connected with purchase or sale of capital assets respectively are added to the purchase price and subtracted from the gross proceeds. This applies to commissions paid brokers.

A recent special ruling makes an exception of stamp taxes paid on transfers of securities or real estate by persons who are not dealers. Federal stamp taxes in such cases are now deductible, not as taxes, but as investor's expense, from income and not from the sales proceeds. State transfer taxes are deductible from income as a tax.

Losses from securities becoming worthless are treated as losses from sale or exchange of capital assets on the last day of the year. Nonbusiness bad debts which become worthless during the taxable year are treated as short term capital losses.

Certain exchanges of property give rise neither to recognizable gain nor loss, and thus are classed as nontaxable. The general provision is that the property exchanged must have been held for productive use in business or for investment and exchanged solely for property of like kind to be similarly held.

In the case of investment securities, an exchange may be nontaxable if the securities exchanged are of the same corporation and of the same degree of equity, as common stock for common stock and preferred stock for preferred stock. Also, as a general rule, an exchange of securities is nontaxable if made under a plan of reorganization for securities of the same corporation of another corporation which is a party to the reorganization.

The law provides special treatment of gains and losses from involuntary conversion of capital assets and certain other assets held more than six months, as when property is sold under condemnation or requisitioned, or insured property is destroyed or stolen.

MILK, NOT CASH, RULES BUTTER, SAY DAIRYMEN

Altho adjusted milk and butterfat subsidy payments should help, any increases in butter production in the next few months will result more from seasonal increases in the milk supply, members of the industry said yesterday.

Owen M. Richards, general manager of the American Dairy association, said demands for all dairy products from all sources are so large that not nearly enough butter will be available this year, no matter what legislative action is taken.

Milk production last year was approximately 119 billion 200 million pounds. The goal this year is 120 billion 582 million pounds.

E. H. Rollins Suspended on SEC Charge

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 22 (AP).—E. H. Rollins & Sons, Inc., was suspended today from the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., for 60 days, beginning March 6, by the securities and exchange commission, which found the company and a manager guilty of fraudulent handling of special fund accounts for the board of missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

The commission said the company's broker-dealer registration could be revoked if it did not dismiss Walter Cecil Rawls, manager of the St. Louis suboffice, and Perry Dryden, a vice president and manager of the Chicago office. Rawls' broker-dealer registration was revoked.

"No Relation to Market."

The commission said Rawls sold securities at prices bearing no reasonable relation to market prices, engaged in fictitious transactions, traded excessively, and made secret rebates while handling the church account from 1939 thru 1942.

The church's women's work fund alone produced 25 per cent of the Chicago office's gross during the four year period and 60 per cent of its net profit on corporate bond sales during 1940, the SEC reported.

All of the bookkeeping for the St. Louis office was done in Chicago and Dryden passed on all orders, approving or fixing prices on bonds sold by the St. Louis office to the fund, the SEC opinion said.

Dryden's compensation as manager was reported to have been 25 per cent of the profits of the Chicago office and its suboffices and Rawls is reported to have received 45 per cent of the profit on business produced by him.

Excessive Markups Alleged.

The commission found "flagrantly excessive" markups over market prices, ranging up to 78.9 per cent. These markups "operated as a fraud on the funds and constituted wilful violations by Rollins and Rawls" of fraud prohibitions of the securities act and securities exchange act, the opinion said.

In a single security in which excessive trading was found, Rollins profited $5,553, compared with a $187 profit for the church fund, the commission said. Excessive trading was defined as "induced trading activity in the accounts of the funds which, in view of the character and financial resources of the funds, was excessive in volume and frequency" and "for the purpose of obtaining profits" for Rollins.

The SEC said Rawls paid secret rebates to his brother, J. F. Rawls, Nashville, Tenn., treasurer of the general work fund.

COMPANY'S STATEMENT.

A statement issued by E. H. Rollins & Sons, Inc., in New York said that altho the transactions involved in the SEC action were cleared thru the firm's Chicago office, of which Dryden was the head, that office in the main relied on instructions from the St. Louis office headed by Rawls.

"The customer whose accounts were the basis for this inquiry received over $500,000 in interest and income from the securities purchased from Rollins," the company said. "These investments produced an interest return which increased from 4.91 per cent at the beginning of the dealings to 7.02 per cent in 1943. The customer subsequently disposed of all the securities it had purchased from Rollins with a net profit of $188,000. At no time did Rollins exercise any discretionary powers over the customer's account, nor was Rollins a depositary for such funds."

People and Events

Edward Warnshuis, vice president of Netcher's Boston store, has been promoted to vice president and general merchandise manager, Edward R. Naar, executive vice president, announced yesterday. Warnshuis began his retail career with Marshall Field & Co. after serving in World War I., and became associated with the Boston store in 1934.

Edward Warnshuis.

Juan Terry Trippe, president and general manager of Pan-American Airways, was elected a director of the Fidelity and Deposit Company of Maryland. He also is a director and member of the finance committee of the Chrysler corporation and a director of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company and of the Waldorf-Astoria corporation.

The Insurance Brokers' Association of Illinois will hear a discussion of what a comprehensive liability contract means to the buyer Tuesday afternoon in the Insurance Exchange building.

Ira E. Odell has been appointed assistant vice president in charge of the metropolitan and suburban territory of the Chicago divisional office of Universal C. I. T. Credit corporation.

The Wholesale Grocers Association of Chicago elected James Black of Sprague Warner-Kenny corporation president to succeed Edward M. Steele.

A. T. & T. PLANS BILLION OF NEW CONSTRUCTION

21½ Million Phones Are in Service.

Walter S. Gifford, president of American Telephone and Telegraph company, yesterday announced the Bell telephone system was drafting plans for a record billion dollar construction program to extend for several years after the war.

In a letter to stockholders accompanying the company's annual report for 1944, Gifford said the company, in obtaining new capital for construction, "will have to compete with other industries for the investors' dollars and its earnings must be maintained at satisfactory levels in order to attract the necessary funds at reasonable cost."

He reported that 21,580,300 Bell telephones were in service at the end of 1944, an increase of 333,700 units during the year. Applications for telephone service, which were not serviced because of lack of facilities, increased from 650,000 to 1½ million.

Experiments with Microwaves.

Gifford disclosed that the company's engineers are experimenting with a short wave named "microwave" that may be used as a supplement to wires and cables for telephone and television transmission.

"These very short waves," he said, "can be formed into beams and can penetrate darkness, fog, dust, and rain. To transmit along the earth's surface beyond the horizon relay stations must be employed. There is no static and the possible number of speech channels in this frequency range is very great. While the communications possibilities of microwaves still await final proof and economic evaluation, they appear very promising."

Net income in 1944 of A. T. & T. [the parent company] was $163,165,614, equal to $8.54 a share, little changed from the company's previous report when figures for December were partly estimated. In 1943 profit was $168,530,764, or $9 a share.

Bell system consolidated net income in 1944 was $169,856,561, or $8.89 a share applicable to A. T. & T. stock, against $177,769,009, or $9.50 a share in the preceding year.

Carpet Maker Sales High.

Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., reported sales in 1944 approximated 33 million dollars and set a new peak. Net income in 1944 was $1,985,000, or $2.33 a share, compared with 1943 profit of $1,274,617, or $2.40 a share.

Northwest Airlines Plans Fare Cut on Travel Cards

Northwest Airlines yesterday announced it has filed with the civil aeronautics board a tariff revision which would give passengers purchasing transportation with air travel cards a 5 per cent discount from regular one way fares. The same discount would be allowed to United States government employes who use government travel orders.

Carriers Seek Coal Burning Locomotive to Excel Diesel

Some railroads this year will engage in intensive research "to develop coal burning locomotives that will equal or excel in performance the diesel locomotives that are gaining in popularity," Leonard P. Ayres, economist for the Chesapeake and Ohio Lines, said in the March issue of "Tracks," official publication of the C. & O. and affiliated lines.

"This year, for the first time, our railroads will be putting into service more new diesel engines than steam locomotives," Ayres said. "At the beginning of this year the makers of locomotives had orders on their books for twice as many line haul diesel engines as they had for line haul steam units."

Costs High; Servicing Less.

The locomotive builders had orders for 205 diesel switch engines and none for steam, he reported, explaining that for some years diesels have been gaining in favor for switching service "because they are more economical and convenient."

"Diesel locomotives cost a good deal more than steam units, but they do not need to stop so often for fuel and water, and they make far longer runs without needing stops for inspection and attention at roundhouses or their equivalents," he said. "Their monthly and annual mileages are much larger than those of steam locomotives, and the yearly costs of overhauls and repairs are less. In addition to all these advantages the diesels do less harm to the rails and roadbeds, because they do not pound the tracks as severely.

"Despite all these apparent advantages of the diesels they have one most serious disadvantage which makes nearly all railroad men worry about them. That disadvantage is that they burn oil instead of coal. If all locomotives were diesels the freight traffic of the railroads would be reduced enormously. From 30 to 35 per cent of all the tons of freight originated and hauled by American railroads consists of coal."

Ayres said one-fifth of all the coal mined in this country is consumed by steam locomotives and if little or none of it was used for this purpose both the coal mining industry and the railroads would be dealt a "staggering blow."

Test Steam Turbine Types.

The intensified engineering research being devoted to steam locomotives is to "ward off that sort of catastrophe," he said. In line with this, the Pennsylvania railroad is making tests with a new coal burning locomotive which is driven by two steam turbines. Preliminary reports on its performance have been most "encouraging," he said. The locomotive was said to be fast, powerful, and smooth in operation, with exceptionally good starting power.

Nine of the most important coal carrying railroads, including the C. & O., have pooled their resources, their engineering skill, and experience to experiment with new types of coal burning locomotives.

Seek High Pressure Boiler.

In another instance coal carrying railroads have joined forces with the General Electric company and Babcock & Wilcox to develop a coal burning steam locomotive with a boiler to develop a pressure of 600 pounds, compared with 200 pound pressure of ordinary locomotives and 300 of some exceptional types. In another project, railroads and equipment companies have joined in the development of a locomotive driven by a gas turbine, he said. This will be coal burning, but not a steam engine.

Ayres concluded that all this research probably will produce some successful steam and gas turbine locomotives, but "whether they will possess all or most of the advantages of the diesels remains to be seen."

●Regulations oblige us to sell Old Poindexter far below the price it would now command. So a few canny connoisseurs—Scotch by nature, but Bourbon in their tastes—are getting a big bang out of buying a magnificent Kentucky Straight at bargain quotations.

Yet these men consider low price secondary. The real incentive is the incomparable flavor produced by Poindexter's sour mash process and 40% small grains.

There's only a little Poindexter in the market today. So, if you can find it in one of your preferred bars or package stores, it's a good time to try it. For when prices once more have free play we can't promise that Old Poindexter will not become a collector's item.
